FINGERPRINTING CASE TO COURT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Resources Board Wednesday decided to challenge in B.C. Supreme Court the police policy of fingerprinting juveniles.

The board, a provincially-funded organization that administers some community services, made the decision after receiving legal opinions that suggest police have no right to fingerprint juveniles unless they are taken to adult court.

Police superintendent Tom Herdman told the board that the Vancouver Police Department was advised by the provincial attorney general's department that the fingerprinting of juveniles was permissible if there is evidence indicating a criminal offence has been committed.

He said since March 19, police have been following this policy. Previously, they sought the permission of the juvenile's parents.

Superintendent Herdman said the police department believes it is acting for the good and welfare of the juvenile and the community when it fingerprints children. He said fingerprints have linked the same child to as many as 80 other reported offences.

Plane Hits House

RICHMOND (CP)—One person was killed and another seriously injured today when a single-engine plane crashed into a house in this Vancouver suburb.

The light float plane, registered with British Columbia Packers, was taking off on a flight to Prince Rupert from Vancouver International Airport when it ran into difficulty and clipped the roof of a house on River Road.

An RCMP spokesman said the plane cartwheeled into another home and came to rest in the backyard before bursting into flames.

Two men were aboard the plane—a pilot and co-pilot.

Big Oil Spill Smears Spain

Times News Services

LA CORUNA, Spain — An "ecological disaster of unforeseeable consequence," is feared in the wake of an oil spill Wednesday.

When the tanker Urquiola exploded after it ran aground at the mouth of La Coruna harbor, it dumped a capacity load of 110,000 tons of Persian Gulf crude oil into the sea.

Nine years ago, when the supertanker Torrey Canyon sank and the resultant spill fouled French and British beaches for several years, only 30,000 tons of oil was responsible.

Fears here are not only for the picturesque beaches of northwestern Spain but also for the important shellfish industry.

The Urquiola, owned by the Bilbao-based Naviera Artola, hit the rocks at the harbor month around noon. For an hour, several tugs tried to refloat the tanker, but it listed more and more and the crew was ordered into lifeboats.

"The ship was practically stationary when we felt it touch botton very gently," said third engineer Miguel Angel Gromez Pena.

"When it was listing 15 degrees, the captain gave orders to abandon ship. Later we heard an explosion, followed by several more. I don't understand what caused them, but it must have had something to do with fumes and pressures."

The ferocity of the blast shattered windows several miles away on the La Coruna waterfront and thick black smoke could be seen from 80 miles distant.

"It looked like a volcano," said one witness.

MAYOR'S NUDE SQUAD ON SURREY PROWL

SURREY (CP) — Mayor Ed McKitka has established a three-member watchdog committee to search out nude and other "inappropriate" art works in this municipality's public places.

McKitka Wednesday refused to name committee members. Their identities are not even known to each other, he said.

If two of the three report to the mayor that certain art work is not acceptable for Surrey, that work will be removed, McKitka said.

"It's time we got that junk out," he added.

Although the mayor would not name his secret committee, he said one is a minister, one an artist and one "just an ordinary person."

McKitka ordered a mural with a 10-inch drawing of a nude woman removed from municipal hall last month and later sharply criticized an art exhibit in the Surrey Centennial Art Gallery.

'Don't Trust' Gov't

Opposition parties Wednesday flayed the government's Anti-Inflation Act, saying the legislation contains "astonishing, frightening" powers with no system of checks and balances.

Bill 16, the Anti-Inflation Measures Act, brings the province under the umbrella of federal wage and price guidelines and commits British Columbia to the controls until probably April, 1977.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson, speaking during debate on second reading, said the bill contains the power to intervene in existing contracts and freeze and rollback wages and prices, all by cabinet regulation.

"The government should not have that kind of power except in times of emergency," Gibson said.

"The government is saying 'trust us' but Mr. Speaker, I don't trust any government."

Gibson said the bill intrudes more deeply into the economy of the province than any legislation brought in by the former NDP government.

"This is blank cheque legislation that gives the government unnecessary power."

The legislation contains no right of appeal, right of redress or right to be heard, Gibson said, calling it the "Arbitrary Measures Act."

A more effective checks and balance system must surround any such legislation, he said.

The bill sets out that a regulation made by the cabinet terminates 60 days after it comes into force if the legislature is in session, or if the legislature is not in session, 60 days after the start of the next sitting.

Tory leader Dr. Scott Wallace said under that section it is possible a regulation could be in effect for almost a year, without any sort of legislative review.

"This contains a tremendous amount of authority . . . without the kind of safeguards the individual citizen would expect."

Wallace said he would be much happier with the bill if he had some assurance the government "would not, trample in a very serious way over any of the groups of people affected by the bill."

Opposition leader Bill King said it was unfair to concentrate such measures only on organized workers who represent 43 per cent of the work force in B.C.

King said there is nothing in the legislation but "a vague power to do something."

Slowdown In Prices 'A Fluke'

OTTAWA (CP) — Inflation officially slacked in April to the slowest annual rate in 30 months, but prices are still climbing and the slowdown may only be a statistical fluke.

Statistics Canada reported Wednesday that some food prices fell for the fourth consecutive month, holding the April rise in the consumer price index to four-tenths of one per cent.

But the federal Anti-Inflation Board says later information shows food prices really rose in April, indicating that the slight respite recorded by Statistics Canada is misleading.

Statistics Canada attributes the slowdown in the price index to a slippage in prices for beef, pork and fresh vegetables in early April.

But Beryl Plumptre, vice chairman of the Anti-Inflation Board, said Wednesday that later data shows food prices began climbing again in April and further increases are expected.

The Anti-Inflation Board's survey of food prices is based on later information than that of Statistics Canada.

Strike at Any Time At Victoria General

The B.C. Labor Relations Board has designated 47 of Victoria General Hospital's 604 non-medical workers as essential, in preparation for a strike which had been expected to start today.

However, no pickets appeared this morning although strike action could start any time, a union spokesman said.

The labor relations board, after two days of meetings, also ruled that Victoria General must maintain 345 of its 422 beds in the event of a strike, the hospital's executive director, Jim Fair, said today.

The hospital tried to persuade the LRB that Victoria General was in a unique situation because Royal Jubilee, the only other major hospital in the city, has been struck by the Hospital Employees Union since Tuesday, Fair said.

The hospital used that argument to try to get the board to rule that all of Victoria General's workers were essential, he said.

The hospital also tried to convince the board of the need for a four-day strike-free period to assess the patient flow coming from Jubilee, but failed to persuade the board of either idea, Fair said.

Victoria General has cancelled all elective surgery since last Sunday and Fair said the hospital will weigh sending more patients home "by the hour." The hospital currently has beeween 365 and 370 beds occupied.

An HEU spokesman said today Victoria radio stations were broacasting Wednesday and early today that Victoria General workers would be on strike at 6 a.m. The union had to post an official outside the hospital entrance this morning to assure members that they should go to work, he said.

The labor relations board is meeting in Vancouver today to designate essential workers at Lions Gate hospital in North Vancouver.

Jubilee executive director Dr. A. C. Pickles said today the hospital is maintaining a safe standard of medical care, despite the strike.

Vancouver General has been on strike since May 4.

Meanwhile Labor Minister Allan Williams hopes to get both sides in the dispute back to the bargaining table before the end of this week.

Williams said he should know by Thursday afternoon whether the HEU and the Health Labor Relations Association will agree to resume collective bargaining.

The minister, after a lengthy meeting with union officials Wednesday, said he has suggested some techniques which would allow the two sides to bargain "productively."

Williams met Tuesday with management representatives, but little came out of the meeting.

The Capital Regional Board Wednesday joined Oak Bay and Victoria councils in condemning strikes and lockouts in essential services, especially hospitals.

The board passed a resolution asking the provincial government to enact legislation which would control strikes and lockouts in essential services such as hospitals, fire and police protection.

Grade Eight Smokers Walk Out

DELTA (CP) — More than 100 students at Burnsview Junior Secondary School walked out Wednesday to protest cancellation of smoking privileges for grade eight students, conditions in the washrooms and the schools quarter system of grading.

Principal Ed Lorenz said about 125 students failed to return from lunch break.

Lorenz said grade eight students were barred from entering the smoking area on the school grounds because a number of non-smokers had taken up smoking after fraternizing with grade nine smokers in the smoking area.

He said complaints about dirty conditions in the washrooms stemmed from the desire of some students to smoke there. As for complaints about the quarter system, he said some students didn't like being graded four times a year, instead of two.

FERRY HOPE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some progress was reported Wednesday following a second day of talks between ferry workers, members of the British Columbia Government Employees Union, and B.C. Ferries, under mediator Fred Geddes.

A union spokesman said both sides have agreed to meet again today.

TIMES TENNIS

Everything's set to roll in the third annual Victoria Times Public Parks Tennis Tournament.

Entries for the summer-long competition, which for the first time this year features a mixed doubles event as well as singles, close June 3 and matches start June 11.

(For story and entry form see page 17).

Sidney Granny, 82, $250,000 Winner

An 82-year-old great-grandmother from Sidney and a 55-year-old Delta man are $250,000 richer today, winners of the top two prizes in the Western Canada Lottery.

It is the second time in a row the top prize has gone to a Greater Victoria ticket-holder.

Mary Briggs was in Saskatoon for the final draw Wednesday night and said she plans to leave this weekend on a vacation in California where she has a daughter.

Lottery officials said the Delta man would not allow his name to be published.

Three other Vancouver Island residents were among the major winners including a 57-year-old Victoria woman, Helen Craig of 323 Windemere who won $10,000.

I can't believe it," Mrs. Craig said this morning. She said she had been employed with a community action group but had been laid off since March.

"All I've received since then is $87," she said.

Robert Gaskins, a 47-year-old cleaning plant employee in Port Alberni, picked up $50,000 on his ticket which he won as a prize at a Credit Union annual meeting.

BRIGGS

And Campbell River resident John Phillips, a 54-year-old loan officer, collected $25,000.

Altogether, B.C. ticket-holders won a total of $660,000. Bert Grindle of Powell River and Bruce Still of Penticton each won $25,000. Two other B.C. residents, one holding ticket number 2488927, the other ticket number 1228210, won $25,000 and $10,000, respectively.

Mrs. Briggs, a widow with 11 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren, was one of eight persons whose tickets were pulled in a preliminary draw in Winnipeg on May 1. All eight were guaranteed a minimum of $25,000.

Mrs. Briggs, who had bought her ticket at the Canadian Legion Branch in Saanich, said at the time the good fortune was too much, too late.

There had been a mixup when the ticket numbers were first announced and for a brief time William Tiffany, a 57-year-old pensioner living in Sidney, thought he held one of the lucky tickets drawn.

Second prize of $100,000 went to a 13-year-old Stettler, Alta. youth. Darcy Hittel's windfall will be held in trust until he is 18.

Gaskins said he would use a portion of his winnings to rebuild his mother-in-law's home, which was destroyed in a fire last October.

Ottawa 'Losing RCMP Control'

MONTREAL — The federal government has lost control of the RCMP, according to Tory MP Elmer Mackay.

He has been recently visited by senior officers who spoke of serious problems relating to political interference, lack of supervision and slumping morale, MacKay claims.

"They authorized me to use their names," he said. "They put their jobs on the line."

Mackay said he wrote to Solicitor-General Warren Allmand a month ago to ask for protection for the officers so they could make their case public.

"Aside from an acknowledgment that the letter had been received I haven't got a reply yet," he said.

On the question of leaks from the RCMP, MacKay said he has "high regard for the RCMP."

"I don't believe that senior RCMP officers want to discredit the government or play partisan politics," he said. "Those responsible shouldn't engage in such activities."

The Gazette, meanwhile, says the Progressive Conservative party hired a multinational security firm directed by former United States government intelligence experts to investigate allegations of Liberal corruption in the Sky Shops affair.

Investigators from the Canadian subsidiary of Intertel Inc., of Washington, D.C., gathered the information later revealed in the Commons by MacKay, the paper adds.

MacKay told the Gazette: "I won't comment on who we are using or how many detectives are in use at the moment. If these people have international connections and international experience, so much the better."

Wheelchair Girl Corrine Aims at College

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Corrine Lissell, the 19-year-old Comox girl paralyzed in a traffic accident four years ago, hopes to go to university this fall.

She has been accepted by Simon Fraser University in Burnaby and now is trying to arrange accommodation.

"I'm a bit bored with doing nothing," said Corrine, who went back to high school and finished Grade 12 last year.

"It's very nice to be a lady of leisure but I'd like to do something."

Corrine was awarded $1.1 million in damages by a B.C. Supreme Court jury in Victoria last year for injuries she received when the motorcycle, on which she was a passenger, collided with a left-turning car June 13, 1972, on the road between Courtenay and Comox. She was 15 at the time.

But the award turned out to be largely an empty one. The driver of the motorcycle and the driver of the car were found to be at fault but they only carried the minimum $50,000 public liability insurance.

She received $100,000 from the insurance companies and both she and her father, Robert, have said it isn't worth pursuing the two drivers for more money.

Her father once commented: "They are just working men, the same as you and I." Corrine said: "If they were a couple of people rolling in dough — maybe you would consider it."

The accident left her paralyzed from the waist down and in her left arm. She is confined to a wheelchair.

The damage award was the highest traffic accident award in the British Commonwealth. It prompted calls for the provincial government to raise the minimum $50,000 public liability insurance but neither the former New Democratic government nor the present Social Credit government acted to raise the minimum.

Corrine said Wednesday it is hard to find living accommodation to attend university because she is confined to a wheelchair.

While there is some wheelchair accommodation on the SFU campus, "I have not received any confirmation."

She said if on-campus accommodation doesn't work out, she will look for something off-campus.

"I will take a very general course to begin with, I'm not sure what field I will go into," she said. She will begin with languages and psychology.

Partial Probe of French In Air

OTTAWA — Transport Minister Otto Lang has ordered a partial inquiry into the methods — but not the policy — of introducing fully-bilingual air traffic control in Quebec.

Lang Wednesday announced the appointment of Montreal lawyer John Keenan to conduct a public inquiry into the safety and monetary aspects of bilingual air traffic control under instrument flight rules.

The announcement came after a federal conciliation board recommended that an independent public commission should be established to "examine all questions of language use and safety in air traffic control."

The three-member board, in a report on the long-running contract dispute between the federal government and the 2,200-member Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, said the parties "will only be able to solve the problem (of bilingual air traffic control) if they set up an independent public commission of inquiry."

Jim Livingston, president of the Air Traffic Control Association, said he has no argument with the appointment of Keenan "but his terms of reference are far too narrow."

Livingston said the controllers, who will be in a legal position to strike next Tuesday, want "a full inquiry into the whole question of the introduction of bilingualism."

Apart from the bilingualism issue, wages are also a key point of dispute in contract negotiations with the controllers.

Two of the three members of the board recommended a 10.5-per-cent pay increase in a one-year contract.

Current salaries range from $10,000 a year for first-year controllers to a maximum of $23,000 for top-level operational controllers.

INFLATION SOBERING

LONDON (Reuter) — Britons forced to tighten their belts during recent economic hard times, also have been forced to go on the wagon. In parts of the industrial north hit particularly hard by unemployment and short-time working in 1975, drunken driving offences decreased by more than 20 per cent, and drunkeness was down by seven per cent.

Socreds Sniffing

Tempers flared at the legislature's public accounts committee today as Social Credit members began trying to ferret out embarrassing accounts from the NDP's term in office.

At one point Socred backbencher Elwood Veitch (Burnaby-Willingdon) said it "appears certain individuals enhanced their personal real estate position at the expense of the government" during the 1974-75 fiscal year.

Later Veitch was vague about details of his charges and said he wasn't accusing anybody of anything but suggested that he was looking at 10 cases of welfare recipients who received funds to repair their homes.

The people then sold their newly-repaired homes, said Veitch.

Veitch used the example of one woman in Vancouver who he said received $1,200 to repair her home after she had advertised it for sale.

A month after it was repaired she sold it, for $40,000 said Veitch and bought another house for $54,000.

Throughout the meeting the Socreds read out the vouchers for expenditures they want the committee to look into and the NDP members repeatedly said there was no need to "verbalize" the requests.

NDP committee chairman Dave Stupich hinted the Socreds were playing for the press in reading out the voucher requests rather than submitting them in written form.

ONE WAY TO PUSH BILINGUALISM . . .

OTTAWA (CP) — British Columbians will turn onto French-language television enthusiastically if the controversial new Vancouver station features blue movies, says Official Languages Commissioner Keith Spicer.

At a Commons committee today Spicer told Burnaby MP John Reynolds that the application for a proposed CBC French-language TV station in Vancouver was badly handled.

"I think people are more upset by the way the application was handled than they are about the existence of the station," Reynolds said.

"If they get the same French-language skin flicks that I understand the local Hull television is showing, then it will help people in Vancouver become interested in the French milieu," Spicer said.

$50,000 Chain Letter Sparks Fraud Warning

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fraud squad detectives have warned about a pyramid letter circulating throughout British Columbia offering up to $50,000 in free money.

The letter supplies a list of names and directs the recipient to send $37.50 to the person at the top of the list. The person then must enlist others into the plan.

In return, the letter promised that the sender's name will be added to the list and eventually will make is way to the top.

If enough people participate, the letter says that the personal reward for each person could be $50,000.

The letter suggests that all the money will be invested in government bonds and adds that the procedure of selling in this manner is not illegal.

Police, however, said that the last statement is not true.

They are investigating the origin of the letters and said that this pyramid — or chain — form of selling is in violation of the Criminal Code in making a false document and in using the mails to defraud.

"It appeals only to greedy people," said Staff Sergeant Emil West, head of the city's fraud squad.

"Everyone must know that if someone at one end of a line is going to make a pile of money, then people at the other end are going to lose it.

But those who send out such letters rely on the old credo that there's a sucker born every minute."

FUNERAL HELD TODAY FOR NELLIE TULLIS

A funeral service was held at McCall Bros. family chapel today for Nellie Tullis, well known champion of Indian rights, who died here May 7. She was 86.

Along with her husband, the late Cmdr. Arthur Tullis, she worked to establish Indian rights during her 40 years residence in Victoria and to promote Indian arts and crafts.

She was a past president and an advisory council member of the B.C. Indian Arts Society, known in early days as the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society.

She was also an active supporter of the Greater Victoria Art Gallery and of the Alliance Francaise.

Born in Hong Kong, she was the daughter of a Danish ambassador to China. She spoke Mandarin, as well as several other langauges.

She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Elsa Bemont, now in Italy, and Miss Marie Oiesen of Cambridge, Mass.

LRB Hearing Today On BCR Layoffs

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — The British Columbia Railway's newly formed Council of Trade Unions Wednesday launched an unfair labor practice complaint against B.C. Rail, alleging an illegal lockout.

The provincial Labor Relations Board was to meet today to consider the complaint.

The move is aimed at stopping BCR from laying off 1,200 workers of a 3,100-member work force during the next week because of a work-to-rule campaign by the 450 members of the United Transportation Union. The company said 200 to 300 workers were laid off Wednesday.

The council also met and elected officers Wednesday. Jack Whittaker of the Operating Engineers Union is chairman, Glen Bowles of the UTU is vice-chairman, Stan Horodyski of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen is secretary and Val Greig of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way is treasurer.

The joint union group was formed when the provincial government introduced legislation to ban all strikes or lockouts on the railway for four years.

Labor Minister Allan Williams is expected to meet with both council and B.C. Federation of Labor soon to discuss the railway situation.

Operations are down to two trains daily in each direction compared with the normal three. When layoffs are complete it is expected this will be further reduced to one train each way with a second north and south on alternte days.

The company has said it intends to maintain passenger service. The UTU says it is waging a work-to-rule campaign to back up its contract demands which involve payment of overtime on a daily basis.

Myth: Small foreign cars get much better gas mileage than small Pontiacs.

Fact: Pontiac's new Acadian got better results in fuel economy tests than many imports.

48 mpg highway, 33 mpg city...

That's the gas mileage rating based on U. S. EPA tests for a Pontiac Acadian equipped with the 1.4 litre engine with one-barrel carburetor, manual transmission and 3.70:1 rear axle ratio.

Those tests put Acadian right in the same fuel economy class as the best of the imports.

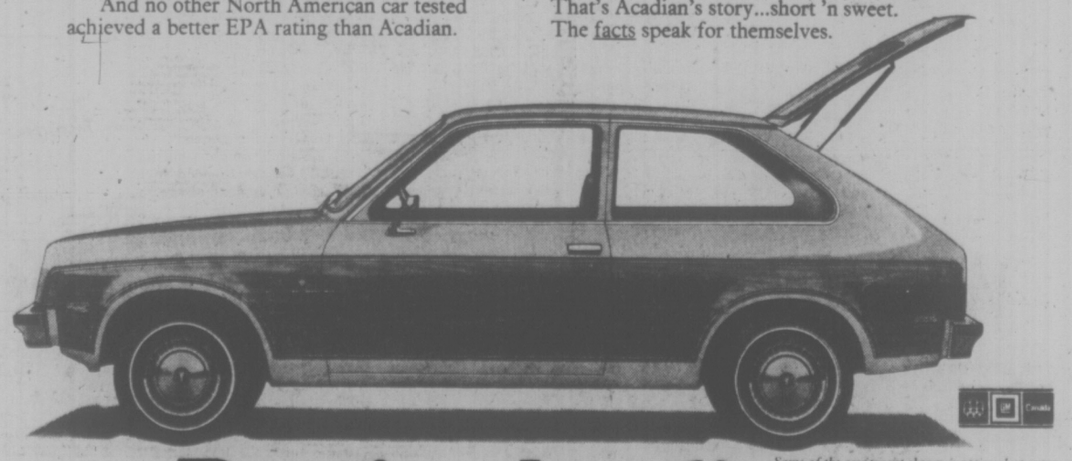
And no other North American car tested achieved a better EPA rating than Acadian.

Remember, these mileage figures are estimates. The mileage you get will vary, depending on the type of driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition, and optional equipment.

Good gas mileage. In a small 1976 Pontiac Hatchback priced lower than many little imports.

That's Acadian's story...short 'n sweet.

The facts speak for themselves.



Some of the equipment shown is optional at extra cost

Convicted Killer Tries Suicide

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — A murderer sentenced Wednesday in Vancouver attempted to take his life hours later at the British Columbia penitentiary where he had been sent to begin his life sentence.

Two-time parole violator Glen Wayne Jansen, 25, was convicted in the strangulation death of Freda Buxbaum, murdered June 14, 1975, in a downtown Vancouver underground parking garage while on her way to buy shoes to wear to her daughter's wedding.

Jansen was discovered by a guard in the penitentiary's protective custody unit, hanging unconscious in his cell by a bedsheet.

He was revived and taken to the prison hospital where he was reported in good condition. He was to remain in the hospital under psychiatric observation for several days.

A British Columbia Supreme Court jury deliberated for 20 minutes before finding Jansen guilty March 30. It recommended that he serve 20 years before becoming eligible for parole consideration.

Justice K. E. Meredith, in passing sentence Wednesday, ordered that Jansen serve the 20-year-term before becoming eligible for parole.

"It was a vile murder beyond my ability to express," the judge said. "The accused was bent on gratification of whatever warped desires he had in mind.

"Part of the self-indulgence was the strangulation itself."

Mr. Justice Meredith said that although he realized the possible effects on Jansen of bad prison conditions over a long period, "this must be put aside in the interests of protecting society."

Jansen was on day parole at a federal community-level correction facility in Vancouver when he committed the murder. His previous record included 1971 convictions for breaking and entering, escaping custody and possession of a stolen car.

In 1972 he received concurrent seven-year terms of robbery and kidnapping. He was on parole on these charges when he murdered Mrs. Buxbaum.

Norbert Buxbaum, husband of the slain woman, said after the sentence that "I'm happy he got the maximum prison sentence but I'd be happier if he was hanged."

MOUNTIE SUSPENDED AFTER SCUFFLE

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — An RCMP constable has been suspended and faces three charges following a weekend dispute between two motorists.

Constable J. H. R. Labrech, 23, is to appear in provincial court May 21 on charges of assault causing bodily harm, possession of a restricted weapon, and pointing a firearm.

Police said that an argument began between two motorists when their cars almost collided on a highway west of here. One of the drivers involved was an off-duty policeman, who was not in uniform, they said.

A scuffle followed and during the argument, a gun was drawn, but not discharged.

Police said they seized a handgun.

Pickets Surround Nanaimo Schools

NANAIMO (CP) — Members of two Canadian Union of Public Employees locals set up pickets today at 42 Nanaimo and district schools in a resumption of the five-week civic strike-lockout dispute.

The Mid-Island Public Employers Association and the union had met Tuesday in Victoria with Labor Minister Allan Williams and agreed to resume negotiations next week.

Teachers at the schools agreed to cross the picket lines for classes today, said Tom Krall, a spokesman for the teachers.

The strike-lockout has affected schools, public buildings, parks and bus service.

Laborers in the Nanaimo and Ladysmith parks and recreation departments received $5.53 an hour under the old contract, bus drivers got $6.77 and office workers were paid between $705 and $827 a month.

Nanaimo school board paid its laborers $5.33, tradesmen got $7.40, clerks got between $4.64 and $5.44 an hour and teachers' aides received $4.63 an hour.

1,000 Take Free Flights

Times News Services

By the end of the week, about 1,000 Italian-Canadians will have taken advantage of free flights to Italy to help relatives in the earthquake zone, airline officials in Montreal say.

CP Air and Alitalia have been offering free flights to those who can prove they are from the area in northeastern Italy where a quake killed an estimate 1,000 people a week ago.

Seats on eight CP flights have so far been made available, and a spokesman said a Saturday deadline on free passage might be extended if the demand continues.

Officials ordered 2,250 persons to leave four more villages that were in danger of being engulfed by landslides.

About 15,000 persons are still without adequate shelter, authorities say, and the weather added to the discomfort of those camped in tent cities. More rain and cold was forecast for the rest of the week.

The rain also slowed the crews digging in the debris for missing persons.

With lesser tremors continuing, anonymous leaflets and cars with loudspeakers warned that there would be new quakes within a few days.

Police said these might be the work of criminals trying to lure residents out of their homes so they could rob them.

A dozen persons have so far been arrested for looting.

In Udine, the regional capital which was comparatively undamaged, there was a noticeable increase in the number of tents set up in parks and squares by residents who wanted to be ready and camping equipment stores were mobbed and closed after selling out.

A Communal Sense of Greed

We live in such a fascinating country. Reams of sanctimonious rhetoric are written every day on politician's utterances concerning gun control, capital punishment and the evils of greed. Yet when the federal government announced continuation of the Olympic lottery until 1979 to reduce the games' deficit the provinces howled, not that Ottawa had once promised that the lottery would end with the Olympics, but simply because the renamed Loto-Canada would cut into the profits of provincial lotteries.

Certainly, Ottawa can be criticized for reversing its policy on the lottery. At the popular level the move will be interpreted as another sop to Quebec, aggravating the jealousies that already exist between English and French Canada. But the main provincial concern is speculation on the loss to provincial treasuries. Similar self-interest arguments surface when discussion involves allocation of resource revenues. For all our avowed nationalism and search for a Canadian identity we lack a sense of community. Canadian nationalism does not reach into our pockets. A near perfect example was the federal government's panic in 1971 when the U.S. toyed with reducing Canadian oil imports — at a time when our own reserves were in doubt. Yet we sold for all we're worth, without investigating the consequences, the gravity of which are finally dawning on the country.

Nor is there any question about the morality of the proliferation of government lotteries. Canadians are now paying unprecedented taxes at both federal and provincial levels. It can be argued a lottery is simply a disguised tax that hits hardest at lower income brackets. Yet the lotteries grow in size and prizes. To even partially fund the Olympics or other projects by tempting the citizenry to gamble indicates a certain national cynicism. Ten years ago no B.C. Socred cabinet minister would be caught dead advocating any gambling enterprise. Now Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy is agreeing with the Manitoba health minister that Ottawa has doublecrossed the western provinces. The feds are moving into their territory.

Times change, as does morality. Many of the old tight-lipped values richly deserved their demise. But the competing lotteries, with their promise of instant wealth for a very few, are no different from the numbers racket that does so well in U.S. ghettoes. Not unlike the mafia which preys on poor peoples' greed, federal and provincial governments play a similar game with their citizens. Perhaps it is only realistic to recognize our base human nature. But funding our noble works by appealing to greed and avarice, and then bickering over the proceeds, say something about our elusive national identity. If we ever catch up to it we may not like what we see.

Forgotten Fuel Crisis

It may be hard for British Columbians to imagine, since we live surrounded by trees, but according to a UN agency the real energy crisis in the world today is a shortage of ordinary firewood.

The Canadian government has set 25 per cent as the average a family should spend out of its total income on shelter but in parts of West Africa the average laborer's family now spends at least that much on wood to cook their food. In Nepal, firewood is an expensive item — tripled in the last couple of years. It was then a job of an hour or two to collect enough wood. Now it takes one an entire day, mostly to walk the longer and longer distances to where wood is still available.

In Upper Volta in Africa, all the trees for 45 miles around the capital city have been cut down and burned for fuel.

These amazing statistics are from a report by Erik Eckholm for the UN Environment Program, an international agency run out of Nairobi (initially by Canadian Maurice Strong) to work on environmental problems. UNEP seeks to dramatize the crisis in the Third World with World Environment Day on June 5. We who are familiar with a diversified forest industry which uses everything but the stump to produce a huge range of useful wood products find it a jolt to be informed that half of the trees cut down in the world are used just as firewood.

As Eckholm notes, "for people who already live on the poverty line, this fuel crisis does not mean leaving the car in the garage on Sundays or turning down the central heating a few degrees. Firewood is a basic need."

And desperate people do not engage in "selective logging" — everything is stripped, thus creating deserts in formerly productive semi-arid regions, much like the infamous dust bowls of the North American plains in the 1930s.

As a short term solution, third world families are burning dried animal dung as fuel. It is a double dilemma. Cutting trees down degrades the soil; burning dung removes a valuable fertilizer. Erosion washes soil into rivers and irrigation systems, affecting marine life and dam reservoirs. Destruction of forests also means the destruction of many species of wildlife. It is a chain of ever more serious consequences.

Eckholm believes the solution is partly massive reforestation but primarily providing a simple new means of heating a family's evening meal. The most promising system seems to be a "bio-gas cooker" utilizing methane gas produced by decomposing manure and other organic wastes. Some 8,000 such plants are now used in India, the country which has carried on most of the research and development of the device. But there are half a million villages on the sub-continent alone which need them.

"A tiny fraction of the research now devoted to armaments could almost certainly help make the vital breakthrough and enable solar stoves and bio-gas cookers, or combinations of the two, to be made cheaply and locally."

Trials of the two systems, along with others using wind power, are now being carried out with UNEP help. It is in our interest as well as the third world's that the "forgotten fuel crisis" be alleviated soon, for with further mass deforestation the earth's "lungs" stand in danger of grave impairment.

Eckholm notes that a hectare (about 2½ acres) of wooded land each year removes four tons of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere and returns more than two tons of oxygen. Even a slight increase in carbon dioxide in the atmosphere could have drastic effects, perhaps heating up the earth's envelope of air and causing the polar ice caps to melt.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

A Debate for Historians

As an incident of politics the final breach between Pierre Trudeau and John Turner will soon be forgotten by the public in the rush of the daily news. But historians will remember it as a clash of social philosophies more significant than it looked in yesterday's headlines because it struck at the basic issues facing Canadians and all mankind.

Most of the comment on this strange affair merely elaborates the obvious. That Turner has abandoned his political career or he would not have become a director of some great business corporations, that he might be available for the prime minister's office some day if the nation calls him, that the Trudeau government has been gravely weakened by his departure, and that the two men never belonged in the same cabinet—all this is too clear to need elaboration.

Mistaken Motives

But it misses the main point wich will be found toward the end of Turner's recent declaration of faith:

"When the prime minister warns us that we must change our attitudes I doubt that we can change men's motives, including the drive for material betterment. But I believe we can make these motives work for us . . . so that they will pull us towards the realization of the public interest and hopes of people everywhere."

Trudeau's main point, throughout his many rambling monologues, seems to be just the opposite. He thinks that our mistaken motives, and our drive for material betterment, if they are not curbed, will gut a tiny, overcrowded planet and lead to ultimate disaster.

Turner does not tell us how our motives can be made to work for the public interest because he does not know. Nor does Trudeau. Like all men in an age of world-wide revolution they grope for the light at the end of a very long, dark tunnel and are unlikely to find it during their lifetime.

While he is groping Trudeau sees the state as the sole instrument powerful enough to redirect our motives, temper our greed and reconcile the quarreling giants of society when the forces of the free market no longer work.

Turner replies that the forces don't work "because they are not permitted to work" and "democracy has become a prisoner of its own success." If he has not yet perceived a way of rescuing the prisoner he sees no substitute for the market if society is to remain free. In the genial simplicities and misleading labels of politics Trudeau is represented by his enemies as a subtle conspirator who plans to erect a new authoritarian society (as if he had the power to do so when he will be lucky even to win another election).

Turner's enemies will try to represent him as the spokesman and glamor boy of big business, the apologist of corporate greed — even if he sacrificed his own drive for material betterment to years of public service while Trudeau, who doubts the pleasures of affluence, enjoys his inherited wealth.

These caricatures of two eminent Canadians are quite absurd since both of them are aiming at the same target of maximum human happiness. They differ only on the nature of happiness itself and the best method of achieving it — a philosophical argument as old civilization but new in the sense that civilization now confronts a question unforeseen before our time. The question is how much affluence we can afford with our limited global resources and exploding population, and how it shall be distributed.

That question is described more clearly than Trudeau and Turner have described it by Edward Crankshaw, the distinguished British journalist and historian who has no interest in Canadian politics but whose words deserve our attention.

Hesitating to take issue with "one of the outstanding great men of the age," Crankshaw suspects that Alexandr Solzhenitsyn, the heroic anti-Communist Russian, does not really understand the free society of the west which he constantly rebukes for its weakness. To Crankshaw it appears worse indeed than Solzhenitsyn supposes.

"The present moral collapse," says Crankshaw, "is so radical and universal that it surely must presage some very great change unles the whole development of western history has broken off . . . All things come to an end and perhaps it is the turn of the west itself to come to an end."

Still, Crankshaw believes that "we shall emerge battered, but at least partly purged, on the approaches of a new society."

Birds of Passage

A new society. That is what Trudeau has been talking about, though mostly in riddles which he cannot solve. Turner is too wise to imagine that society will not change, though he prefers to change it through the old reliable mechanism of the market and man's unchanging motives, their drive for material betterment.

While a new society of some kind is emerging day by day, the dispute of method, and the true nature of happiness, has not been settled, or much affected, by Turner's retirement to business or Trudeau's attempt to revive a pretty sick government.

But if both men, like all men, are brief birds of passage through history, they symbolize, however vaguely, certain ideas and forces far larger than themselves and sure to outlast them. Their argument (grossly over-simplified here) will thus interest historians far more than a personal breach, inevitable from the start, and all the paltry political gossip surrounding it.

Delays

In the December provincial election, I, as a candidate, set out in my platform various priorities. In this way the voter could choose the representative who would serve them best. One of my priorities, because I live in the area concerned, was an immediate improvement in the Trans-Canada Highway, and the old Island Highway, and more efficient public transportation. The Ker Priestman study showed that there is a definite need for such improvement.

However, it is not to be. Our elected representatives in their great almighty wisdom have decided not to widen the Trans-Canada, no funds allocated.

One should not place all the blame on the present administration. Some of it belongs to the former government which should have allocated funds.

We have a dangerous situation now. It is going to become volatile. One only has to drive around the Metchosin and Colwood area to see the developments under way, which are going to add much more traffic and create greater congestion and hence greater hazard.

Ambulance service is slowed down because on parts of the highway it is difficult and again dangerous to pull over onto the soft shoulder when travelling over 50 miles per hour.

Trucking firms face financial loss, because of the extra time consumed in traffic congestion and last, but not by any means least, the poor old commuter faces bumper-to-bumper traffic every day of the week.

As I cannot speak for you, the Esquimalt riding voter, I urge you to write to your MLA — Lyle Kahl, and request him to bring to the attention of Highways Minister Alex Fraser this most unsatisfactory situation and ask that it be rectified at the earliest possible time. — Thelma M. Dawson, 120 Burnett Road.

Sell It All!

Soon the Princess Marguerite will be sold and, frankly, I am greatly relieved. She is an old and rusty tub, and not expected to generate much revenue. Let's palm her off on free enterprise, and we can be confident that the new owners will not only manage a handsome profit out of her operation, but pay taxes to boot.

Fortunately, our leaders will be with us for a long, long time. In due course they will focus their attention on many other money-losing follies and swiftly correct past errors. A couple of samples:

Sell the whole ferry fleet, ship by ship. This ferry business has never made a nickel and we no longer can afford to subsidize personal luxury cruises. Even if the fares should double again next year it is unlikely that the ill-conceived venture will ever produce much money, sandwich vending machines notwithstanding. Let us not forget our motto: What is good for private enterprise is good for British Columbians.

Bordering mercantile insanity, however, are our jails. They have not made a buck in ages. It must cost something like $1,000 a month to shelter, feed, supervise, groom and entertain each convict, and that does not yet allow for the amortization of the buildings, the interest on the initial investment, the loss of taxation revenue on the property, and the acquisition of jig-saw puzzles.

I suggest we put the inmates on the pay-as-you-utter-penitence (PAYUP for short) system, with each and every convict to pay his or her fair share. Let them be gainfully employed (for minimum salary), especially in the construction of toll bridges, parking meters, and more jails, and let them carry their proper ratio of the expenses. If, after deductions for taxes, work clothes and voluntary political campaign donations to the Socred party, they fall behind in their cost-shared contributions, we'll keep them in there until they catch up.

That will make our streets safe again and allow us to pay our provincial leaders a better salary. After all, they are not in the government business for their health.—Wilf Wlochal, 310 St. Lawrence Street.

Deceptive

Few people realize by hook or crook, big business and the capitalist press including many other measures are behind and before Social Credit. Millions had to be spent at all cost to get the NDP out of office. The land freeze, the rent freeze, upped mining royalites, interest rates down to five and six per cent for low income groups only, minimum wages $1.50 to $3.00 per hour, taking over car insurance, and other measures really hurt big business.

Bill Bennett boasted in his big ads about curing B.C.'s ills, putting the 100,000 unemployed back to work. He has added 3,000 more unemployed since he took power, crying and blaming inflation on the NDP, naturally.

Another boasting of his before elections was to spend between $500 million, and get the money out of a stone, promising the Indians $100 million.

His cunningly devised coverup before the election — not honest enough to tell the people about our lost lumber and mining markets, the world-wide depression, and the effect on our economy, our high interest rates, going up and up, choking our economy to a standstill.

Barrett stopped giving our timber rights away, raise gas prices to the U.S. from 32 cents to $1.60 per thousand cubic feet, coal to Japan from 10 cents to $1 per ton. He saved Ocean Falls and Panco Poultry farm from closing down, kept the Canadian Cellulose pulp mills from the hands of foreign investors. Hundreds of people were kept working.

Barrett paid $90 million of former debt on the Columbia River treaty dam, with several hundred million yet to be paid to the U.S., the debt of the former Social Credit.

Bennett is constantly arguing or crying about the provincial deficit. If he is honest enough, he will bring up the income of the province to the people at the same time — $480 million alone from the I.C.B.C., if it works out as he planned.

The $181 million deficit he raves about is in the province and working. Everybody should have paid more insurance year by year, then there would be no deficit. Barrett did not throw it down a hole as Bennett cunnugly tries to make people believe. An unbelievable deception.

The people whom Bill Bennett fooled and deluded, are getting back the true character of the man they voted to rule them, by the insurance rates now and 13 per cent interest.

By his fruits ye shall know him — Charles E. Hanson, Sidney.

Professional Days

It astounds us to hear that our children will have yet another day off school, as May 7 and 14 have been designated as Teachers' Professional Days.

What exactly happens on Professional Days? Let us optimistically assume they are designated to up-date and improve the teaching methods of our teachers. Our cynicism, however, asks why these days happen to fall on a Friday and what the attendance rates are. An extra three long weekends with pay anyone? (The last professional day this year was Feb. 27). Surely, two months in the summer, one week at Christmas, one week for spring break, plus the other long weekends that the rest of us mortals enjoy, are enough time to work on self-improvement?

No offence intended to those many dedicated and hard-working teachers, who, incidentally, do not need professional days to improve their teaching. — Konrad and Gerda Feldmann, 4768 William Head Road.

Leonard Peltier

Thank you for the coverage given to the Victoria rally to support Leonard Peltier, the Oglala Sioux who seeks political asylum in Canada.

We wish to point out that Peltier is innocent of all charges against him until proven guilty and should not have been subjected to shackles and such extremely heavily armed guard en route from Oakala to court. He has no criminal record but he does have a long and proven performance of helping his people in non-violent ways.

The main accusation against him is that he was involved in the shooting of two F.B.I. Agents in the Pine Ridge Reservation in South Dakota in June, 1973. Although there appear to have been no witnesses to this shooting, the FBI very soon issued warrants for four Indians, including Peltier.

Some reports indicate that these men were not involved in any way and, in fact, may have been elsewhere at the time of the incident. (We refer you to the Akwesasne Notes, the newspaper of the Mohawk nation, Vol. 8. No. 1. Spring editon. Canadian office: R.R. 3. Cornwall, Ontario.)

We wish to point out that according to our laws in this country, political asylum has been granted to people from a variety of countries. There is a precedent set where North American Indians are concerned and it was set exactly 100 years ago when Sitting Bull and his band of Sioux were granted asylum in our country. — Joan Gould 228 Memorial Crescent; Verna and Ron Willis, 1745 Lillian Street; Dorothy Webster, 931 Bank Street; John and Meira Beavan, 937 Marchant Street.

Confusing Rates

In connection with all the publicity about the new ferry rates being doubled and tripled, looking over the new quoted prices it appears strange to me that on Tuesday, May 20, 1975, my wife and I crossed from Swartz Bay to Tsawwassen in a small Mazda station wagon and paid charges of $7.

Just after mid-day on Sunday, June 22, 1976, we returned via the same route at a cost of $9, driving the same automobile. Under the new schedule would we be liable to double these rates? It is all most confusing — and expensive.—Keith H. Whyte, 53-2500 Florence Lake Road.

Economic 'Marriage' Must Be Made to Work

By BRYCE MACKASEY

(Excerpts from notes for a recent speech to the Canadian Club in Montreal by the postmaster-general and minister of consumer affairs.)

A law of conflict states that the longer it goes on the more the antagonists come to resemble each other.

We still talk of free enterprise but we all know it's a mix. In part a privately-run production system, in part a publicly-run distribution system. A free enterprise corporate structure wedded to a welfare state. Capitalist production and socialist distribution in a none-too-compatible marriage of convenince. And unless we resolve the conflict and make the marriage work I doubt that democracy can survive this generation.

. . . Society's marriage was stable enough as long as our income was growing.

But then the economy stopped growing. People had begun to realize that some of our growth has social debits, like contaminated water and air and unsafe products and plants, that no one had bothered to cost-account.

The reaction burdened business with higher costs at about the same time that the Arabs started applying what they'd learned at Harvard Business School. Corporate incomes dropped while the welfare bills kept rising and this faces us with the paradox of our age: if you want a thicker wallet, take out all the credit cards.

We didn't do it.

None of us showed the necessary restraint, neither governments, public, unions nor corporations. Socialism went on creating a new class, the down and ins, and capitalism managed to keep prices rising while output was falling. Business and government began to compete for revenue, and now the marriage is splitting up over money.

Spokesmen for free enterprise are decrying the welfare state. They're calling for cuts in government spending unless the spending is on them. Leave the private sector alone, they tell us, and everything will be fine.

Opponents reply that private rights can turn into public wrongs. They point to fraud, thalidomide, price-fixing and bribery, to the wasting of scarce resources through planned obsolescence, and the over-producing of unnecessary "necessities."

This hostility has been polarizing society. More and more the ideology of free enterprise is conflicting with the social ideology of the community: in demands for corporate responsibility, a higher quality of life, better health care and education, a more equal sharing of wealth.

A new class struggle, broadened and upgraded.

The result: more government intervention, more business restriction, and a further loss of confidence in us both. Investment has been falling off. We aren't creating enough jobs. And now, in addition to pillorying free enterprise for its sins, we're questioning its virture, its vital essence, its raison d'etre of efficiency. We're casting a shadow of doubt right across a system that runs on faith.

A triumph of emotion over reason.

We resolve this conflict by pressuring the government to step in and then complaining that government is too big. We're building a huge bureaucracy that pre-empts individual division-making and paralyses society as much as it rationalizes it. No one voted in the market economy. But we're sure voting it out.

In classical economics, reform is an economic drag. But Gunnar Myrdal, the emjnent Swedish economist, points out that this is largely opinion, with little fact to support it. It's simply assumed that the price of reform is lower productivity.

Productivity is certainly not what it was or what it could be. The yearly increase in output per worker has fallen from 3.5 per cent in the Sixties to 2.4 per cent in the Seventies. Our production over the past decade rose 58 per cent while Sweden's went up 137 per cent and Japan's 118 per cent.

But is this the price of reform or the price of success? Our per capita income is now almost $6,900, well above Sweden's or Japan's. Our consumption is slowing while savings are high not just because prices are rising but because our homes are already stuffed with goods.

And productivity is lower mainly because we've been so productive that a stream of surplus workers are migrating into the service sector where productivity isn't something to brag about.

Our high unemployment figures may measure frustration but not decline. They're a byproduct of efficiency, not failure.

It's a myth that social reform checks growth. On the contrary, it fuels it. Cheques for pensions, welfare and unemployment insurance are turned at once into purchasing power by people who live hand to mouth. Education has built a reserve of professional knowhow and technical skill, the foundation for advance on every front. Health care is cheap insurance against loss of productivity and penal reform turns parasites into producers.

Reform is not only good economics, it's an enormous safety valve. Social conditions in many countries threaten political upheaval. But as the Ford Motor Company's chief economist said last month, "Unemployment insurance and welfare are two reasons why there isn't blood on the streets here."

The stability of free enterprise depends on the welfare state. On the other hand, it's free enterprise that pays for all reform. It's the countries with the highest degree of freedom in their production — countries like Sweden, Canada, and the United States — that enjoy the highest standards of socialized consumption. Each system underwrites the other.

Yet each sabotages the other, and with it, society.

The limits of free enterprise are now being set by society in terms of ethics and social accountability. The limits of social reform are set by what we can afford.

Twenty years ago we had hopes. Ten years ago, expectations. Today, demands. There's an old law of human nature: the more you get, the more you want — and it's widening the gap between what we can afford and what we want.

We can't afford to go on increasing our annual transfer payments at a higher rate than our gross national product. We can't afford total justice or a completely clean environment. We can't afford an absolute equality.

All economists since Adam Smith are agreed on this one point: the success of every society from Rome to the United States has depended on the accumulation of capital, on how much more we produce than we consume, and how much of those savings we invest in plant and machinery that give us more productivity, jobs and new capital.

Capital is the key to both a flourishing welfare state and a healthy free enterprise economy. We have to replace outdated plants and worn-out machinery. It takes $15,000 to $25,000 to create a job for a manual worker, and up to a quarter of a million in an industry like oil.

According to an estimate by the Economic Council of Canada, our capital needs in the next 10 years, in current dollars, could run as high as $860-billion.

But energy payments are flowing out in a kind of capital hemorrhage. The recession was a symptom of capital anemia. Our present rate of savings is some 3 per cent short of our needs and credit in international markets is tight. If we go on redistributing more wealth than we earn, we'll pile up debt, refire inflation just as our policies are taking hold and crowd out the private investment that pays for the things we want and need.

As we face this capital crunch I hear businessmen saying, "Cut back on welfare and transfer payments." But a country whose living standards are falling faces more unrest than a much poorer country whose living standards are rising.

Instead of denouncing all reform as socialist iniquity, perhaps businessmen should be telling us how to improve it.

It doesn't make sense . . . to let bank managers and generals draw unemployment insurance.

It doesn't make sense to pour funds into welfare to fatten the welfare bureaucracy. A case can be made that the growing number of well-paid social workers actually adds to income inequality.

It doesn't make sense to train young people for non-existent jobs.

It doesn't make sense that we have some 60 different brands of detergent and a shortage of plants to remove it from our water.

And it doesn't make sense for bureaucrats to do what businessmen do better. We've a lot of good people in government but they don't make the best producers. Their budgets are based on out-of-date programs, a guarantee of waste.

Free enterprise has been maturing for more than 200 years. Most of our social programs began in this century. Business leaders have the experience with motivation and management to help reshape social policies that block economic growth, to redesign social programs with incentives and cost controls.

We've come a long way in government and we're overdue for a stocktaking.

We need to discourage unneeded growth in both government and free enterprise — in bureaucratic make-work and new brands of plastic grass. And it seems to me we could do this, and take up some slack in jobs, by channelling private resources into public problem areas.

We'd need incentives for corporations to experiment and operate in areas that are now the preserve of government, but the answer to that is simple: make it pay. Harness the means of the market to social ends.

We need incentives for corporations and citizens to invest, to produce, to conserve, to retrain, to work and achieve. But we also need security when they fail. If all those with vested interests in our present hodgepodge of programs could agree on their replacement by a guaranteed annual wage, we'd have a poverty level floor that no one could fall below.

We'd have, in effect, two non-conflicting economies. A lower economy of adequate food and shelter and medical care. A higher economy of swimming pools, Chivas Regal, and foreign travel. A subsistence economy, ours by right, and a luxury economy, ours by effort.

We need more equality — but not the kind that kills meritocracy. Equality of opportunity, not the equality of result that denies the truth of unequal effort and merit.

It's time we tuned in on people as humans instead of just as consumers . . . Free enterprise should validate itself by its striking success in bettering the lot of humanity.

The real justification for capitalism is socialist distribution.

It's time both parties took off their blinkers. The words socialism and capitalism no longer mean what they did. Corporations move toward monopoly in the name of collectivism. Left and right are no longer relevant terms as ideologies.

Like it or not, free enterprise and the welfare state are married. The public wants what only both can give.

A Crisis for Canadian TV

TORONTO STAR
An Editorial

Canadian programming on television is facing a crisis — while its costs continue to go up its share of the total television audience is going down. And new technologies, such as pay-TV, broadcasting from satellites and the expected use of video cassettes could make the situation even worse.

That's why Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve told the broadcasting industry recently that Ottawa is ready to reverse its policy of the past eight years and consider allowing the same people to own both television stations and cable systems. Belatedly — and perhaps too late — Ottawa now recognizes that the flow of money from cable companies should be used to help finance the cost of Canadian programs.

The dangers to Canada from a steady diet of U.S. programs were outlined recently by Canadian Broadcasting Corp. President Al Johnson in a speech to the Canadian Club here.

"Watching American programming is not just a matter of learning the names of American places and personalities and hearing about American events. It is a matter of absorbing American interpretations of events, of soaking up the value system of American metropolitan society and of coming to expect Canadian traditions and institutions to look and behave as if they were American traditions and institutions," Johnson said.

And that is what could easily happen. According to CBC estimates, English Canadians already spend more than two thirds of their time watching American programs. Of course Canadians watch Canadian programs as well — such as Canadian sports, news and public affairs. But this is only incidental.

"What we have in effect is an American broadcasting system with a Canadian supplement," as Vancouver author Herschel Hardin puts it.

Healthy national television networks are vital because broadcasting is the principal way Canadians from coast to coast can share their culture.

But cable television has made this a lot harder. While picking signals up from the air, including many of them from the U.S., and giving Canadian viewers many more channels to choose from, cable television has also fragmented the Canadian audience, making it harder for Canadian stations to get advertising dollars to finance Canadian programs.

Cable television has done little to aid the cause of Canadian programming. But for Ottawa's policy that television station owners could not own cable systems, the revenues from cable could have been used over the past eight years to help finance Canadian programs. However, that opportunity was lost.

While a lack of money is not the only problem for Canadian programming, it is important. A U.S. TV network spends at least three times as much to produce an hour of television as the CBC does.

In her speech the other day, Mrs. Sauve showed that Ottawa finally recognizes we need better methods to get more money, including cable television money, into Canadian programming.

Her remedy, to change the rules so that station owners can also own cable systems, may be a case of too little too late.

She should not stop there. Other ways must also be found to increase the flow of money into Canadian television programs, such as permitting Canadian Film Development Corp. funds to be used to produce Canadian television films.

Moreover, with pay-TV imminent some way will have to be found to include Canadian content and use the new revenues to support Canadian programming.

Since television is the major form of national communications we have in Canada the imagination of Ottawa, the broadcasting industry and program producers is needed to find new ways to boost Canadian programming.

Sock It to the Agamids

harry bruce

On a recent afternoon in the Commons, the prime minister called opposition members hyenas and donkeys; Tory Patrick Nowlan called Liberals horse's asses and the Liberal whip a rabbit; and New Democrat Tommy Douglas likened Energy Minister Gillespie to a sucker caught on a line cast by the oil industry.

All of this is shocking evidence of the modern decline in the quality of debate in the most important chamber in the land. Hyenas, donkeys and suckers, indeed. What a paucity of imagination afflicts the House in these dire times!

There's little wonder the people are losing respect for the Commons when the best an MP can come up with as a label for his enemies is a cliche such as "horse's asses." Have these fellows never heard of the snail, slug, newt, toad, sloth, jungle babbler, tit-babbler, Oriental Stink badger, baboon, booklouse, blue-faced boobie, seasquirt, coot, dik-dik, dung beetle, dealfish, clown fish or hagfish?

How can they be so ignorant of the opportunities for brilliant insult that lurk among the lifestyles of butcher-birds, cackling geese, sore-eyed pigeons, double-headed lizards, red-tailed maggots, goatsuckers, lily-trotters and Pluto monkeys?

Do they not know that, as my Encyclopedia of Animals in Color (Octopus Books, London, 1972) so plainly states, sponges are a group of animals who went out on an evolutionary limb; a sea anemone is a hollow bag, and the term "reptile" embraces almost anything of moderate size that crawls?

To raise the quality of parliamentary invective to a level worthy of respect by all Canadians, I've used the encyclopedia to help me compile a handy MPs' guide to animal insults. Members of every political hue may feel free to use the guide. Even agamids. (Agamids are lizards with forked tongues and the ability to change color depending on temperature, personal mood and a sense of the expedient.)

Aardvark: The word is Afrikaans for "earth pig." The creature itself is a burrowing mammal. Its tough grey skin is sparsely covered with hair. Its head is long and narrow with a round muzzle and big donkey's ears.

Addax: An antelope which, like masters of the filibuster, has a remarkable ability to tolerate high temperatures without significant water-loss.

Angwantibo: A mammal which, when it is not hanging from a tree wondering which side is up, walks with "a deliberate, clasping pace, its hands and feet acting like pincers."

Anis: Three species of cuckoos. They're very sociable and move about in groups within a territory. Strong regional orientation.

Assassin Bugs: Known, too, as kissing bugs, they survive by sucking blood out of insects, animals and sleeping voters.

Bandy-bandy: A small, venomous snake which, when threatened, invariably throws its body into a series of stiff loops.

Boomslang: A large, venomous snake which, when threatened, first runs and then, when cornered, inflates its throat to make its head appear huge and lunges at its enemy with gaping jaws.

Bears: Small ears, small eyes, good sense of smell, poor vision.

Bellbirds: Birds who sound like the monotonous tolling of a large bell.

Brainfever bird: A cuckoo whose incessant calling, specially in hot weather, drives men mad.

Bushdog: A dog who can make only two sounds, an incessant high-pitched squeak and, after a fight, a piercing screech.

Bustards: Birds who don't care what you say about them in print as long as you spell their names properly.

Chuckwallwas: Lizard-like creatures who, when threatened, run into a rock crevice and inflate themselves till it's impossible to remove them except by due electoral process.

Cocks of the Rock: Bizarre birds who put on "displays" in clearings known as "courts." They adopt immobile, trance-like postures lasting for several minutes. These displays are social affairs involving several males, but very little is known about the participation of the females.

Death-Watch Beetle: It makes a distinctive tapping noise by banging its head against wood, apparently when sexually excited. One finds infestations only in buildings in which the dimensional timbers were installed many generations ago. Their influence is declining.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

John Edward Wonnacott, 28, who has spent only six months of his 12 adult years outside institutions, was sentenced Wednesday in Victoria provincial court to four more years in prison — and thus able to clear up the last charges against him.

The sentence was imposed by Judge William Ostler, who noted Wonnacott had an unhappy childhood but was "a danger to the community" because of a 12-year record which included four other escapes and numerous other serious crimes.

Wonnacott's last major sentence was 10 years imposed in December, 1972, in Vancouver for three robberies. Before arriving at William Head in 1975, Wonnacott drew an additional 18 months for an escape.

Then he escaped Nov. 26 from William Head and broke into a North Saanich home and drove dangerously the next day in a chase which led to his recapture and which saw three police cars damaged.

His sentences Wednesday were for those events — an extra 18 months for the escape and 2½ years on top of that for the break-in and dangerous driving.

Wonnacott was in Wilkinson Road jail after his recapture and escaped from there Dec. 16. During 40 hours of freedom, he committed a robbery and other offences at Nanaimo. His sentences for those were five more years at Nanaimo and 18 more months for the Dec. 16 escape.

So his total time since December, 1972, has been 10 years for the robberies, five years for the Nanaimo offences, 2½ years for the break-in and driving and three separate 18-month terms for escaping — a total of 22 years. Sources said prison authorities might decide some of the terms were concurrent.

In the court section of Judge Blake Allan, Victoria area resident Carol Marie George, 25, address not known, collapsed suddenly as she was deciding what to do about five Victoria charges against her.

Court adjourned so an ambulance crew could take her to hospital but she had recovered and was talking to court officers as she was taken out. A jail matron who escorted Ms. George to court said she had a history of epilepsy.

The charges included one of uttering, two of false pretences and two of meter offences. All were remanded by Allan to this morning when Ms. George is expected to return.

Allan set surety bail of $1,000 for Robert George Gibb, 37, of 1331 Pandora, one of two men charged with a Victoria house break-in with intent and dangerous use of a firearm May 1. The other man has already been released on bail and both have chosen trial by judge and jury with their preliminary hearing set for Aug. 30.

In traffic court, Sooke area resident Robert Warren Harwood, 33, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving May 1 in Sooke and was sentenced by Judge Harold Alder to 14 days in jail.

Ronald Schiller, 55, of West Coast Road, was fined $350 Wednesday after pleading guilty to a Sooke charge of impaired driving April 25.

Robert Van Humbeck, 50, of 1207 Colville, pleaded guilty to a Saanich charge of refusing to take a breath-analysis test Jan. 15 and was fined $200.

RCMP Dumped 70 Tap Plans

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP scrapped plans to use wiretaps in 70 cases in the past year, fearing the law would force them to tip their hand to those under investigation, the Commons justice committee was told Wednesday.

R C M P Commissioner Maurice Nadon said the 70 were "all major criminal cases."

A typical one would have required 2½ years of surveillance. The 1974 Protection of Privacy Act might have jeopardized the investigations because it contains a provision requiring police to notify within 90 days anyone who has been under electronic surveillance.

Police can get extensions on application to a judge but Commissioner Nadon said the chance that a judge might refuse an extension, thus forcing notification, was too strong to be taken.

Eldon Woolliams (PC-Calgary North) said a defence lawyer in Calgary had learned, through the notification provision, that his line had been tapped.

Wolliams said notification, which would be repealed under the peace-and-security bill, seems to be needed to protect basic rights.

Solicitor-General W a r r e n Allmand said notification is a secondary control. The primary control was that the police had to apply to a judge for permission to wiretap.

Commissioner Nadon said an extensive monitoring system, including the application, monthly reports to Allmand and scrutiny from headquarters ensures against abuse.

Stuart Leggatt (NDP-New Westminster) said only three of about 2,600 applications had been refused.

Leggatt said it would be dangerous to withdraw the police from civil authority altogether in wiretaps.

Top Mountie, Allmand Clash

By IAIN HUNTER
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Gen. Michael Dare, Canada's top security officer, has accepted Prime Minister Trudeau's interpretation of a meeting on security which caused a controversy over RCMP screening of separatists being considered for government posts, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Wednesday.

If Gen. Dare hadn't accepted the prime minister's version, "he would have resigned," Allmand said in an interview.

However, RCMP Commissioner Maurice Nadon, who was at the same meeting of the cabinet committee on security, said there was no difference of opinion between Gen. Dare and Mr. Trudeau.

He told reporters that the misinterpretation was made by some other individuals, not the general or the prime minister, and seemed surprised when told that Trudeau had told the Commons this week that Gen. Dare had made an "honest mistake."

When told that Trudeau had said that the general had misinterpreted the policy, he said he would want to hear the prime minister say that himself.

At this point Allmand, who was standing a few feet away, jumped into the discussion and said screening of potential civil servants was not discussed at the meeting.

MACHINE SOUGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP expect to be able to trace the photostat machine on which a classified "secret" letter was copied and sent to the Toronto Sun, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand told the Commons Wednesday.

The conservatives meantime called for a special inquiry to be set up into all circumstances surrounding the "leak" of the letter and the events following the disclosure of its contents.

Police trying to track down who "leaked" the letter to the Toronto newspaper also expect to be able to lift fingerprints from a copy of the letter and from the envelope found at the newspaper, Allmand said.

Mackasey Slams CEMA

OTTAWA (CP) — The policy rift between Consumer Affairs Minister Bryce Mackasey and Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan flared again in the Commons Wednesday.

If the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency cannot supply enough eggs to food processors, then private industry would be glad to do so, Mackasey said.

Supply from private industry would mean consumers would pay two and a half cents a dozen less for eggs, he added. That is the amount they now pay to CEMA to finance the agency.

The consumer affairs minister's comments came after J a m e s McGrath (PC—St. John's East) charged CEMA with trying to intimidate egg processors.

He said CEMA had told the Farm Products Marketing Board by telegram that it was only able to supply processors with eggs left over after it had supplied domestic consumer markets.

The telegram referred to "present confusion in government policies," referring to the question of whether CEMA should have absolute control over all egg imports as well as domestic suplies.

Action Demanded on Jobless

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition critics pounded the government Wednesday for an alleged lack of policies to deal with rising unemployment as the Commons debated a Progressive Conservative nonconfidence motion over federal handling of the economy.

The motion was easily turned aside by the Liberal majority. All opposition parties voted in favor of it.

Conservative finance critic Sinclair Stevens termed "a disgrace and a tragedy" the fact that 769,000 Canadians were jobless in April.

Stevens called for measures in the May 25 budget to stimulate the private sector.

It is not federal make-work projects that are needed now, but a better investment climate for industry so that jobs will be created, he said.

The non-confidence motion blamed the government for "reckless and, at times, contradictory intervention in the economy that has created an atmosphere of uncertainty and lack of confidence with the public . . ."

Max Saltsman, NDP finance critic, said it was impossible not to support the Conservative motion. But he said he did not agree with all Stevens's criticisms.

He particularly objected to Conservative calls to tighten up unemployment insurance rules, adding it was only payments for unemployment benefits and other social assistance programs that prevented a real depression last year.

The federal budget, he said, should aim to stimulate consumer demand.

If consumers have purchasing power, then private industry will increase production and jobs will be created.

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette also indicated support for the motion.

Professional firms are now required to pick up and complete forms to report to the Anti-Inflation Board.

Who needs the forms

Like all Canadians, professionals are expected to work within the Guidelines of the Anti-Inflation program and comply with its spirit in setting their fees.

The suppliers of 10 categories of professional services are required by law to observe these Guidelines and must fill out compliance forms. These are: architects, consultants, chiropractors, dentists, engineers, lawyers or notaries, medical doctors and surgeons, optometrists, public accountants and veterinarians.

The forms are required of professional firms and self-employed professionals, not the employees of such firms. Employees' incomes are restrained on the same principles as the normal Compensation Guidelines.

How the forms work in the Anti-Inflation program

The forms give the Board the facts it needs to restrain increases in professional fees. The forms measure changes in fees charged and/or income earned. In general, professional fees may be increased only enough to cover increases in the cost of doing business plus allowable increases in the incomes of individuals within the firm as prescribed by the Anti-Inflation Guidelines.

When the forms are due

The first compliance period forms are due 90 days after the end of the first fiscal period completed since the Anti-Inflation program began. However, no professional firm is required to file before June 30, 1976.

Where to get them

The forms (AIB-15) are ready now and should be picked up at your regional Anti-Inflation Board Office or at any Revenue Canada District Taxation Office.

If neither of these offices is near you, telephone the regional AIB office, or your Taxation Office at Zenith 0-4000, and the forms will be forwarded to you immediately.

The forms are included in a kit which also contains a detailed Guide and a Technical Bulletin. If you need further advice on your forms please call: (613) 593-5236.

Would you pay $35 for a shirt? When some popular labels are selling for ¼ of that, how can COUNTESS MARA credibly ask for $25-$35?
The COUNTESS MARA reputation has been long established in the quality neckwear and casual shirt field. Their distinctive logo of a coronet and initials has been worn proudly for a number of years by men who demand quality fabrics and fashionable patterns in their clothing furnishings.
Last year this 100% Canadian firm decided the style conscious male was being short changed with inadequate choices in fine dress shirts. They introduced their line using Swiss, Austrian and English imported fabrics. They use nothing but fine 16 stitch to the inch materials.
Their fabrication and styling is also unique. Shoulder seams are a neat single needle construction avoiding the bulk of the conventional ¼" overlap. COUNTESS MARA shirts also have 7 front buttonholes with eight buttons. That's right — a spare matched set button. In addition they guarantee consistent sizing — an increasing rarity in this mass production age.

Choquette Denies Saying MPs Accepted Bribes

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Auguste Choquette Wednesday denied having accused Members of Parliament of taking bribes.

The former Liberal MP said he regretted that his statements had been "magnified" to mean more than the "general philosophy" they really were.

Choquette, however, refused to apologize for or withdraw the remarks when asked to do so by members of the Commons committee on privileges and elections.

"I cannot withdraw what I have not said," he insisted.

Choquette was called before the committee to explain comments he made during the trial of Montreal lawyer Stephen Byer, charged with bribing an immigration officer.

He referred to the alleged bribe of $700 as "nonsense" and is quoted as saying the following in the court record:

"If every person who accepts or receives an indicated amount . . . 50 per cent of parliamentarians would not be allowed to sit. I have practised politics long enough to know that."

Asked to explain his remarks by irate MPs, Mr. Choquette said there was no inference that MPs in the federal Parliament were involved in bribery.

In fact, he said he never used the word bribe.

He had no personal knowledge of any MP taking money in an illegal fashion, he added.

His remarks, he said, were meant to include such things as politicians accepting campaign contributions — something which was perfectly legal but which led to questions by some as to who gave what and why.

Choquette initially appeared to stun the committee when he refused to testify, blaming comments from some members Tuesday that he just wanted publicity.

After some hurried debate by the committee about getting an order from the Commons to force Choquette to testify, the lawyer agreed to answer questions.

The whole thing, he said, was "a tempest in a teacup," exaggerated by the press.

Leonel Beaudoin (SC—Richmond), referring to the court transcript, asked Chcquette if he believed that $700 was a trivial amount.

"It might be trivial in the case of somebody like C. D. Howe late Liberal minister who said 'What's a million?'" Choquette said. "For me, it's a lot of money."

The lawyer then flourished a sheaf of papers and said: "I will refuse to accept any money whatsoever for travelling expenses" from the committee.

The committee decided to dismiss Choquette as a witness but retain the right to recall him, as it studies how the affair should be settled.

Oil and Gas Clamps Set

OTTAWA (FP) — Planned Northern oil and gas regulations will give the federal government the power to order oil companies to start producing for domestic markets, even if contracts have already been signed with United States buyers, according to a confidential cabinet memorandum.

The high cost frontier oil and gas would also have to be sold at then-current wellhead prices — even if companies post money in the process.

NEW PROFITS SYSTEM

OTTAWA (FP) — The federal government's proposed new "revenue sharing" tax system for northern and offshore frontier oil and gas fields will on the average allow an oil company to recover about 175 per cent of its investment in a particular oil or gas field before any substantial profit share will be payable to the federal treasury, according to confidential cabinet memoranda.

The "revenue sharing" tax system is the fiscal heart of the recently-approved federal oil and gas regulations which are to be unveiled to the oil industry next week and which are to be incorporated in legislation later in the year.

Under the new fiscal regime, oil companies will face the tow-tiered system: a 10 per cent flat federal royalty, plus a sliding-scale "profits tax" or revenue sharing tax of 30 per cent to 40 per cent, when applicable.

Quebec Swing For Clark

By ROB BULL
Times Quebec Bureau

QUEBEC — Progressive Conservative leader Joe Clark accused the federal government Wednesday of governing without any real consultation with Canadians.

"I must admit to you," he told a meeting of the Quebec Chamber of Commerce, "My profound concern given the absence of any discussion or consultation on important questions."

"The government reserves for itself the right to deal with these problems without consulting Parliament, intermediate bodies, interested groups and citizens in general.

"There is no public debate and no national consensus."

One of the questions he is most interested in is the nature and level of economic growth the country should be directed towards in the future.

"As far as I'm concerned," he said, "I don't share the opinion of those who favor a stationary economy.

"I think there are now too many Canadians unemployed and too many Canadian poor for us to worry solely about improving the quality of life.

"If we stop our growth, we are either going to establish a kind of permanent poverty for a large number of Canadians or search in vain to redistribute a static national wealth among a growing population.

"I refuse the first hypothesis because it is against our concept of human dignity, and I'm afraid of the second because it could cause serious political and economic trouble to our society.

"But aside from the stationary economy there are other choices which we are offered.

"Doubtless there are few who still believe in the other extreme, that is to say maximal economic growth at any price.

"The majority among us admit the need to fix limits on growth. We accept certain limits to growth the ecological threat of an overextended industrial development.

"We have also been lead to understand that a society's progress cannot be measured solely in terms of gross national product.

"As always," Clark said, "virtue is situated between two extremes . . ."

Maclean's Eyeing Star Role

OTTAWA (CP) Publishers of Maclean's magazine say they expect brisk competition — possibly from the Toronto Star — to fill the gap left by suspension of the Canadian edition of Time magazine.

Donald Campbell, president of Maclean-Hunter Ltd., told the Senate banking committee Wednesday that The Star, publisher of Canada's biggest daily newspaper, could begin its own weekly news magazine to compete with Maclean's.

The suggestion has been denied by officials of The Star.

He and Maclean's publisher Lloyd Hodgkinson also apologized to the committee for a recent company-sponsored newspaper advertisement which said Maclean's was trying to scale down its popularity in rural areas and build circulation in the cities.

They said they did not see the ad before it appeared in several newspapers.

Maclean's would not run a new ad recanting the first message because "the best thing to do is hope it goes away and goes away quickly," he said.

Campbell also said he was "staggered" last Feb. 19 when Time Canada Ltd. offered to sell its 525,000-name subscription list to Maclean's.

The offer was refused, Campbell said, and Time apparently offered the list to one other publisher.

Cheers. We're back.

'Trite Box' Housing

Developer Peter Margetts told Oak Bay council's A committee Wednesday he will consider townhouses for a site overlooking Willows Beach.

Aldermen expressed a lack of enthusiasm for a proposed condominium structure to replace a 2½-storey apartment house at 2612 Thorpe Place, and suggested Margetts revise his proposal.

Ald. John Goult said the committee had not been "too struck with the appearance" of the intended structure, which presented what he called a "trite box approach."

At council meeting Monday, aldermen expressed concern the new building would be higher than the existing one, but Margetts said the total height would be less and the site coverage greater.

Another proposal, for an apartment building on Newport near Windsor being planned by George Wheaton, was referred back to the developer for a plot plan which would be a primary step in negotiating a land-use contract for the structure.

Members also will visit the site for a better appreciation of what would be involved in the development.

Noted Ex-Teacher Dies at 72

Funeral services will be held Friday for Douglas E. Smith, a noted Victoria teacher, who died at home Tuesday night. He was 72.

Born in Winnipeg, he came to Victoria at an early age and taught at Victoria High School from 1938 to 1968 ending his career as head of the English department.

One of his last activities before death was to participate in many of the events of the Victoria High Centenary last weekend.

A keen sailor, he was a long-time member of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

During the Second World War, he served in the Canadian Scottish regiment, as officer in charge of Pacific personnel selection and then overseas. He achieved the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

He is survived by his wife Eleanor at the family home, 3081 Oakdowne, two sons, Alan, executive assistant to the principal of Capilano College, and Brian, the mayor of Oak Bay, and grandchildren.

In addition to teaching for many years at Victoria High, his mother, Edith, and his son, Alan, also taught there.

Funeral services will be held at McCall Brothers funeral chapel Friday at 4 p.m.

Colwood Freeze Studied

The Capital Region Board launched a second effort Wednesday to freeze land development over 1,500 acres in Colwood and Langford until a community plan is in operation later this year.

At the moment approval of subdivisions in the area lies in the hands of the provincial highways department and the board's fear is that it has little sympathy with regional plans.

The 1,500 acres involved lies north and south of Latoria Road and roughly between Happy Valley and Metchosin Roads and the board gave three readings to a bylaw which would temporarily make the minimum parcel in any subdivision 45 acres.

At the centre of the proposed freeze is the 850 acres in the so-called Colwood Development Project, a plan unveiled by Dunhill Development Corporation earlier this year to eventually provide mixed housing for up to 22,000 people.

The project calls for clusters of housing with generous open space between and the board fears that large land owners in the area will hurry housing plans through the highways department which will destroy the balance in the Dunhill-regional plan.

Whether or not the land controls the region wants will be established in time appears to lie with Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis.

The bylaw must now be approved by his department before it can be finally adopted by the board and in the past approval of bylaws by the province has taken months.

'Primary' Heritage Rubble?

Glazier Quits Heritage Group

Victoria Ald. Murray Glazier has resigned from the city's Heritage Advisory Committee, but won't explain why.

His appointment as one of two council representatives on the committee was rescinded by city council today, the motion stating that the action was "on the recommendation of His Worship the Mayor."

Asked Wednesday to comment on the circumstances, Glazier offered little more beside the statement that he had tendered his resignation to Mayor Mike Young.

"I have been agonizing over this for some time and I asked him yesterday to take me off the committee," he said.

It was also on Tuesday, while council was discussing difficulties in communication with the Heritage Advisory Committee, that Glazier criticized the planning department's liaison role with the advisory group.

He inferred that planning department representatives had "lost" pieces of correspondence emanating from the committee.

Did that incident have anything to do with his decison? No, said the alderman, "we've had lots of those before."

His closing comment: "I came to the conclusion it would be better if I was not in the middle of this thing . . . I have been the whipping boy in the whole piece."

He didn't elaborate.

Ald. John Hayes will replace Glazier on the committee.

An industrial designer has asked the city of Victoria to confirm through its own engineering staff his claim that two heritage-designated buildings on Wharf Street are crumbling, unsafe and virtually impossible to renovate.

Ted Bowers says if the city engineer's findings agree with his own, the owners of 1302 and 1304 Wharf — Oakland Industries Ltd. — would like permission to demolish the old buildings and replace them with a new commercial-residential development.

Along with several others on Wharf, the two buildings are officially designated under a city bylaw as heritage structures, which means they cannot be demolished or externally altered in any way without the specific approval of city council.

They appear on the city's "primary" list of outstanding heritage builddings.

The Heritage Conservation Report, published by the city a little over a year ago, gives their construction date as around 1870.

"In scale and texture, these two buildings enhance and support the vintage flavor of Wharf Street," says the report.

"Traces of the original classical mouldings are still visible on 1302. Within the four-bay arched opening of 1304, one can still see the iron shutters which were once a common feature of Wharf Street."

Both structures, the report adds, "require renovation."

In Bowers' letter to the city, however, he points out that both his consulting engineer and architect agree that the buildings are "structurally unsound and not suited to practical rehabilitation."

Besides, he says, "they are of doubtful architectural merit and would hinder optimum site development."

Bowers told the Times today he has been working for the past two or three months on a design approach attempting to rehabilitate the buildings and incorporate them in the over-all site development.

"But our structural engineer points out it is impossible to bring these old buildings up to the standard demanded by the National Building Code — the only solution seems to be to tear them down and start all over again," he said.

He asked who would accept liability if, after renovation, the buildings collapsed and killed someone.

Parts of them, including arches which are not tied to the main structure, are in danger of immediate collapse, he claimed. Mortar in the stone foundations has deteriorated to the point where "basically it can be considered almost a pile of stones."

Bowers said the proposed new development could include commercial space and subsidized senior citizens' apartments.

Whether the city allows demolition or not, the owner has offered to dedicate a waterfront strip at the rear of the property for continuation of the city's harbor promenade concept.

Architectural historian Martin Segger, who is chairman of the city's Heritage Advisory Committee, said today the committee will not make any recommendation until it has seen the city engineer's report of the buildings.

SAANICH AIMING AT RAT CONTROL

Saanich residents with rat problems should phone municipal hall, 386-2241.

The council's public works committee decided Tuesday that Saanich should not distribute rodent poisons because of the legal implications, but municipal staff would inform callers where the poison can be purchased.

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren said he knew of four places where the poison can be bought.

Until the Capital Regional District took over health services Saanich's health department supplied the rat-killer, which was purchased by Saanich.

"The regional district will not accept the responsibility for rodent control.

Saanich's parks department will handle rodent control on public rights-of-way, ditches and public parks.

Robber Ordered To Scoot

An attempted robbery of the Canterbury Inn, 310 Gorge early today was foiled by a desk clerk who told a would-be robber to "get out of here."

Stewart Richardson said he was alone in the office at 2:15 a.m. when a youth wearing a silk stocking over his face walked in, pulled a gun and said "Freeze."

Richardson said he could see a second youth peeking around a pillar outside the front door.

The desk clerk, by pre-arranged signal, alerted the Coachman Motor Inn across the road and then waited for the gunman to make his next move.

But the gunman just stood there, holding the gun in both hands and looking nervously about him, Richardson said.

Finally Richardson ducked behind the counter and as he did shouted "Get out of here."

When he looked up the gunman and his accomplice were gone. He ran to the door and saw them fleeing east on Gorge.

FIRST EXAMPLES of the long-promised 'street furniture" for the Government Street Mall have made their appearance kitty-corner from Eaton's. This week's cool, cloudy weather offers pedestrians little incentive to try out the new curly-back benches set amid cedar planters, but street minstrel Jane Edwards seems to have staked it out as a likely pitch for when the sun returns.

Pass Back U.S. Buck Tourist Traders Told

Victoria merchants can solve the exchange rate problem by accepting U.S. dollars at par but giving change in American bills, Visitors Information Centre president Al Frame said today.

He was commenting on a statement by Mayor Mike Young who said the U.S. dollar should be accepted at par this summer as a courtesy to tourists.

Frame said this would mean a 3 per cent loss which some stores could afford and others could not.

"Whether they wish to absorb this loss is up to them but we feel it would be better to give U.S. change to American visitors. That way merchants can accept American money at par with no loss."

The U.S. dollar is worth only 97.37 cents Canadian at the present time and the trend is downward.

Frame said his association, which runs the Causeway tourist bureau, has discussed the problem at length and decided that it could not ask all merchants to accept a 3 per cent loss in revenue.

He said VIC will urge merchants to put in a large supply of U.S. cash, as well as Canadian, so money can be accepted at par on that basis.

Companies that prefer to give change in Canadian money would have to make their own decision about whether to accept U.S. funds at par.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Jack Hutchins said his association agrees with this stand.

"We cannot ask merchants to take a financial loss on the exchange rate but they can avoid the problem by giving change in U.S. funds," he said.

Hutchins, manager for Simpson-Sears, said his store accumulates U.S. cash in the late spring and retains it to build up the supply of change. By the time the peak season begins, the store has enough U.S. cash on most days to give American change for U.S. bills.

The store also does a large amount of business on American Sears credit cards. The store charges at par and is paid eventually by its Canadian headquarters in Canadian funds.

Hutchins said that in situations where his store must give Canadian change for a U.S. bill, it charges the precise exchange rate in effect that day. The new rate is obtained from local banks each morning.

$25,000 Stakes For Second Riggs Match

Aging tennis hustler Bobby Riggs has challenged a Victoria club player to a $25,000 match here this summer — but will the local guy accept?

"Certainly!" Tony Simnett of the Oak Bay Tennis Club said today.

"We haven't ironed out all the details yet, but I have a sponsor — someone who is prominent in the public eye here in the city — who is prepared to put up the $25,000."

Last June, when Riggs was here to perform during a lacrosse game at Memorial Arena, he included an exhibition tennis match with challenger Simnett.

The American won that 9-5 but collected only $500 for his effort.

When Simnett asked for a rematch, the veteran hustler said he'd agree if the stakes were raised to $25,000.

The Victoria player agreed to that amount at the time and Riggs telephoned Wednesday and asked promoter Edgar Rhomberg to "tell Simnett to put his money where his mouth was" or chicken out.

Riggs, now 58, is a former Wimbledon champion who shot back into the spotlight a few years ago when he went on his anti-Women's Lib campaign by announcing that "any old man could beat the world's best women tennis players."

Vancouver Builders Eye Mattick Farm

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

A large Vancouver development company wants to build on about 375 acres in Saanich's Cordova Bay area which include the former Turner and Mattick farms.

The firm is Daon Development Corporation, which was responsible for many of the highrise developments in North Vancouver and West Vancouver.

It has also built single-family subdivisions in Richmond, Langley and Port Moody.

Company spokesman George Flannagan was in Victoria this week to confer with officials of Ker, Priestman and Associates Ltd. and Willis, Cunliffe, Tait and Co. Ltd.

The developer's initial approach to Saanich council was made in March, the Times has learned.

Flannagan said Saanich's reaction had been "most polite and co-operative."

"We tried to convince council that rather than have a bunch of small developers it would be better to have a controlled plan and do a better job of it," Flannagan said.

He said the development would concentrate on "ground - oriented housing." With such housing, Flannagan said there would probably be a maximum height of three storeys.

Asked if a shopping centre was being considered as part of the project, Flannagan conceded this is a possibility.

Flannagan said it will be at least eight or nine years before the project could be completed.

"We have to solve many problems," he said, "we may have to use a mechanical form of waste water disposal. Then there is Saanich's community plan (still being developed), we will have to integrate our thoughts with that. We will also have to receive co-operation from the Cordova Bay Association."

Ken Fairburn, spokesman for the recently-organized CBA, says his group wants input into the project but is realistic enough to know a development of single-family homes only is not good use of the land.

"It's a big enough site to give them scope," Fairburn said. "We can't hide our heads in the sand but we want decent design and some effect on what is developed."

If the Daon development goes through, it will have to get provincial government approval as well because only 100 acres is available under the present zoning.

Sheriff's Officers Seize Seven C & C Taxicabs

Seven taxicabs belonging to C & C Taxi Service Ltd. of Victoria were seized Wednesday by sheriff's officers in connection with a civil action in B.C. Supreme Court.

Regional sheriff W. A. Lee today declined to name the plaintiff or the sum involved in the judgment, but said the vehicles removed represented only a "small portion" of the firm's total fleet.

"They (C & C) have indicated to us that they will be paying it off today," Lee said, and in that case the taxis will be released and no further action taken by his office.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Is there any record of a mayor of Victoria who subsequently became lieutenant-governor of British Columbia? J.K.M.

A. No, there isn't. But city archivist Ainslie Helmcken, fount of knowledge on Victoria's past, says the closest we came to that situation was in the Barnard brothers. Frank Barnard was lieutenant-governor before and during the First World War, and his brother Harry some years earlier (1904-5) had been mayor of the city. The latter went on to become a senator.

Buses Offer Jouncing View

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Went on that special tour of Victoria attractions with the waitresses and motel employees Wednesday as directed by the city editor, but nobody warned me about double decker buses.

It was my first trip aboard one of 'em and the first thing I discovered is that they sway and bump and rumble something fierce. It is impossible to write anything while they are moving.

Sure I took notes as Don Nixon, the manager of the Visitors Information Centre, told us about the hotels, restaurants, docks and attractions, but I find it is impossible to read my writing.

It was also a bit difficult to concentrate on the subject at hand with branches banging against the window every half block and the uncertainty about whether it would be a power line or telephone cable that would snap first. (None did, but it was close.)

The other thing I discovered about being in the top of a double decker bus — the world doesn't look the same. It's odd looking a fellow Victorian in the eye when he's at the window of his second floor apartment.

So, I didn't get a story out of the trip unless you want to hear about:

— What goes on behind the stone walls in Rockland.

— How many tea parties and beer parties are held in an average afternoon in all parts of the city.

— How many ladies take showers in the middle of the day.

I think the highlight of the afternoon was the woman standing at the window on the second floor of her house in Esquimalt. She sort of did a double take (appropriately) as the double decker came by. And then she started to wave frantically. I got the impression we were the first human faces she had seen all day.

Further down the street there was another lady who also was surprised to see us come by her second-storey window, but I'll spare you the details.

One thing I noticed about being in a double decker bus is that people who normally wouldn't give you the time of day suddenly get an irresistible urge to wave at you. It's sort of a pleasant change and almost makes the bumps worthwhile.

Nixon was our tour guide and he has a good knowledge of the city. His advice to our group was to learn as much about Victoria so we can answer questions when tourists ask.

One thing he said that really made sense was to direct visitors to the nearest parking area so they can see Victoria on foot. They spend more when they are walking around and they are less of a traffic hazard when they are not driving at five miles an hour.

Amen to that.

Dow

Dow Chemical Co. has announced that company president C.B. Branch had been elected chairman, replacing the retiring Carl Gerstacker.

Executive Vice-President Zoltan Merszei had been elected to succeed Branch as president, the company said in Midland, Mich.

Merszei, 53, who is also chairman of Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., was born in Hungary and is a Canadian citizen.

Branch, 60, had served as prsident since February, 1971.

Gerstacker, also 60 has been chairman of Dow Chemical since 1960 He will remain as a director

In his final act as chairman he told the annual stockholders' meeting that Dow's 1974 net had been restated to $5.77 a share from $6.03 reported earlier.

Gerstacker also repeated the company's intention to raise the second-quarter dividend rate to 25 cents a share from 20 cents. The company paid 40 cents in the prior quarter but shareholders approved a two-for-one stock split and an increase in authorized common shares to 500 million from 200 million

Anglo-Bomarc

Anglo-Bomarc Mines Ltd has taken steps to acquire the surface rights to the Idaho land where it is exploring its Hercules silver-lead-zinc prospect, directors have announced.

They say the full purchase price is $870,000 for 3,300 acres of fee-simple deeded land and 50,000 acres of grazing ranch leases. The price is payable over five years.

The directors said the company has paid $25,000 for a 60-day option on the property. To exercise the option it must pay $192,500 on July 1 and then five payments of $130,500 on each January 1 from 1977 to 1981 inclusive.

They said work on the property, located about 105 miles north-west of Boise, was continuing. Present indications were that the mineralized zone was 300 feet wide, 300 feet deep and at least 590 feet long. The zone is open to extension along strike and depth, they said.

Algas

Algas Mineral Enterprises Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Alberta Gas Trunk Line Co. Ltd., has announced it has reached an agreement with major shareholders of Pennant Iuma Oils Ltd., that may lead to a takeover of that firm.

Algas said it has signed an agreement with members of the Redfern family of Midland, Tex., to buy the family's outstanding shares in Pennant for $6 a share if Algas decides to attempt a takeover.

The Redferns hold 48.5 per cent of the outstanding shares in Pennant, an active independent oil and gas explorer in Alberta.

Algas must decide on its takeover by June 11.

U.S. No Longer Wealthiest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Population Reference Bureau says the United States has lost its first place as the world's wealthiest nation.

At $6,640, the U.S. per capita income ranked only fifth in the bureau's latest compilation of population data.

Because of runaway oil prices, it said, the United Arab Emirates ranked highest with $13,500 and Kuwait second with $11,000 even though the two are little different from other so-called developing countries with most of their people living at subsistence levels.

But the U.S. also fell behind Sweden, with $6,720, and Switzerland, with $6,650.

The world's poorest nations were in Asia and Africa. Bhutan, in South Asia, and Mali, in Africa, were at the bottom of the list with a per capita income of only $70.

Although declining birth rates are slowing the growth of the world's population, it still will surpass 6 billion by the end of the century, the bureau said.

Mankind is growing at a yearly rate of 1.8 per cent, and the current population of just over 4 billion will reach 6.2 billion in the year 2000 and will have doubled to over 8 billion by 2014, it said.

"New evidence on population totals and more rapid declines in birth rates than previously projected have resulted in slight downward revisions of some earlier bureau estimates," it said.

The birth rate dropped 1.5 per cent in one year — from 31.5 per cent in 1975 to 30 per cent now.

PRB put the current U.S. population at 215.3 million and said it will reach 262.5 by the year 2000 and will have doubled to 430.6 by 2063.

In its "1976 world population data sheet," it said Latin America and the Caribbean area, which now have a population of 326 million, is growing fastest of the world's major regions — at a yearly rate of 2.8 per cent.

The entire western hemisphere's population of 565 million will reach 900 million by 2000 — an increase of 60 per cent. This includes the U.S., which has the hemisphere's lowest yearly growth rate at 0.8 per cent, and Canada, whose population is growing at 1.3 per cent a year, it said.

Lending Limited By World Bank

WASHINGTON — In response to U.S. fears that the World Bank is growing too big and too powerful, the executive directors of the bank have agreed to limit lending programs in fiscal 1977 to a maximum of $5.8 billion, up only $800 million from fiscal 1976.

But even this increase cannot be attained unless the bank shortens maturities by six months and speeds up repayment schedules.

The $5.8 billion ceiling would include loans through the bank's new "Third Window" operation — loans at interest rates between the bank's soft-loan agency, the International Development Association (IDA).

At U.S. insistence, the bank henceforth will lend money based on an automatic interest formula that will be established every three months. This interest rate will be one-half of a percentage point over average borrowing costs.

The bank has also agreed to conduct a major study of a U.S. proposal for "full-cost coverage," including an analysis of whether bank lending rates should be calculated at the time that loans are actually disbursed, rather than when the commitment is made. This study is to be completed mid-July.

In a brief announcement Monday night, the bank said it's lending rate would rise immediately from 8.5 per cent to 8.85 per cent, and after July 1 would be 0.5 per cent above the "average weighted cost of funds borrowed by the bank in the preceding 12 months."

Bank officials guessed that the rate after July 1 would run between 8.75 per cent and 8.85 per cent.

Behind these seemingly technical changes is the growing concern — not only in the U.S. but in other major industrial countries — that World Bank president Robert S. McNamara's plans for the bank exceeded a scale that conforms with prudent management.

According to U.S. treasury officials, the principle that outstanding loans must not exceed bank capital would limit bank lending in fiscal 1977 to less than $5 billion, "if no changes were made in maturities or repayment terms."

"With those changes, the bank can increase its lending to a maximum of $5.8 billion until there is agreement on another capital increase," officials said. But a decision on when the maximum will rise to $5.8 billion has not yet been made.

Russian Sex Hideaway Reported

MOSCOW (UPI) — A group of Soviet officials have been convicted of spending $500,000 of state money to build a "disgusting Dolce Vita" sex hideway on the Volga, the Literary Gazette said.

The newspaper said Wednesday the officials wined and dined on vodka and sturgeon and imported "hostesses to attend to their sexual whims at palatial quarters decorated with frescoes and marble and guarded by large dogs.

But the "sweet life" finally turned sour.

Literaturnaya Gazeta said 13 persons were sentenced to terms ranging to 15 years imprisonment on charges ranging from embazzlement to rape.

The officials spent more than 365,000 rubles (about $500,000) of state money constructing a custom-built bathhouse, resthouse and small hotel at Cheboksary, 360 miles east of Moscow, which they guarded with fierce dogs and burly bodyguards, the newspaper said.

"They invited women ready to do anything to ensure the cosy atmosphere and arranged for the most beautiful hostesses to work in the bath-house."

"The case revealed a disgusting Dolce Vita for which some persons were ready to do anything," Literaturnaya Gazeta said.

Furniture, Soap and Paint.
They made Laurel Point a landmark.

Yes, Laurel Point has played an important part in Victoria's economy for about a century. Furniture, soap and paint probably sound pretty prosaic to a lot of people, but there are lots of interesting stories behind them.

Jacob Sehl first saw Victoria during the gold rush as a young miner on his way to strike it rich. Instead, he became a prosperous manufacturer of quality furniture. He turned Laurel Point, a "barren, rocky spot", into a beautiful garden surrounding his large factory and stately mansion.

Several years later a young Englishman had his chance to make his dreams come true on Laurel Point. His name was Pendray . . . and the rest is history. Within a year his House of Pendray on Laurel Point was manufacturing paint as well as soap, and paint production became one of the most important industries in Victoria for quite a few years.

Furniture, soap and paint made Laurel Point a landmark in the past - and today Laurel Point is a landmark once again. New townhouses and condominiums soon to be surrounded by a landscaped park form one of three focal points on the Inner Harbour. The Empress Hotel, the Parliament Buildings, and now Laurel Point - an elegant new landmark on Victoria's Inner Harbour.

Western Games Here? Sounds Great . . . But!

Some mid-week musings:

Or did anyone ever stop to figure out the mad whirl of sports where one season piles on top of another before some inaugurals are out the way? The Times is starting another of its public tennis tournaments this week with the application forms being published today and that's only 29 days before the B.C. Lions football team opens its 1976 training camp. Honest! And the Shamrocks have only begun to fight again for what once was theirs — recognition. o, for that matter, have McDonalds in junior lacrosse. Already there is talk of a national double final, the Irish being unbeaten in three games and McDonalds likewise. It was sort of ominous to read in the Shamrock program "the Irish have already served notice they don't intend to finish second two years in a row." Take it which way you will, the club definitely is improved, and so are other teams in the Western Lacrosse Association. This now is tantamount to what was called professional lacrosse in the East last year as witness by the number of pro players now in the West. The game program otherwise was a disgrace and maybe that's why commissioner Roy Burton apologized for their missing numbers, wrong numbers and missing names. This is not fair to the patrons and the clubs should be forced to supply this information or face disciplinary action. It's a simple courtesy called class. Whoever is responsible!

If the refereeing appeared spotty to some, maybe it was at times, but also it just could be that neither the officials nor the players are fully conversant with the new rules and there will be some inconsistency until everyone becomes acclimatized. The interference rule is the real stickler. In the corners it's a penalty; outside, not most of the time unless the infraction is a flagrant one. But this is an excellent move. The delay-of-game call hit both clubs on Tuesday and the change here was overdue too. But what probably is not realized by the fans is that the offending player, when called to give up the ball, must drop it immediately and step back, not forward; and play begins when the other side touches the ball. Toss the ball away and that player is out. Check a player on the other team before he has a chance to play the ball, and tha's a penalty too. The players will soon learn. Then there's another problem for the commissioner. The fans need to be educated. They don't know the rules either.

I see by the papers that the Sports Council of Greater Victoria is all set to go about forming a committee to bid for the 1979 Western Canada Games. If memory serves correctly this possibility was put forth here last summer and discussed previously this year by the inter-municipal committee which has been invited to attend a special Sports Council meeting on the subject at Lambrick Park Sunday at 7:30 p.m. It would be wise for the Sports Council to get the feeling of that committee soonest. If it can.

Because the way some things are going on around our town, any efforts, though well meaning, could be completely wasted. The Victoria Curling Club fiasco — the club being asked to pay more and more rent each year and an issue which has received much press lately, none of it complimentary to Alderman Ron McKenzie, really is ludicrous. The simple fact is that McKenzie has not done his homework. Attempting to squeeze the last penny out of a facility that is providing a healthful recreation for hundreds, especially many elder citizens who comprise the largest seniors' curling club in the world, is inexplicable. This is a well-run club, that has always paid is way, has never proved a financial problem for the city. And it would seem that the work of the directors, staff and many volunteers who help it to show a modest profit (something the city couldn't do, it is humbly suggested) should be hailed and appreciated and not legislated against in this fashion. As for parking on nearby streets, which it was implied was available in lieu of paying a parking fee at the club (another new suggestion), this proves that no study was made. Most free parking in the immediate Curling Club area is of the two-hour duration and, as a curling game takes two hours to play, curlers just can't do both and abide by the law. And if council figures it can get $36,000 out of the curling club site as a parking lot which also was suggested, that won't work either. Not unless there is a full capacity of 100 cars, day and night for 360 out of 365 days and the city doesn't pay out its commission on collections. But that's city hall. Pity.

Bruins Pay For Their Sins

MONTREAL (CP) — Bert Templeton, coach of Hamilton Fincups, has a few words today for critics of his club's power play.

"Everybody says our power play isn't worth a damn," the coach of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior series champions said after his Fincups had demolishtd New Westminster Bruins of the Western Canada Hockey League 8-4 Wednesday night, mainly on the strength of seven goals scored while members of the Bruins were in the penalty box.

The victory earned the Fincups a bye into Sunday's Memorial Cup final.

As a result of the loss the Bruins will meet Quebec Remparts in Friday night's semi-final to determine the Fincups' opponent Sunday.

The Fincups had lost the first game of the series 4-3 to the Remparts last Sunday while the Bruins defeated the Quebec entry 4-2.

So with each team having counted one victory it was necessary to determine which club drew the bye on the strength of goals-for and goals against.

The Hamilton club scored 11 goals and gave up eight, New Westminster were 8-10 while Quebec was 6-7 for their two games.

The Fincups were led to victory by centre Joe Contini with three goals and three assists, and right winger Ric Seiling with two goals and four assists.

Steve Hazlett added a pair for the Fincups while Cal Herd scored one.

New Westminster got a pair of goals from Stan Smyl and one each from Richard Shinske and Brad Maxwell.

The Fincups jumped into a 6-1 lead on five power-play goals in the fight-filled opening 20 minutes, a period that saw referee Marcel Vaillancourt of Sherbrooke, Que., hand out 70 minutes in penalties, including 12 majors for fighting.

The major eruption in the game came at 6:17 of the opening period when Ed Smith, Archie King, Ted Long and Mike Federko of Hamilton, along with Dean Hobbins, Smyl and Maxwell of the Bruins were all given majors for fighting. The Bruins lost Clayton Pachal with a double major for the same infraction in the same brawl. To make matters worse, Barry Beck picked up a major less than a minute later for being the aggressor in another fight.

That left the Bruins two men short.

As a result, the Fincups ran up a 5-0 score against New Westminster's starting goaltender Carey Walker before he was replaced by Glen Hanlon. But Hanlon gave up another power-play goal on the first shot the Fincups had at him. At that point Hamilton led 17-1 in shots.

Contini said the Fincups had followed their game plan.

"We decided it would be foolish to take bad penalties and it paid off . . . Part of the game is aggressiveness, but sometimes you have to pay the price, and tonight, they paid that price."

What A S-Witch For Sox!

By The Associated Press

Make room in the Witches' Hall of Fame for Laurie Cabot.

For 12 days in May and the last seven in April, Boston Red Sox hadn't won a game as Texas Rangers, Kansas City Royals and Cleveland Indians cast 10 consecutive spells over the defending American League champions, the club's longest losing streak since 1960.

Manager Darrell Johnson, at a loss what to do, kept sending the same pitchers out day after losing day.

Then, a Boston radio station hired a witch, Laurie Cabot of Salem, Mass., to do something about the hex.

"I don't know a thing about baseball," she said.

Welcome to the Red Sox, Laurie, who spent 10 games trying to prove that very point.

A slow-starting witch, it took her 11 innings to come up with the right spell. She said incantations are not part of her routine, but rather the use of clairvoyance.

So with the witch sitting behind the Boston dugout in flowing black witch's garb, Doug Griffin, leading off the 12th, blooped a single off Dave LaRoche and, after a sacrifice, so did Cecil Cooper.

That sent Griffin to third and he scored the tie-breaking run on Carl Yastrzemski's long fly. Cooper took third on another bloop hit by Rick Miller and scored on a balk by Tom Buskey, giving the Red Sox a 6-4 victory over the Indians.

Earlier, errors by first baseman John Lowenstein contributed to a pair of unearned Boston runs while Cleveland had one runner cut down at the plate and another at third.

"Those are things that have usually been happening to us," Johnson said. "I'm glad it happened to somebody else for a change."

Cleveland manager Frank Robinson, asked about the use of witchcraft, said: "I don't think that's even worth a comment."

In Wednesday's other American League games, New York Yankees edged Detroit Tigers 7-6, Baltimore Orioles used a grand slam by Reggie Jackson to defeat Milwaukee Brewers 8-6, Kansas City Royals clobbered Minnesota Twins 17-5 and Texas Rangers nipped California Angels 1-0.

In the National League, Andy Messersmith, Atlanta's million-dollar baby, lost another game, his fourth in six starts, 6-3, to the New York Mets. Dave Kingham led the attack for New York with four hits, two of them home runs, his 13th and 14th of the season. In other contests, Chicago Cubs edged San Francisco 1-0, Los Angeles got by St. Louis 6-3, San Diego blanked Philadelphia 4-0, Pittsburgh whipped Cincinnati 6-3 and Montreal tripped Houston 7-2.

Reggie Jackson hit his first home run for Baltimore, a grand slam that highlighted a six-run sixth inning. Jackson's blast off rookie left-hander Jerry Augustine gave the Orioles a 7-6 lead. Lee May homered on the next pitch for the final run.

Habs Fight Spectrum Hex

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — It has been a long time between victories for Montreal Canadiens in this city and Philadelphia Flyers are intent on extending the Canadiens' miseries.

The Flyers, down 2-0 in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup final, play host to Montreal at the Spectrum for the third game tonight and the fourth game Sunday night.

The last time the Canadiens won a National Hockey League game here was Oct. 25, 1973, when they blanked the Flyers 4-0. Since then, life in the so-called city of brotherly love has been brutal for coach Scotty Bowman's team.

In their last six outings here, the Canadiens have lost five and tied one while being outscored 18-6. They lost both games here this season.

"I think it has just been a case of every time we play them here we're both at the top or near the top of the standings," said Montreal right winger Jim Roberts.

"The home team knows it's a great opportunity to pick up two points. But during the playoffs I think some of the advantage of home ice disappears."

Philadelphia right winger Don Saleski more or less agreed with the theory presented by Roberts.

"That's where a lot of people make a mistake in thinking what happens over the year means something," Saleski said. 'It's been proven in playoff hockey that anything can happen.

"Boston had it all over us in their rink during the regular season and we beat them there in the playoffs. I can't say that because we beat the Canadiens a few times in the Spectrum that that means anything."

The Canadiens have been praised for their defensive work in the first two games of the series and the line centred by either Doug Jarvis or Doug Risebrough with Roberts and Bob Gainey on the wings has been perhaps the most effective trio.

Flyers' coach Fred Shero, who will have the last line change in games three and four, will no doubt try his best to get the checkers away from his high-scoring trio of Bobby Clarke, Bill Barber and Reggie Leach.

So effective was the Montreal defence against them Tuesday that each of them managed only a shot on goal against Ken Dryden.

Burrards Score First Win

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Burrards, the defending Mann Cup champions, broke a 17-17 tie in the last two minutes for a 19-17 victory over Coquitlam Adanacs and their first Western Lacrosse League victory this season Wednesday night.

Bob Salt was the outstanding Vancouver player, scoring three goals, including the winner, and adding five assists to lead the Burrards in their most prolific offensive outburst of the season.

Doug Hayes and Ron Pinder also had three goals each for the winners while Mike Smith, who added the insurance goal, and Bill Rawson, both had two goals each.

For the Adanacs, Jim Aitchison was the offensive leader with six goals and three assists, the best scoring performance in the league to date.

The Adanacs got two-goal performances from Mike Mushins and Jim Rickbeil, six assists from Kevin Parsons, and a goal and four assists each from the Durante brothers Ray and Dave.

Stapleton Retires

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Veteran defenceman Pat Stapleton has retired from Indianapolis Racers of the World Hockey Association, the club announced Wednesday.

Stapleton, 36, played eight years with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

B.C. Too Strong For All-Japan

BURNABY — B.C. Reps, dominating every facet of the match except the set scrums, romped to a 38-7 victory over All-Japan before about 3,000 fans in an international exhibition rugby match Wednesday at Swanguard Stadium.

Players from the Vancouver Island Rugby Union accounted for 13 of the B.C. points and played a strong role in the lineouts, where the B.C. superiority showed most.

Wes Thomas of Cowichan scored two tries and Mick Eckhardt of James Bay Athletic Association added another four-pointer. Hans De Goede of JBAA and former Victoria player Rob Hindson, who now stars for University of British Columbia Thunderbirds, keyed the lineout domination.

Reps won possession from the lineouts by a 28-12 margin. Some fine low packing and masterly hooking by Manuba Sasada enabled the Japanese to take a 16-6 edge in set scrums but that advantage was nullified by the quick marking of the B.C. backs.

Rob Greig and Spence McTavish, both of Vancouver, scored two tries each, Hindson added a try and Preston Wylie of UBC booted three conversions to compete scoring for Reps, who led 16-3 at the half.

Nobuyuki Ueyama scored a try and Yuki Matsuo kicked a penalty goal for All-Japan, which ended its B.C. portion of the tour with a 1-3 record. The visiting side completes its Western Canada tour with a match against Calgary Reps in the Prairie city Saturday.

WHAT TO TELL A JOCK... NOTHING

BALTIMORE (AP) — Trainer Laz Barrera knows exactly what he will tell jockey Angel Cordero before he goes to the post Saturday on Kentucky Derby winner Bold Forbes in the Preakness.

Nothing.

Barrera said he will discuss the race with Cordero but "when you have a good rider on your horse, you don't give instructions on how to ride your horse."

It is impossible to say whether a horse will break on the lead, but Barrera said: "One thing I'm going to tell you, he ain't gonna be behind anyone for long."

Bold Forbes, Honest Pleasure and four other three-year-olds were expected to be entered today for the $150,000-added Preakness which at 1 3-16 miles, is one-sixteenth shorter than the Derby.

The other four were Life's Hope, Bold Forbes' stablemate and winner of the Illinois Derby; Elocutionist, third in the Derby; Cojak, sixth in the Derby, and Play the Red, eighth in the Derby.

Debbie Just Two Outs Away

Debbie Derkson came close to perfection Wednesday while pitching Stockers North Americans to a 7-0 triumph over MacDonald's Furniture Seniors in a Victoria Senior Women's Softball League game at Hyacinth park.

Miss Derkson allowed only one hit — a single by Marsha Mallow with one out in the seventh inning. The only other baserunner was losing pitcher Norene Alexander, who drew a base-on-balls in the third frame.

In the other game, Hygrade Radio toped Ingraham Hotel, 7-5.

Both games in the Stuffy McGinnis Men's League ended in ties at Central Park and will be resumed at a later date. Seaboard Construction and Juan de Fuca Builders battled to a 1-1 deadlock over nine innings and Sooke Merchants and Mike's Sport Shop were tied 5-5 after seven innings.

In the Heywood Men's League, Bob Dalziel hurled a two-hitter and Ken Marleau drove in two runs with a triple as Castle Properties trounced Esquimalt Juveniles 7-1 at Heywood Avenue Park.

At Sansche Park, Jerry Lavender connected for a two-run single in the seventh to give Harvey's Sporting Goods at 4-4 tie with Seabord Properties in a Sidney Men's Association game.

And, in the Macdonald Park League, William Head dropped Trafalgar 9-5 and James Bay Athletic Association tripped Mayfair, 11-5.

Times Staff

Get the racquet out of the closet and dust off the cobwebs — it's Times Tennis Time again!

Yes, it's time to send in your entry for the Third Annual Victoria Times Public Parks Tennis Tournament. Entry forms will appear regularly on the Times sports pages for the next two weeks or so and deadline for all entries is 5 p.m. on Thursday, June 3. First-round matches will start the following Friday, June 11.

If you were one of those who played in the first two summer-long tournaments, then you'll want to be back for more action this year. If you didn't play in either of the first two, then get that entry in. Don't miss out again.

For this event, sonsored jointly by the Victoria Times and the Vancouver - Island Lawn Tennis Association (VILTA), is designed exclusively for those who do not belong to private clubs, but who lay their tennis on public park courts.

And this year we're giving the tournament a new look. For the first time we're adding to the four singles events a mixed doubles event to give all those husband-and-wife teams their chances to shine as duos.

That's not all, either. As well as providing prizes for the winners and runners-up in all five events, we plan a surprise bonus prize for the four singles winners. But right now we're keeping quiet about that one!

In case this is your first time in, this is how it goes:

● There will be five events: men's singles, women's singles, mixed doubles and boys' and girls' singles. The first three are "open" events but all competitors must be at least 14 years of age as of Oct. 1, 1975. The junior singles events are limted to players who have reached their 14th birthday and are under 18 as of last Oct. 1. Juniors must include their date of birth on their entry forms.

● There are no entry fees but entries are restricted to those who play mainly on public parks courts. Members of private clubs or those belonging to public-court teams in the Island League are not eligible.

● When all the entries have been received, a committee headed by VILTA's tournament co-ordinator Marty Taylor (who is also the Island's top-ranked amateur) will make out the draw and send postcards to half of the players notifying them of the opponents against whom they have been drawn.

● The postcareds will inform one of the players involved in each match that he or she is responsible to contacting the opponent, arranging a mutually-suitable time and place to play; for providing good balls and for filling in the card with the complete result and mailing it back to the Times. The same procedure will be followed for each round.

● Entry is open to anybody who lives within the Capital Regional District but all tournament matches must be played on public parks courts in the four Greater Victoria municipalities — Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt. Players in the tournament have no preference over those already using public courts.

● All matches up to the semi-finals will be of one pro set, with the winner being the first to win nine games. A tiebreaker will be played at 8-8 if necessary to produce a 9-8 result. Semi-finals and finals will be best-of-three normal sets to six.

● After first-round matches start June 11, players will be given 10 days to play their game and have the result back into the Times. If no result is received in that time, both players will be deafaulted.

● The tourney will run through June, July and August with a grand finals day planned for early in September. You don't have to be here all summer, though, to play in it. If you enter and win your early-round matches, then let us know when you are going to be away on holiday and we'll do our best to schedule your next match when you return.

● One final word about the mixed doubles event: we at the Times are going to be up to our ears in tennis entries and we're not finding partners for you! Arrange your own combination.

Last year, after a fine tourney involving some 200 players, Elvira Kapus (women's singles), Gordon Liebscher (men's singles,), Cindy Majorca (girls') and Greg Booth (boys') emerged as champions.

Bayern Munich Wins

GLASGOW (AP) — Bayern Munich defeated St. Etienne, 1-0, Wednesday night to win the European Cup of Champions soccer title for the third straight year. Franz Roth scored for Bayern in the 58th minute on a free kick.

The German team, led by Franz Beckenbauer, had survived an anxious scoreless first half during which St. Etienne hit the crossbar twice.

The Munich club became only the third team ever to win the Cup in three successive years. The others to achieve the sweep were Real Madrid of Spain and Ajax Amsterdam of the Netherlands.

A crowd of 85,000 saw the game at Hampden Park. Each of the teams had about 20,000 of their own supporters in the park and most of the Scots fans cheered for St. Etienne as the underdog.

AID FOR LAKE PLACID NOW UP TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House of Representatives subcommittee voted Tuesday to authorize $49 million for Lake Placid, N.Y., to hold the 1980 Winter Olympics.

If approved by Congress, the money will be used to help plan and build facilities including a 90-metre ski jump, a 9,000-seat field house with two ice rinks, a 400-metre speed-skating oval and a luge run.

Chairman Fred Rooney said a Lake Placid request for money to construct a television press centre was eliminated because the news media ought to pay for their own facilities.

The only feature not expensive on this tire is the price.

The Gulf Super Traction Radial has features you'd expect to find in a high priced radial tire with one exception... price.

From as little as $44.95 you can get a tough polyester/fiberglass radial that delivers the road handling ability and traction of a higher priced steel-belted radial.

If you're looking for maximum mileage from your tire buying dollar, check out Gulf Super Traction Radials.

You'll be amazed by the features. You'll be even more amazed when you hear the price.

Features:
- The Gulf Super Traction Radial costs less than steel-belted radials.
- The polyester/fiberglass radial design gives better mileage and longer tread life than bias or belted tires.
- Handling and traction with fiberglass radials is comparable to steel belted radials.
- Gulf's Super Traction Radial gives an extremely comfortable ride, even at city speeds.
- Deep tread, for excellent traction.
- Available from and warranted in proportion to tread wear, by Gulf stations across Canada.

Available where you see this Super Traction Radial Sign.

Three Sites Set For Volleyball

S. J. Willis Junior High School has been added to the list of sites for preliminary round-robin competition in the Canadian junior men's and women's volleyball championships Friday and Saturday.

Opening ceremonies take place starting at 9 a.m. Friday at the University of Victoria's McKinnon Building with play getting underway at the same spot and Mt. Douglas High School at 9:30 a.m. The tourney continues through the day with matches at both locations and there will be additional play from 3:30 to 8:45 p.m. at S. J. Willis.

On Saturday, play will resume at 8:30 a.m. at both UVic and Mt. Douglas with the finals scheduled for 7 (women) and 8:30 p.m. (men) at the McKinnon Building.

Victoria "Y", hoping to dethrone women's defending-champion Vancouver Chimos, will have to make it to the playoffs before meeting the other B.C. team. The host squad has been drawn into Pool "B" of the 12-team tourney while Chimos, who have won three straight titles, are in Pool "A".

Both the women's and men's tourneys have the same format, with the top two teams out of each six-team pool advancing to the playoff round.

In the women's tourney, Victoria has been drawn in with Annapolis Royal Legionettes, London Junos, Lumsden Lionettes of Saskatchewan, Marivale of Ottawa and the University of Manitoba Bisonettes. Chimos will compete initially with Fredericton Juniors, Montreal International, Scarborough Saints, University of Calgary Dinnies and Winnipeg Juniors.

Victoria "Y" is in Pool "D" in the 12-team men's tourney with defending-champion Onion Patch of Ottawa, Scarborough Kings, Springfield Sabres of Manitoba, Sunbury Blues of New Brunswick and Yorkton, B.C. Olympics, Phoenix of Edmonton, Guelph Oaks, Hochelaga of Montreal, Manitoba Bandits and Westbrooke Nova Blues of Nova Scotia have been drawn into Pool "C".

ROSE WINS AWARD

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose of Cincinnati Reds, described by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn as "a guy who knows how to represent the game on and off the field" was named Wednesday as the sixth recipient of the Roberto Clemente Award.

Kuhn, in Cincinnati to present the award prior to the Pittsburgh-Cincinnati National League game, said Rose is "the apex of professionalism." Kuhn added that Rose's style had captivated baseball fans throughout the Cincinnati native 14-year career.

The award is given annually to the player who best exemplifies the game of baseball on and off the field.

Hawksbay Tops Reps

Hawksbay Club of Napier, New Zealand, scored its second straight lopsided win on a tour to Western Canada by dropping the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association Rep side 7-2 Wednesday evening at Henderson park.

Maryanne Gray led Hawksbay with three goals while singles were added by Edith Webber, Tina Anderson, Raewyn Keddi and Marg Hiha. Sue Keckalo and Gill Hawkins replied for Reps, who were down 5-2 at half time.

In its opening game Tuesday, Hawksbay thumped Mariners, 9-0.

UVic Vikettes, the Canadian collegiate champions, will tackle Hawksbay tonight at 5:30 in Henderson Park. The New Zealanders then travel to the Mainland for matches in Vancouver and Kelowna before facing the Alberta Reps in Banff and returning home.

Western Games Sought

Election or appointment of a preliminary committee to administer the early stages of submitting Victoria's bid for the 1979 Western Canada Games will be the main items of business at the monthly meeting of the Sports Council of Greater Victoria.

The meeting, which is open to everyone representing one of the 23 Games' sports or an organization that might by interested in helping in this community project, gets underway at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Lambrick Park.

Archery, basketball, boxing, canoeing, cycling, diving, equestrian, fencing, field hockey, gymnastics, team handball, judo, modern pentathelon, rowing, shooting, soccer, swimming, track and field, volleyball, water polo, weightlifting and yachting were included in the 1975 Games in Regina.

Other sports that should be represented at the meeting include lacrosse, softball, baseball and figure skating.

BOB STRUMM NAMED AS CHYNOWETH AIDE

SASKATOON (CP) — The appointment of Bob Strumm of Edmonton as executive assistant to Ed Chynoweth, Western Canada Hockey League president, was announced by the league today.

Strumm, 28, has been working as a sports desk editor at the Edmonton Journal since last December and previously spent 10 years with the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix as a sports reporter and columnist.

Strumm, a Saskatoon native and 1970 graduate from the University of Saskatchewan, will join the league office in Saskatoon June 1 and move with Chynoweth to Calgary when the league headquarters are shifted July 1.

His primary responsibilties will involve public relations and statistical work. In addition, he will act as Chynoweth's assistant in league matters.

Millionaire 'Orphan' Has a Family—Paper

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alexander Di Cimbriani, self-styled real estate millionaire, drew public attention in 1974 when he threw a $25,000 retirement party for former Vancouver police chief John Fisk attended by 700 guests.

He claimed in a letter to the Vancouver Sun that he has offered 10 rewards totalling $185,000 for information resulting in "persons responsible for crimes" being "brought to justice."

He talked about becoming mayor of Vancouver but on Tuesday announced he will not run because of health reasons.

Significantly, says the Sun in a copyright story by reporter Paul Musgrove, Di Cimbriani made his announcement within hours of learning that the newspaper had been talking in Hamilton, Ont., with the father, brother and sisters he claimed he never had.

"For Alexander Di Cimbriani was born Ralph Di Cimbriani and later renamed Ralph Sims," says the Sun.

"He is not the orphan he has always claimed to be — he has a brother, four sisters and a father still living.

"He was not raised in an orphange or nunnery as he has claimed, but spent only five years in a home because of the illness of his mother.

"He was not defriended by a kindly police officer who took up a collection to pay for his first cleft palate operation — another of his claims — but paid for the operation himself.

"He is not 33 years old — or any of the other ages he has claimed — but 45, born in April, 1931.

"His parochial school did not grant him honorary degrees of B.Sc. and MA as he claims.

In fact, his family does not believe he ever went beyond grade 6.

The newspaper said it found that the man who calls himself Alexander Di Cimbriani has always had a family but avoided contact with them for about 20 years.

His father is 82-year-old Anthony Sims, formerly Di Cimbriani, at 18 Earl St., in Hamilton. His brother is Alex Sims and his sisters are Mrs. Dora Karczewski, Mrs. Lidia Allen, Mrs. Vicki Croft and Mrs. Isa Hudecki.

The Sun says Di Cimbriani disappeared about 1956 and his family had not heard about him until the Fisk retirement party in February, 1974.

Di Cimbriani said he would have no comment on the story, but asked "What have I done; have I murdered somebody; have I robbed a bank? What do you people want to do — run me out of town or something?"

He also said that he had got into the situation "by opening my mouth too often."

B. K. Atkinson, a lawyer for Di Cimriani, said that "he does deny some of the factual matter," but "at least some of the things are true."

He said that Di Cimbriani wasn't born Ralph Di Cimbriani "as far as he know," and never used the name of Ralph Sims.

Asked if Di Cimbriani denys having any living family, Atkinson said that "if he doesn't know who they are, he may not know whether they're living."

WILDLIFE BODY RAPS COAL MINING

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Wildlife Federation says the coal industry is causing widespread environmental damage in B.C.

In a booklet to be published this week, the federation says wildlife habitat is being destroyed, reclamation is inadequate, legislative controls are ineffective, the bond and security system is a failure and most of the coal is exported to foreign countries.

"The people of B.C. have not been in control of coal development in the province," says the booklet. "The initiative has come from outside — first from Japan, and more recently from Britain, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and the United States."

The federation says nearly 1,400 square miles are licenced for coal exploration or development. Two-thirds of this is on crown land.

The value of coal production has increased to $154.5 million in 1974 from $6.8 million in 1969.

The federation says 90 per cent of B.C.'s raw coal is removed by surface mining which has had a devastating effect on wildlife habitat in the East Kootenay.

"Mining activity has undoubtedly had an adverse effect on elk, sheep and mountain goats, even where surface mining has not yet occurred," the booklet says.

People Before Pipe

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian people will not be allowed to claim innocence if the native people of the north are destroyed, the Mackenzie Valley pipeline inquiry was told Wednesday.

"The future of the native people of the north as a distinct group of people is far more important than the building of the pipeline," said Chief George Watts of the Sheshaht band near Port Alberni.

"This is one time in history we must allow the truth to dominate facts and figures based on economics."

He urged a moratorium on the pipeline project.

All but a couple of the 59 briefs during three days in Vancouver have supported settlement of land claims before building the proposed natural gas pipeline.

The inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Thomas Berger of the B.C. Supreme Court, has opened a month of public hearings in southern Canada on the social, economic and environmental implications of the proposed development.

Representatives of Roman Catholic and Anglican groups also supported northern natives.

Ted Eden of the Anglican Church committee on social responsibility read a telegram from Archbishop David Sommerville of New Westminster calling for a moratorium on pipeline development until native land claims are settled.

Lost Plane Found

SUMMIT LAKE (CP) — Searchers found a light plane missing since May 4 near Summit Lake, about 20 miles north of Prince George, Wednesday.

The pilot, R. B. Spangler, 53, of Fairbanks, Alaska, died in the crash.

The plane had been en route from Watson Lake to Fort Nelson. A Search and Rescue official said it was not known why the emergency locator transmitter, set to emit on impact, did not send out an emergency signal.

Death 'Homicide'

TERRACE (CP) — A coroner's inquest ruled Wednesday that the death of John Desmond Spalding, 3, was a homicide.

The youngster was taken unconscious from his home here Jan. 3. He died two weeks later in hospital without regaining consciousness.

The inquest found the boy died from complications arising from a skull fracture. The jury recommended that a single authority be charged with the responsibility of protecting the rights and welfare of children in instances of suspected child battering.

'Hot' Label Used

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Federation of Labor has issued a "hot" declaration against Skyway Luggage Company, where the Upholsterers International Union is on strike. Union spokesman Penny Goronuk said Tuesday the 100 workes have been on strike since April 5, seeking a "living wage." Base rate now is $2.75 an hour and average rate is $2.84 an hour.

Peltier Hearing

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government was allowed Wednesday to present some American documents in the extradition hearing of Leonard Peltier, wanted in the United States on murder charges.

Mr. Justice W. A. Schultz of the British Columbia Supreme Court ruled that the documents were in order and could be used.

Peltier, an American Sioux, is wanted on two counts of murder in the deaths of FBI agents at Pine Ridge, S.D., last June 26, a charge of attempted murder of a state trooper in Oregon last Nov. 16, a charge of attempted murder in Wisconsin in 1972, and a burglary charge near Nyssa, Ore., last Nov. 15.

Complex Opened

SURREY (CP) — Kockums-Letson and Burpee, a Vancouver-based manufacturer of sawmill equipment, has opened a new manufacturing complex here. The $6 million site covers 14 acres on which four buildings are located. They house all administrative offices, a machine and fabricating plant and a chain mnaufacturing division.

Firms 'Can't Afford' Taxes

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia forest industry said Wednesday that it cannot afford property taxes at current levels.

Timber is presently overvalued, the Council of Forest Industries said in a brief to the provincial inquiry commission on property assessment and taxation.

For 1975 and 1976, timber has been assessed at the values which applied in 1974, but the market value of timber has decreased since these assessments were fixed," the brief said.

The council said that unless the situation is modified and controlled, the province will suffer from a lack of new investment and a decrease in industrial efficiency in other forest and manufacturing operations.

The inquiry commission, which was meeting in Vancouver as part of its ongoing work throughout B.C., is charged with making recommendations for propety tax improvement to the provincial government.

The brief from the Council of Forest Industries said independent taxing by each of the four levels of government causes administrative duplication and waste.

It said each level should consider taxation in a related fashion.

The brief urged that the commission take into account what the council called an inadequate return on investment in the forest products industry for several years.

Among points in the brief were arguments that agricultural production has enjoyed more favorable property tax treatment than tree farming.

The brief also asked that industrial machinery no longer be subject to property tax. It said the forest industry is more reliant on machinery than many other industries and is therefore more heavily burdened.

The brief, which said almost 25 per cent of B.C. employment is dependent on the forest industry, urged that all forest improvement associated with log production should be exempted from assessment and taxation, particularly logging roads that are open to the public.

Earlier, John Stokes, deputy minister of forests, said coastal logging operators have been told that for the balance of 1976 they can relax cutting standards and not log trees of poor quality or small size.

Stokes said it will be up to the individual companies whether they want to take advantage of the relaxation. But if they don't their total permitted cut will not be adjusted to compensate them for poorer trees left behind, he said.

Hughes Wills Spreading from Coast to Coast

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Wills purported to have been written by Howard Hughes are popping up from coast to coast, and a long-time employee of the late billionaire says: "I think it's becoming apparent there are a lot of people who can write like Howard Hughes."

At last count Wednesday, there were five documents claimed by various people to be the authentic Hughes' will.

Two "wills" were delivered by the Clark County courthouse Wednesday and a New York newspaper said it received another in the mail.

Further adding to the hubbub was a claim that the first and most seriously considered will was a gag.

A genealogist hired by distant relatives of Hughes told a Chicago news conference Wednesday he has made contact with a person in Salt Lake City who claimed to be one of five forgers who wrote the document as a joke.

However, William Jones of Nashville, Tenn., was vague about "the person."

Clark County officials found the situation less than humorous.

"To the public at large it may be a carnival, but certainly it's not a carnival to the court or any of its attaches," said Russell Waite, county probate commissioner.

A man identifying himself as Grover Walker of Las Vegas walked into the county clerk's office Wednesday accompanied by three apparent bodyguards and filed will No. 3.

Walker said the will was delivered to him by Richard Robard Hughes, who claims to be Hughes' illegitimate son. Joseph Michael Brown, who changed his legal name to Richard Robard Hughes, said last year that he and his "father" communicated by tiny radio transmitters implanted in their heads.

Later Wednesday, a document printed in green was sent to the manager of the Desert Inn in Las Vegas, where Hughes lived in seclusion between 1966 and 1970. A cover letter with will No. 4 was signed "Howard Hughes Jr." It listed his return address as the Oasis Motel in Banning, Calif.

"The spelling errors are unreal," said assistant county clerk Elda Hanks, referring to that purported will.

The alleged junior Hughes said: "I do not want to clame (sic) any of my father's inheritance." The document leaves all of the money except a few million dollars "to the government of the United States to give jobs for people."

95 FIRMS MADE PAYOFFS—SEC

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Securities and Exchange Commission is asking U.S. accounting firms and a stock exchange to help federal efforts to halt the "serious . . . widespread" practice of corporate payoffs to politicians here and abroad.

The SEC said it asked the New York Stock Exchange to adopt rules requiring listed companies to establish audit committees of outside directors to assure corporate integrity.

And SEC accounting chief John Burton said he asked public accounting firms to be alert to payoffs when auditing books.

The SEC included a letter to the exchange and the accounting industry's response to Burton's request in a report on payoffs sent Wednesday to the Senate banking committee.

After probing the payoffs for two years, the SEC said it was "unable to conclude that instances of illegal payments are either isolated or aberrations limited to a few unscrupulous individuals."

The SEC identified 95 corporations that have made improper payments and said more than 30 others are under investigation.

Ford Plea Goes Beyond His Party

Times News Services

President Ford came home to Michigan Wednesday seeking the suppot of voters from outside the party as well as Republicans in his increasingly desperate search for a decisive victory over his GOP primary challenger, Ronald Reagan.

Arriving for a full day of campaigning in the Detroit area, the president openly solicited Democratic and independent votes in next Tuesday's Michigan primary, widely viewed as one. Ford must win to restore credibility to his faltering campaign.

The president's appeal was an admission that he needs every vote he can get in the Michigan primary, an "open" primary in which voting is not limited to registered Republicans.

In the past few weeks, Ford campaign strategists have blamed his defeats in the open primary states of Texas and Indiana on a massive "crossover" vote by Democratic supporters of Alabama Gov. George Wallace. They fear the same thing may happen here in Michigan, a state that Wallace carried in the 1972 Democratic primary.

Moreover, Reagan's impressive 55-to 45 per cent victory over the president Tuesday in the Nebraska primary, in which only registered Republicans could vote, suggested that Ford's support among GOP voters has been badly eroded by Reagan's string of five victories in the last six primaries.

At the United Nations, meanwhile, Democratic presidential hopeful Jimmy Carter today proposed a five-year ban on all nuclear test explosions for peaceful or other purposes.

In a "non-political" speech to a conference on "nuclear energy and world order," Carter also called for an "alliance for survival" to control the development and use of atomic power.

U.S. Budget Tops Limit Set by Ford

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The U.S. Senate Wednesday approved a $413.3-billion government budget for the 1977 financial year, which begins Oct. 1.

The total is $18.1 billion above the figure President Ford has set as a spending limit.

The House of Representatives is expected to give final Congressional approval to an identical measure today. The bill does not require Ford's signature.

The bill approved is a compromise version of earlier ones approved by the House and Senate.

The budget bill calls for $413.3 billion in expenditures and $362.5 billion in revenue, which will leave a $50.8 billion deficit. Ford's latest planned budget anticipated $395.2 billion in expenditure and $350.7 billion in revenue, leaving a $44.6 billion deficit.

Ford won most of his defence spending requests, but lost his major proposals for tax cuts. The congressional budget also called for spending more than Ford desired.

U.S. House Cost Soars

WASHINGTON (WP) — The prices of new houses across the U.S. are soaring at an annual rate of 22 per cent, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said Wednesday.

The agency, which regulates savings and loan associations, said the sharp rise in sale prices is "surprising" not only because it "is completely out of proportion to the improvement in the financial state of the average consumer" but also because it appears "to contradict the publicity about the increasing importance of 'no-frill' housing."

The bank board's monthly economic analysis newsletter said the median sale price of a new home in February was $43,000 compared with $38,000 in February, 1975.

A median price of $43,000 means that half the new homes in the country were sold at a price higher than $43,000 and half sold for less than $43,000.

That represents a 13 per cent rise from year to year, but over the six months "ending in February the increase has been at a 22 per cent annual rate," the bank board's analysis said.

According to preliminary evidence, median new home prices jumped again in March to nearly $44,000.

The federal Home Loan Bank Board said that the skyrocketing prices of new homes may indicate that affluent persons are selling their old homes and buying expensive new ones at a faster rate than less affluent persons are buying houses for the first time.

The more affluent householders were "less affected by the recession and inflation and generally own an existing home that can be sold at a profit," the board newsletter said.

This conclusion would be consistent with the "large volume of transactions in existing home and the uptrend (although milder) in prices of existing homes," it added.

The bank board said that the new home prices also "throw a big question mark over the ability of builders to reach more of the mass market of first time home purchasers."

There has been a lot of publicity, the board noted, about the "trend toward 'no-frill' or basic housing."

CAPTAIN WASN'T BLAMED

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Capt. Walter R. Shafer was watching a movie below decks in the cruiser Belknap just before the vessel slammed into the carrier John F. Kennedy last year. A court martial Wednesday found him blameless despite a navy tradition that a captain is completely responsible for his ship.

Military judge Horace H. Morgan said Shafer was not responsible for the collision simply because it happened and because he was the ship's captain.

Eight crewmen aboard Belknap died in the Nov. 22 collision during night manoeuvres off the Italian coast. The Belknap was towed across the Atlantic for $109 million in repairs.

Morgan said the navy regulation that holds the captain totally responsible for his ship didn't apply because Shafer had posted a proper watch.

Bureaucratic Snafu Grabs Baby

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The policemen at the door had a piece of paper and they were taking the baby. It was all a mistake, a bureaucratic snafu, but it took Carole and John Ferguson three days to get their infant son back.

It began last Saturday night as Mrs. Ferguson was getting 16-month-old Daamon ready for bed, being careful not to reinjure his broken right arm.

It was that break, the last in a series of unexplained injuries, that had prompted the Fergusons to ask police in the Vilahoma City suburb, to investigate the babysitter who kept their son on weekdays.

When Mrs. Ferguson answered the door and saw two uniformed policeman and a matron, she thokght they had come to report on the investigation. She was wrong.

"They flashed their badges and ripped out a piece of paper and told me they had come to take Damon," she said. "I told them there had been some kind of mistake, that we were the ones who had wanted the investigation, but they said they didn't know anything about that.

"I told them they couldn't have him and they said, 'You don't have any choice.' Damon was crying—he was afraid and didn't want to go. They wouldn't tell me where they were taking him."

Faced with the ultimatum, Mrs. Ferguson—"as hysterical as I could ever be"—bundled up some of her son's clothing and handed him over to the police.

Damon was taken to the county children's shelter. It wasn't until Tuesday, after a hearing in Oklahoma County District Court, that Judge Raymond Naifeh ordered the baby returned to his parents.

"It's been a nightmare," said Ferguson, a senior medical student who was in surgery when the baby was taken from their home. "This was a case of the left hand not knowing what the right hand was doing."

During the hearing, it was brought out that the paper the police had was a court order signed by District Judge Charles Halley on a petition from the court's juvenile bureau.

Juvenile bureau employees testified they don't investigate child-abuse cases, but depend on reports from the police and the welfare department.

It went on from there. A lawyer for the welfare department insisted the department didn't request that the baby be taken from the Fergusons but "left it up to the juvenile bureau."

Betty Beaver, the juvenile bureau employee who signed the petition, said she had been told by her supervisor to file it. "I thought it was the parents (who had injured the child)," she said.

As the Fergusons cuddled Damon in their home Tuesday night, Ferguson commented: "We were innocent citizens and a kid who became pawns in a game of chess."

The investigation of the baby sitter who had been keeping Damon is continuing, officials said. The babysitter has not been identified and has had no comment. The Fergusons have gotten a new one.

249 Years Since Britain So Dry

LONDON (AP) — An African prayer mat from Botswana hangs in the offices of the Wessex Water Authority. It bears the word "Pula," meaning "Let there be rain."

Experts say it would take a prolonged monsoon to overcome Britain's worst drought in 249 years.

The weather bureau says it began last summer, one of Britain's warmest in years with temperatures in the high 80s. A mild winter and dry weather in the 80s this month have aggravated the situation.

Some reservoirs are nearly dry and a great many half empty. Normally, after winter and spring rains, they would be brimming. But the year from May, 1975, to April, 1976, was the driest since 1727, the weather office in London reported.

There were some thunderstorms and heavy showers last weekend, and some rain fell in scattered areas Monday. But it was not enough to help.

"We have had about half an inch of rain at the most, and that does not go far to make up a deficit of 16 inches," said one expert.

About half of the country is suffering from the drought. The worst hit areas are Anglia in the east, Wessex and Wales in the west, and southern Yorkshire in the north. Least affected are the Thames River area, which includes London, northernmost England and the Severn-Trent-Midlands area.

If the drought continues, the consequences for industry might be grave. The average man or woman uses 30 to 60 gallons of water a day, but industry consumes a much greater part of the average 5.5 billion gallons pumped daily from rivers, streams, wells and other sources.

Water authorities are spending the equivalent of nearly $1 billion a year to increase the water supply. But experts insist that far more money is needed to keep pace with the constant increase in demand. Every 40 years the demand doubles.

Scotland and London have no drought problem. Scotland uses only one per cent of its available supplies, and the Thames could supply an enormous area in addition to London if additional pumps, purification equipment and connecting pipes were installed.

The Wessex Water Authority, which supplies two million people, reports that "things have never been so bad in living memory." As part of its campaign to save water, it has urged families to bathe together.

Asked the reason for the dry year, London's weather centre said a belt of high pressure — which produces dry weather — normally extending from the Azores across Europe has been located farther north during the past 12 months.

The drought has turned wide tracts of countryside into tinder boxes, the forestry commission said. It reported fires have destroyed more than 1,000 acres of timber.

Food prices have not risen because of the drought. But a spokesman for the Food Manufacturers' Association said a hot, dry summer might lead to crop failures and food shortages.

Fast Building

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Opening ceremonies were held during the weekend for the $200,000 Handicapped Children's Residence built here by 500 volunteer construction workers. The building was erected in two weekends with some touch up work taking place last week.

JAPAN STRIKES BLOW AGAINST AUTOMATION

TOKYO (Reuter) — Japanese housewives have struck a blow for the freedom of shoppers from encroaching automation.

A supermarket chain has closed down Japan's first fully-computerized fully-automated store because of customer rejection.

The OK Supermarket chain opened its computerized store in the western Tokyo suburb of Kokobunji in May last year. It has turned out to be an expensive failure although the manned section of the store — which will stay open — has done a booming business.

Another automated supermarket was opened in the hotsprings resort of Atami last December, and although profits are less than expected, the owner says the initial results have not been too bad.

The OK Supermarket was developed by the Japan Machine Promotion Association under the supervision of the ministry of international trade and industry. It handled 2,500 different items ranging from canned and bottled products to frozen foods dispensed from 67 vending machines.

To use the automated section, the shopper inserted a plastic card into the vending machines and pushed buttons specifying the name and quantity of goods required.

The goods were removed from the machine and after shopping was completed the customer put the plastic card into another machine which computed the payment required. The cashier was the only human involved.

But, to the dismay of the promoters of automation, the number of daily customers in the automated part of the store was only about 300.

The conventional side of the store, on the other hand, was drawing a healthy average of 2,600 customers daily.

Customer complaints about automated selling were mainly that they could not touch the goods, or inspect them properly through the glass windows of the vending machines.

Lactose-Free Milk Made in Lab

By Dr. JEAN MAYER

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Q. I am one of those individuals who has had to give up drinking milk because I have a lactose deficiency. I really miss it and wondered whether it is possible to buy lactose-free milk.

A. Although you will not find it at your neighborhood supermarket or local dairy, it is technologically possible to produce milk that is 90 per cent free of lactose.

Lactose is made up of two simple sugars, glucose and galactose. By using the enzyme lactase, which can be obtained from nonhuman sources, it is possible to break milk sugar down into these two simple sugars.

Recently, a test was made with lactose hydrolyzed milk, as it is called, involving a group of teenage volunteers — with very encouraging results. It was found that individuals with lactose malabsorption can absorb the glucose and galactose in this milk extremely well.

As for taste, more than half of the 32 study participants thought the milk tasted sweeter than regular milk. A few said it tasted "flat." But all except one said they liked it and would drink it. And that, after all, is what counts.

It is impossible to predict if lactose hydrolyzed milk will ever become available. However, it is certainly encouraging that such a nutritionally important food as milk can be easily modified into a form that lactose-intolerant individuals could consume without symptoms and can utilize efficiently.

Q. In a recent column, you discussed nutrition problems in the elderly and said that because of decreased activity, the elderly need fewer calories. Could you please be a little more specific and tell us exactly how many claories my husband and I, who are both 65, need each day?

A. Exactly how many calories a day you or anyone else requires is a highly individual matter. It not only depends on how active you are, but also on your body size. For example, larger people burn more calories than smaller people do to perform the same task.

In the most recent revision of the Recommended Dietary Allowances of the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council (NRC), it is recommended that men decrease their intake by 300 calories a day and women by 200 calories after 50 years of age. This means that what they call the "reference man" (5 foot 9, weighing 154 pounds) would require an average of 2,400 calories, while the "reference woman" (5 feet 5, weighing 128 pounds) would need about 2,000 calories. These figures are for individuals who are engaged in light activities.

Many elderly people may not be physically active enough to require even this many calories. But as the NRC report points out, at levels below 1,800 to 2,000 calories, it becomes difficult to get all the essential nutrients into the diet.

If it becomes necessary to reduce your activity and therefore to cut back on calories, it is extremely important that you plan your diet carefully. While the need for calories may drop, the requirement fo other nutrients (with the exception of postmenopausal women who need less iron) remains virtually unchanged.

Q. What are the "mono and diglycerides" that I notice to be listed as an additive to almost every processed food?

A. Mono and diglycerides are fats. As additives, they have scores of uses, including everything from keeping the oil and peanuts in peanut butter from separating to make caramels less sticky!

But mono and diglycerides are basically not artificial compounds created in a chemist's laboratory. They are, in fact, normally found under a variety of circumstances. Triglycerides (chemical combinations of fatty acids anid glycerol) are, of course, the commonest type of fats found in our food supply. However, small amounts of mono and diglycerides also occur naturally in food. During the cooking process, many triglycerides are converted to mono and diglycerides which can be absorbed from the gastrointestinal tract. In other words, these are naturally occurring substances and there is little reason to suspect that they are in any way harmful.

Chicken and Ham Salad

¾ cup mayonnaise
¾ cup dairy sour cream
3 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice
⅛ teaspon ground black pepper
4 cups diced cooked chicken
4 cups diced cooked ham
2 cups chopped celery
2 cups seedless green grapes, halved, reserving a few whole grapes for garnish
2 cupt toasted slivered almonds
Crackers
Salad greens.

Combine the first six ingredients in a large bowl. Mix in the next four ingredients. Turn into a 2½-quart bowl and chill several hours. Invert onto serving plate to remove salad. Sprinkle with almonds. Surround with crackers. Garnish with small bunches of grapes, if desired. Serve with salad greens. Makes 10 (about 1 cup) servings.

THE FAT MAN NOT SO JOLLY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The popular image of the jolly fat man is wrong, says a report of the American Academy of Psychoanalysts. The overweight person, it says, is more likely to be depressed, anxious and filled with self-loathing.

And while psychoanalysis can help obese persons be happier, in most cases it will not result in dramatic weight reduction, the report said.

The report, the result of a three-year study of fat people and psychoanalysis, was presented at a meeting of the Academy of Psychoanalysts.

Dr. Albert Stunkard, professor of psychiatry at Stanford University, said 147 persons were included in the study — 84 of them obese and the rest slim. The obese subjects ranged in age from 30 to 50 and averaged 197 pounds for women and 247 pounds for men.

Although about 64 per cent of the fat patients lost small amounts of weight during the two or three years of psychoanlysis, Stunkard said, weight reduction was "not as good as the hotshot programs focusing on weight loss" such as Weight Watchers and Overeaters Anonymous.

Stunkard's associate, Colleen Rand, said 70 per cent of the obese patients considered themselves unattractive compared to 18 per cent of the slim subjects.

Before you show your slides to your friends or relatives, read "Slide Showmanship With A Kodak Carousel Projector" ("Une presentation artistique de diapositives au moyen d'un projecteur Kodak Carousel"). This 12-page illustrated pamphlet offers helpful tips on how to show your slides, edit them, set up your equipment, choose a screen and add background music and narration.

The booklet recommends that you have the screen in place before your guests arrive and have your projector placed on a sturdy table. If the centre of the screen is much higher than the projector lens, raise the whole projector. If you only raise the front of the projector, you will get a distorted image.

The booklet also explains how to avoid glare. It suggests you place a piece of cardboard not thicker than a slide into the projector gate. When you turn on the projector lamp, the screen will be dark instead of glaring white.

Easy roll pastry makes decorative lattice pie crust

Cherry Pie Delicious, Easy

Mary Moore

Through the press, radio and television most of us know that we have a surplus of some canned fruits in Canada from the 1975 pack.

The canners are anxious that these stocks be sold to make space for the upcoming 1976 run.

So today we cope with cherries — in a lattice pie and for our timid pastry makers give you easy oil pastry for the crust.

LATTICE CHERRY PIE

Oil Pastry:
2⅛ c. unsifted cake-and-pastry flour
¼ tsp. salt
⅝ c. oil (⅓ c. plus 2 Tbsp.)
¼ c. plus 1 Tbsp. milk

Filling:
Two 14-oz. cans Canadian, pitted red cherries and syrup (see below)
⅛ tsp. salt
2 Tbsp. cornstarch
3 Tbsp. granulated sugar
⅛ Tsp. almond extract
1 Tbsp. lemon juice
1 Tbsp. butter
1 tsp. red food coloring (optional)

Make Filling first: drain cherries and measure syrup. You need 1½ cups syrup so if necessary add water to make up the required amount. Set aside. In saucepan mix salt, cornstarch and sugar. Slowly stir in cherry syrup, stirring until all lumps are gone with wire whip. Cook, stirring constantly, over direct medium heat until thickened and then cook 3 minutes longer, stirring. Remove from heat. Stir in cherries, almond extract, lemon juice, butter and red food coloring (if used). Cool while making pastry.

To make Oil Pastry, in bowl combine flour and salt. In a small bowl beat together with fork until creamy, the oil and milk then stir into flour mixture until thoroughly combined. Pack into a ball between your palms. Roll ⅔ of the pastry out between two large sheets of wax paper. Peel off top sheet of paper. Pick up bottom sheet with pastry on it and turn upside down over deep 9" pie plate. Peel off paper and press pastry into pie plate, making a high fluted edge. Roll remaining ⅓ of the pastry between two sheets of wax paper. Remove top sheet and cut pastry into ½" wide strips using pastry wheel if you have one. Leave on bottom sheet of wax paper until ready to use.

Pour filling into 9" pastry-lined pie plate. Peel strips of pastry from wax paper and criss-cross them to form lattice on top of cherry filling, sealing ends. Protect rim of pie with strip of foil to prevent burning. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. 30 to 35 minutes until golden.

DEAR LYNN AND JOEL:

Sometime ago I purchased two "Hindu Rope" plants. One was plain green and the other was variegated. I have been unable to find any information on growing this plant. Can you help? —K.B.

DEAR K.B.:

It doesn't take a fakir and a flute to get a Hindu Rope plant to grow. The plant is a member of the Hoya family, and there's plenty of information available on the culture of the various forms of Hoya — the most common being Hoya Carnosa, which is a green, sometimes slightly pink or white variegated plant that grows in long leathery-looking vines. (Like your Hindu Rope, it also is available in plain green.)

The Hindu Rope plant is simply a twisted-up version of Hoya and should be cared for in the same way. A window which gets north light is sufficient, but if you want your Hoya to bloom you should put it some place where it'll get a couple of hours a day of good, indirect sunlight — a north-east window, perhaps. Your Hindu Rope variety might like more light — an east, south or west exposure. These waxy-leaved beauties are slow growers, but with a bit more light, your Hindu Rope will rise from its basket just a little bit quicker.

Club's 50-Cent Dues Still Serve Purpose

Myrtle Scott, a founder of the Monteith Club

How would you like to belong to a club, active now for 50 years, that still maintains its monthly dues at fifty cents, a member — even in these days of galloping inflation?

I'm not dreaming. There actually is such a club in Victoria, organized back in 1926.

Dues were set then at 50 cents and they have remained at that level ever since.

It was on January 21, 1916, to be precise, that 10 young business girls, teachers, and recently marrieds, all attending Victoria West United Church, got together at the home of Mrs. Joyce Collins, with the avowed intention of forming a junior group to help in the work of the Ladies' Aid.

The idea originated with Myrtle Scott, wife of Rev. William Scott, and a sister of famed hockey players Lester and Frank Patrick.

Mrs. Collins, a daughter of the well-known sailing ship captain, Robert E. McKiel, was elected president; Irene Armstrong, secretary; Mrs. J. Perrins, treasurer and Mrs. Scott, the vice-president.

Name chosen for the group was the Monteith Club, in honor of Mrs. George Monteith, a long-time worker in the church, and known to practically everyone in Victoria West, as "Aunt Libby."

The club grew in membership until, at its peak, it had approximately 20 names on its roster.

It took its share of work in all phases of church life and especially in assisting at teas, dinners, rummage and home cooking sales.

In those long-ago days, Victoria West was noted for its fine vegetable gardens and, in nearly every instance, Monteith Club members came from homes where such gardens flourished.

So, it was a common occurence for these young women to donate pounds of potatoes and other garden produce for various affairs sponsored by the Ladies' Aid.

When Victoria West United Church closed its doors, some 10 years ago, the club decided to remain active — and it is still active today.

It meets once a month in a member's home, as it always has done over the fifty years. And those who attend pay that princely sum of fifty cents to the treasurer, without a murmur.

When they manage to "pile up twenty-five dollars in the kitty" it is donated to a worthy cause — the heart fund, Arbutus Crafts, the CNIB or the cancer foundation.

Over the years members have come and gone, some leaving Victoria for other part of Canada or the United States and others merely moving to another area of the city — and another church.

Always however, there has been enough names on the roster to warrant continuing club routine.

A week or so ago, a 50th anniversary reunion was held in the private dining room at the Dominion Hotel where 23 present and former members attended.

Among them were nine "originals:" Mrs. Scott, who came from White Rock, B.C., and Mrs. Oliver Wells (Sara McKeil) from Chilliwack, for the occasion; Mrs. Oliver Stout (Ada Gawley); Mrs. Gordon Weismiller (Laura Gawley); Mrs. Clifford Jackson (Anne Emery); Mrs. Jack Angus (Margaret McDonald; Mildred Beattie, Rita Armstrong and Amy Young.

Current president is Mrs. Zeno Emery and the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Jackson and Mrs. Angus.

Right now there are at least 10 active members. And at the reunion some old-timers decided to rejoin in the fall.

Meetings will continue to be held once a month, and the dues will remain at 50 cents a member.

In this day and age, I doubt if you'll find a better bargain.

Postscript — Not long ago I had a telephone call from A. C. Stewart, who wanted to tell me that in the early 1900s Victoria West was training ground for many outstanding athletes in all areas of sport.

Among them, he said, was a ladies basketball team that won a British Columbia championship in 1903.

To prove that statement he sent me a picture of the team and a write-up that appeared in a Vancouver paper in January, 1946, reminiscing about that long-ago championship.

Stewart drew my attention particularly to the outfits worn by those women basketball players, 73 years ago.

Long pleated skirts, long-sleeved, bloused middies with wide bowed collars and neck-hugging dickies — all in the same dark blue (or black) color.

The skirts, I'm told, covered long black bloomers, black stockings and high laced boots with rubber soles.

That game back in 1903 was recorded in a terse mainland news item of the time as follows: "The first ladies basketball game between New Westminster and Victoria was played last night at the Armouries, before 800 spectators. Mr. T. J. Manoney was the referee. A banquet was tendered the victors."

Looking at the picture I'd say the girls on that Victoria West team were a good-looking lot, despite the considerable "camoflauge" produced by thse skirts and middies.

They were sisters Lizzie and Clara Williams; Isobel Isbister, the captain, and her sister Anna; Nellie Potts and Emma Skinner.

Coach was Harry Fairall, member of a Victoria West family prominent in sports in the early 1900s.

Stewart told me with a note of pride in his voice that he married the captain, Isobel Isbister, in 1911 and that they had 60 years together before she died in 1971.

As for the others, he doesn't know if any of them are alive now—or, if so, where they live.

I wonder if there is anyone who does know? If so, I would like to hear.

dear abby

Ashamed of Son's Trans-Sexual Mate

DEAR ABBY: About three months ago my son, who is 37, divorced and the father of two, introduced me to his fiancee — a nice-looking intelligent, refined person. I took to her right away. (I'll call her "Agnes.")

My son told me that Agnes was a "transsexual." I never knew such people existed, Abby. He explained that she was born a male and lived as a man for 26 years, but always felt she should have been a woman. She had a sex-change operation two years ago and is now a normal woman, except that she can't bear a child.

Agnes looks as much like a woman as I do. Nobody would ever know she wasn't a born female. Anyway, I had a hard time accepting all this but when I saw how happy she is making my son, I couldn't hold it against her.

Nobody in our family knows her background, and I don't want them to, but Agnes is going on a national TV show to tell her story. (She says it will help other transsexuals.) If she goes on TV, all our friends and relatives will recognize her and I don't, think I could hold my head up. My son says he doesn't mind, and he's considering going on TV with her!

Don't you think they should consider me and keep this whole thing a family secret?

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: Agnes' first consideration is to herself. If she and your son want to go on TV, it's up to them. Ask Agnes to tell you more about the transsexual phenomenon. Nature sometimes makes mistakes, but God has divinely inspired men with the medical and scientific knowledge plus the surgical skill to correct them. Hold up your head. You have nothing to be ashamed of.

DEAR ABBY I am a magician, and one of the last in the business but I'm out of work now. How can I get a job?

BRANTINO

DEAR BRANTINO: You're a magician and you're asking ME?

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe this is hapvening to me.

My daughter is 28 and my son is 30. They are both married, but no children, thank God.

My son's wife and my daughter's husband fell in love, and they are divorcing their mates to marry each other!

In an effort to save our son's marriage, my husband had a heart-to-heart talk with our son's mother-in-law (who is a nice-looking divorcee), and now my husband is involved with this woman to the point of asking me for a legal separation until he can get his head straight!

Abby this is like a bad dream. My lawyer says that my husband will come to his senses, so I shouldn't be too hasty with the divorce, but I don't want a man who doesn't want me.

Our children are young and can make other lives for themselves, although my daughter is so heartbroken she is in therapy. Neither my daughter nor son had a clue as to what was going on between their mates.

Please tell me, is divorce contagious?

DIZZY FROM DIVORCES

DEAR DIZZY: Divorce is not contagious, but some people who have considered it fleetingly have gathered courage from friends and relatives who actually go through with it. Every divorce doesn't represent a failure. Some, believe it or not, are "victories."

Mushrooms Rate Better Than Supporting Role

Too often, mushrooms are simply added to something else. There is no need for them to play only a supporting role, since they can do quite well in solo parts. Here are three ways:

MUSHROOMS WITH LEMON

1 pound of mushrooms
5 tablespoons of margarine
3 tablespoons of lemon juice
¼ teaspoon of nutmeg powder
½ teaspoon of cornstarch (optional).

Rinse the mushrooms, snap off the stems and cut away the discolored bottoms. If they're large mushrooms, you may want to cut the caps into two or three pieces.

Use a frying pan or saucepan with a tight cover. Melt margarine and add all the ingredients except cornstarch. Cover and cook over a moderate flame for about 10 minutes. Thicken the sauce with cornstarch, if you wish, and serve.

MUSHROOMS WITH MARSALA

This is a variation on the above. Eliminate the lemon juice and nutmeg and instead use a quarter teaspoon of sweet basil and two tablespoons of marsala.

MUSHROOM STUFFED MUSHROOMS

This is a variation on either of the above two receipes. You'll need large mushrooms for this one.

Finely chop the stems and cook them either with lemon juice or marsala. Reduce the cooking time to three minutes.

Put the cooked mushroom stems in the caps along with about a teaspoon of the sauce and broil six inches from the flame for about 10 minutes.

TOASTER OVEN MAKES SUPPER

TOASTER-OVEN SUPPER
Creamed Ham or Chicken
Baked Pepper Squash Half
Baked Apple

SQUASH—Preheat Toaster-oven at 450 deg. Fahr. Meanwhile wash pepper squash. Cut in half. Wrap one half in plastic bag and refrigerate for future meal. Scoop seeds from squash. Add 2 teaspoons butter or margarine to hollow. Butter the cut surface to prevent toughening. Put in toaster oven on tray. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. 1 hour.

APPLE: Wash and core 1 Spy apple. Drop 1 cube of sugar in hole. Place beside squash half on toaster oven tray and bake 50 minutes at 450 deg. Fahr. (Note: This way both squash and apple are baked and tender at the same time.)

CREAMED HAM OR CHICKEN: While squash and apple are baking make the Creamed Ham or Chicken: Make a sauce by blending 1 tbsp. butter with 1 tbsp. flour in a small pot, then stir in ½ c. milk till thick. Remove from heat. Add ½ cup well packed cut-up cooked ham or chicken. If chicken is used you may want to add a little salt to the cream sauce.

Complete Indian Dinner Easy to Make

craig claiborne

By CRAIG CLAIBORNE and PIERRE FRANEY

NEW YORK — One of the best Indian cooks in Manhattan is Ismail Merchant, a 36-year-old, Bombay-born movie producer whose credits include the critically acclaimed film "Shakespeare Wallah." In the kitchen, Ismail Merchant offers working proof that there are scores of dishes from his homeland that are not in the least difficult to prepare. A complete Indian menu is offered here — an easily made first course, shrimp with dill; an excellent, delectable, multiflavored pan roast of lamb as a main course; hot green beans with a tangy and tantalizing sauce of mustard; dill, the traditional lentil dish, made special with lemon; and a seductive milk, almond and saffron dessert, sheer (milk) khorma (nuts and things). Of the dal, Ismail states, "It is a rich man's-poor man's dish, and every household has its own version. It is a must with any meal, and if you don't offer it, something is wrong."

DAHI SHRIMP
(shrimp with dill)

2 pounds raw shrimp
1 cup yogurt
2 teaspoons cayenne pepper (or less, according to taste)
2 cloves finely chopped garlic
1 teaspoon caraway seeds
¼ teaspoon ground turmeric
Salt
4 tablespoons oil, preferably mustard oil
¼ cup finely chopped fresh dill

1. Peel and devein the shrimp. Rinse well, drain, pat dry and set aside.
2. Combine the yogurt, cayenne pepper, garlic, caraway seeds, turmeric and salt to taste. Add the shrimp and blend well. Cover and refrigerate until ready to use.
3. Heat the oil in a deep skillet or casserole and add the shrimp. Cook, stirring gently, and cover. Cook until the shrimp change color. Sprinkle with dill and serve hot. The pan juices will be quite liquid.

Yield: Eight to 12 servings.

BHUNA GHOST
(pan-roasted lamb)

1 four-and-one-quarter-pound lean, skinless, boneless leg of lamb (about 7 pounds before boning)
2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh ginger
3 hot green chilies, chopped with seeds
1 tablesoon finely chopped garlic
1½ tablespoons chopped fresh coriander leaves
Juice of one lemon
Salt to taste
1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1 tablespoon peanut, vegetable or corn oil

1. Cut the lamb or have it cut into 1½-inch cubes.
2. Place the lamb in a bowl; add the remaining ingredients. Set aside until ready to cook, one hour or longer.
3. Preheat oven to 350 degrees.
4. Spoon the lamb into a shallow roasting pan. A recommended size is about 16 by 9½ by 2½ inches. Smooth the lamb over and place the pan in the oven, uncovered. Bake 1 hour and 15 minutes without stirring. The lamb should be quite tender; the pan juices will be quite liquid. Serve with rice.

Yield: Twelve servings.

GREEN BEANS WITH MUSTARD SAUCE

2 pounds green beans
1 tablespoon imported mustard, such as Dijon or Dusseldorf
Salt and freshly ground pepper
Juice of one lemon
One-third cup olive oil

1. Cut or snap off the ends of the beans, but leave the beans whole. Let stand in cold water until ready to use.
2. Drain the beans and, preferably, steam them in a vegetable steamer about five minutes. Or cook them briefly in a large quantity of boiling water about the same length of time. The important thing is not to overcook them, so they remain crisp and tender.
3. As the beans cook, spoon the mustard into a small bowl and add the salt, pepper and lemon juice. Stir to blend and whisk in the oil.
4. Drain the beans. Add the mustard sauce to them and toss to coat well. Serve piping hot in a hot serving dish.

Yield: Twelve servings.

Flecked Celery

3 cubs bias-cut celery
Boiling, salted water
1 tbsp butter
1 tbsp chopped parsley
1 tsp lemon juice
1 small tomato, cut in thin wedges
Dash pepper.

In medium saucepan, over medium heat, cook celery in small amount of boiling, salted water until tender crisp; drain well. Add remaining ingredients. Toss. Heat through gently. Serve immediately, Makes 4 servings.

LIMBO DAL
(Lemon lentils)

1¼ cups peanut, vegetable or corn oil
2 onions, halved and thinly sliced, about 1½ cups
4 two-inch pieces of cinnamon stick
2 pounds red lentils
1 tablespoon chopped fresh ginger root
5 cups chicken broth
2 cups water
Salt
1 teaspoon cayenne pepper
Juice of one lemon
The squeezed, seeded shell of one lemon, including skin and pulp
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, finely minced
1 hot green chili, chopped, with seeds
4 bay leaves
½ cup chopped fresh coriander leaves

1. Heat three-quarters cup of the oil in a large saucepan and add the sliced onions. Cook to wilt and add the cinnamon pieces and lentils. Add the ginger and cook, stirring often, about 10 minutes. Add the broth and water, salt to taste and cayenne pepper. Bring to the boil and simmer about 10 minutes.
2. Add the lemon juice and lemon shell and cook about 50 minutes longer, stirring often.
3. Heat the remaining half cup of oil and add the chopped onion, garlic, chili and bay leaves. Cook, stirring, until onion is browned. Add this mixture, including the oil, to the lentils. Sprinkle with chopped coriander leaves and serve hot.

More Tests for Patty

LOS ANGELES — Patricia Hearst Wednesday refused to enter a plea to state charges, on grounds she may be mentally incompetent, setting off a request from the judge for another round of psychiatric tests.

Her attorney complained he must somehow convince federal prison officials to provide time for the mental examination requested by the state court while Miss Hearst is undergoing tests for a federal court.

Miss Hearst appeared Wednesday to enter a plea to 11 charges of kidnapping, robbery and assault, stemming from an alleged symbionese from an alleged Symbionese Liberation Army crime spree Harris, former captors, then comrades.

There were no fireworks when Miss Hearst was reunited with the Harrises, although the joint appearance was the first time they had seen each other since they were arrested eight months ago.

Since then their friendship soured, turning them into legal and personal enemies, as Miss Hearst offered to testify against the Harrises for her kidnapping and other crimes.

Sitting at the defence table with lawyers interposed between them, they ignored each other until just before the end of the 2½ hour session. Miss Hearst glanced at Mrs. Harris, who returned an icy stare, then tossed her head in disdain. Miss Hearst gave a small smile.

ANNE RIDING

LONDON — Princess Anne returns to riding competition today for the first time since she cracked a vertbra in a riding accident April 21. The princess has entered two horses in the Spillers combined championship at the Royal Windsor horse show.

Pot Puffed In Jail Cell

VERNON — Dean Evans of Armstrong, caught smoking marijuana in RCMP cells, now faces a three-month sentence for possession of marijuana. Evans was in the cells serving a staggered sentence for a breaking and entering conviction. Police said he apparently smuggled the marijuana into the cells in his clothing, despite a routine search.

FOLSOM, Calif. — Charles Manson has been transferred from Folsom Prison to a state medical facility for treatment of "psychological deterioration." In recent weeks Manson has refused to leave his cell or exercise, choosing instead to remain in isolation. He continued to take his meals, however, and has not been violent. Manson was previously sent to the medical facility in 1974 because of both physical and psychological deterioration. "At that time, he was psychotic to the point where he wasn't communicating," an official said. "But we managed to get him out of it."

LONDON — Jo Grimond, former leader and elder statesman of Britain's Liberal party, agreed Wednesday to serve as caretaker party chief in place of Jeremy Thorpe who resigned in a mounting controversy over allegations that he once had a homosexual affair with a male model. Grimond said he will serve only until the party elects a new leader. The party is expected to discuss election procedures at a conference June 12.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — federal officials issued an arrest warrant Wednesday for an unemployed truck driver who boasted of leading an armed raid which freed 14 Americans from a Mexican border town jail. Donald Fielden, 31, of Dallas was to surrender today to face a charge of illegal importation of arms, U.S. customs officials said.

CARBONDALE, Ill. — A Southern Illinois University psychologist says scientific research in the United States may have suffered its biggest setback in a decade when the Senate voted to end federal support for his controversial sex-and-marijuana experiments. Dr. Harris Rubin, a behavioral researcher at the SIU school of medicine, said his research was a victim of politics and that the Senate's decision is a dangerous precedent that threatens all scientific study.

BARTOW, Fla. — Wearing the traditional cap and gown and carrying a briefcase and a teddy bear, the oldest man in the United States picked up an honorary high school diploma Wednesday. Charlie Smith, 133, recognized by the Social Security administration as the oldest human in the United States, also received a gold watch from Polk County school board chairman Homer Adair. The teddy bear was a gift from a newsman two weeks ago, and Smith reportedly has carried it with him ever since. The contents of the briefcase were unknown.

WASHINGTON — Sen. Hubert Humphrey, recently received a letter from the Social Security administration extending "greetings" and informing him he soon will be eligible for a pension. He will be 65 on May 27. Humphrey said he wrote a reply telling them not to rush it. "I'm sending it over to my friend the president," he said during a hearing of Congress' joint economic committee Wednesday, "telling him I'm not ready to retire yet."

Probe Ordered

THE HAGUE (AP) — The Dutch government has ordered its security agency — the BVD — to investigate reports that a member of parliament and a prominent member of the Socialist party have been working for the Soviet Union's KGB intelligence organization.

Explore your part of Canada

There's so much to go for nearby.

Whether you're planning an annual vacation, or a "get away from it all" long week-end, there are a host of exciting holiday choices within comfortable distance of your home.

RESORT HOLIDAYS: No matter what road you travel, you'll be headed for great resorts like Penticton, one of the Okanagan Valley's many fine resort areas. This peaceful area abounds in special festivals... and fun...all summer long. Or there's nothing like the unique mountain setting of resort towns such as Harrison Hot Springs or the beautiful scenery you'll find along the Fraser Canyon. Both these areas boast inviting hotels, motels, and friendly country inns.

CITY HOLIDAYS: Naturally you're familiar with Victoria's many attractions, but how well acquainted are you with Vancouver? Spend some time there this summer and be prepared to meet a city full of fun and variety. You can take a chairlift to the top of Grouse Mountain for a spectacular view, or head on down to Chinatown for an equally spectacular meal. A visit to Stanley Park, with its famous zoo and aquarium is certainly worthwhile. So is a tour of Gastown, the newly revived heart of Old Vancouver. Another "must-see" in Vancouver is the beautiful Nitobe Memorial Gardens. One thing's for sure, whether its concerts or regattas, art shows or Theater in the Park, there's always something going on in Vancouver.

BOAT CRUISES: You can cruise along the coast of British Columbia for a few hours or several days thanks to the varied schedule of the B.C. Ferries system. These boats are much more than "highway links" between one area and another; they also provide fun-filled excursions up and down the scenic coast and inland passage between Kelsey Bay, Vancouver Island, and Prince Rupert. There is also a cruise which provides a marvellous way to start off an exciting trip through B.C.'s northern interior.

HISTORY: From Nanaimo, with its museum, Hudson's Bay Company fort, and prehistoric "rock paintings" to Williams Lake to Barkerville, the old gold rush capital of the Cariboo, and down to Kamloops, and Kelowna with its old Mission and Museum of Natural History — in fact almost everywhere you go in British Columbia — you travel with history as your companion and guide. And there's so much to see: marvellous reconstructions of forts and trading posts, old stage coach stops, and a wide variety of museums devoted to our heritage and the personalities who made it.

OUTDOOR FUN: British Columbia has so many areas just perfect for outdoor activities, you'll have a delightful time deciding which ones to visit first. There's the spectacular Pacific Rim National Park, Wells Grey, Manning and Shuswap Lake Provincial Parks to name just a few. Each boasts excellent recreational facilities and many many lakes in which to swim, fish or have fun in a boat. There are also many facilities for hiking and water sports.

Think about it. You don't have to travel far when there's so much to do all around you. And ask a travel agent about low-cost, "close-to-home" tours by motorcoach, air, rail or ship. Look forward to exploring your part of Canada this year.

SERIES STARTS TODAY

Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm will be guest today at 10 p.m. on the first of a series of public affairs programs, Spotlight on Policy, presented by Channel 10 television.

Host John Postma, who is also producer of the series, said he intends to feature minsters of the Crown, senor public servants and others in public administration who play a role in policy development.

He will use a variety of supporting resources, including University of Victoria and Camosun College, in presentation of his subjects. Postmas himself is a former teacher-administrator at Notre Dame University in Nelson, has been a weekly newspaper editor and management consultant and holds master's degrees from the University of Ottawa and Carleton University.

It's No Entertainer, Just a Boring Play

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

This review of Victoria Theatre Guild's The Entertainer comes late in the run of the show which lasts through Saturday at Langham Court.

When it opened last week I was busy elsewhere. And when I caught up with it this week, after sitting through seven scenes that added up to the most boring 90 minutes in a long recollection of play-going, I escaped with the strong feeling that the rest should be silence.

In the first place, why did the Theatre Guild elect to end its season with a play that however well constructed, presents an ugly, shoddy and bitterly sad aspect of British life?

John Osbourne wrote the play specifically for Laurence Olivier and the script therefore insists that its dominant and pivotal role by played by an actor of considerable range, depth and discernment and, moreover, one who has some direct knowledge of the English music hall stage and its denizens.

Unless such an actor is at hand no amateur or professional company should attempt this play, for the rest of the cast are very little more than stooges for decaying entertainer Archie Rice.

For the Theatre Guild the role is attempted by Robert Price, who has some gift for comedy but is not in any sense a music hall type actor, nor in any respect an especially versatile one.

Art Budd, who does know British music hall, has coached Price but only the sketchiest externals of a song-dance-and-joke man and no concept of the kind of person who follows that career have been achieved.

Price's routines as far as I saw them, have no vitality and therefore make no distinct contrast to the unspotlighted man. He also has an infuriating habit of meaningless foot shuffling throughout all his scenes. It has cropped up in other roles and badly needs directorial attention.

But not only is the central role mishandled, it's a weak cast generally with the exception of capable Sheila Litt who, as Archie's down-trodden and miserable wife, does, not her best, but what she can with no help from anyone.

The long expository scene at the beginning between Grandfather Rice (Adrian Jarvis) and grandaughter Jean (Cathy Trembath) is flat and interminable because director Hetty Clews has permitted an energy level at zero to persist throughout with Jarvis lacking variety and any sense of pace and pause, and Trembath showing what appears to be a total absence of experience.

What has been said here pertains to what was seen only and is confined to matters that would not alter significantly in the latter six scenes of the play.

Hoover
$20.00 off
on Celebrity II Air-Ride if you buy before May 31st.

Here's a sweeping gesture from Hoover—buy a Celebrity II Air-Ride before May 31st, 1976 and pocket $20 in the bargain. Just look at these features:

Model S3071 Air-Ride Celebrity II

Powermatic nozzle
If there's one thing that makes a Celebrity II famous, it's Hoover's exclusive Powermatic Nozzle. Its heart is a motor-driven agitator that beats-as-it-sweeps-as-it-cleans. With its hardened steel beater bar it can handle the toughest jobs.

Full-time edge cleaning
With Celebrity II, the suction power works right up to the nozzle edges, so you can clean right up to the baseboards.

3-position handle
Only Hoover's handle gives you 3-position adjustment. For storage. Operating. And tinder furniture. (It means that you can stop stooping.)

Toe-touch surface selector
You can adjust Celebrity II for hard surface or carpeted floors with just a touch of the toe. There's a built-in brush that bears down on bare floors. And the indicator's on top where you can keep an eye on the setting.

Huge, multi-magnum bag
Inside every Celebrity II Air-Ride there's a multi-magnum bag. A yard long. With a remarkable 780 square inches of filter area.

Add up the features and subtract $20, and see for yourself why now is the time to buy the Hoover Celebrity II Air-Ride.

Old Pro Lauds New Mascot's Zeal in Staging Gypsy

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Mention the name of Grace Macdonald to anyone familiar with the mainland entertainment scene and a whole cavalcade of stage musicals begins to flood the memory.

Theatre Under the Stars, U B C's Mussoc, Kiwanis shows, motoramas — if there was dancing there was almost certainly Grace Macdonald behind it, choreographing, exerting her mesmeric vitality on dancers and non-dancers alike.

Five years ago she gave up her dance school; this year she ended her 25 years as dance director for Mussoc with the production of Dolly and "officially" retired to enjoy her roles as wife, mother of two, grandmother of five and gardener.

MacDONALD
. . . vital influence

But in fact her so-called retirement has given her more time for television work and such assignments as commuting to Victoria to choreograph the new Mascot Musical Theatre production of Gypsy.

Bounding with vitality, the spirited red-haired Winnipeg-born Scot thinks nothing of having just returned from taking the Vancouver College production of South Pacific to St. John's, Nfld., coming to Victoria for a day of rehearsals and flying back to Vancouver to continue with preparation of a new CBC show.

A professional since the age of 10, Grace is thoroughly enjoyed working with the mostly amateur company of Gypsy: "When I first met the cast I was delighted with their enthusiasm and even more delighted later when I found what zeal they had."

She also says the production team is great.

"We understand each other and work smoothly together," she says.

While the cast is drawn from the best amateur ranks, the direction is professional, with John Krich as general director, Howard Denike musical director and Giles Hogya designing the lighting.

Donna Denike is rehearsal pianist and "a tremendous asset," says Grace. She is also impressed with Elden Ulrich's devotion to duty as the show's stage manager.

"I had an idea it was going to be good before I ever met any of them,' 'she said.

"At the top it's the same group (Krich, Hogya, Ulrich, Helen Smith, Anthony Jenkins, Susan Goldwater, Rosalind Scott) that took Threepenny Opera to St. John's two years ago and they're still remembered at the arts centre there with enthusiasm."

Grace was a member of the profesional troupe known as The Winnipeg Kiddies at 10 and she also studied in New York and Chicago before her family moved to the coast when she was 15.

She began doing choreograp-hy at that time started her own school and later, as a member of Dance Educators of America and the National Asociation of Dance and Affiliated Artists, taught teachers in seminars in various U.S. cities.

Her first big break came in Winnipeg when she gave such a spirited performance as the hind end of a giraffe that she was picked for the major role of Puck in Midsummer Night's Dream.

The CBC show she is doing now is a special, a pilot for a possible series starring Judy Ginn and probably to be called Pints East, Points West. Previously she has done segments of the Irish Rovers, a Shari Lewis special and It's a Musical World.

In Gypsy, which is the story of how Gypsy Rose Lee came to be the world's most ladylike and famous stripper, Grace is designing choreography for and teaching a troupe many of whom were not dancers to begin with.

"But they pay attention, they work hard and they're coming along just fine."

And producer Mary Jane Scott comments: "How can they help it will all that dynamic energy, personality and skill to spur them on?"

How has she done so much and still functioned as a wife and mother?

"It would have been impossible without the interest, cooperation and patience of my husband, Jimmy Gillan," she replies. He's here today watching the Gypsy rehearsals at UVic's Phoenix Theatre.

Oyster Festival May 23

DENMAN ISLAND — The annual Denman Island oyster festival will be held Sunday, May 23 at the island's community hall.

The colorful festival which starts at 10 a.m., is sponsored by the island's recreation commission and backed by the oyster industry.

The official opening and stage show are set for 1 p.m. Feature event is the World Oyster Shucking championship. There will also be contests for the Oyster Bowl Challenge trophy and many cash and merchandise prizes.

Contests start at 2 p.m. Contestants must supply their own gloves and knives.

Entertainment will be provided by the Comox Valley concert band. There will be a Bavarian garden, sports events and championship horseshoe pitching starting at 10 a.m.

Food, including oyster burgers, baked salmon salads and a variety of other dishes will be available on the grounds.

Concorde Facing Arrest?

WASHINGTON (WP) — Attorneys for the United States, France and Britain visited suburban Fairfax County, Va., to see if there were not some gentlemanly way to avoid an international incident over the possible arrest of the Concorde supersonic jet transport.

"Just a routine lawyers' meeting," said John Ely, the general counsel for the U.S. department of transportation.

The other "routine" lawyers attending were Charles Goodell, former senator from New York, now representing France, and William Ruckelshaus, former deputy attorney-general and head of the Environmental Protection Agency, now representing Great Britian.

Their host was Frederic Lee Ruck, former assistant corporation counsel in the District of Columbia and now the Fairfax County attorney.

The subject of this meeting was a noise ordinance that the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors passed April 13.

It has the effect of banning the Concored from Fairfax County. (A half mile of one Dulles Airport's runway extends into the county and a quarter of a mile of another).

British Airways and Air France plan, nonetheless, to formally inaugurate Concorde service from Paris and London to Dulles May 24.

"Obviously, the inauguration of Concorde service is inconsistent with the laws of Fairfax County," said county Chairman John Herrity. "You can count on our ordinances being enforced."

Will the crew be arrested? The plane impounded?

"Lawyers' talk," said Goodell. "You agree on how you're going to proceed. I don't think anybody wants to have a physical confrontation."

Shawnigan Jubilee June 5

The Shawnigan Lake School Diamond Jubilee will be held Saturday, June 5, celebrating the 60th anniversary of the school's foundation.

A Founder's Day and Thanksgiving Service will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday with an address by E. R. Larsen, head boy in 1942 and headmaster at the school from 1957 to 1967.

An Open House will begin at 2 p.m., and a tea party for the public on the school lawns is slated for 4 p.m. backgrounded by music, sporting events, displays and exhibitions portraying the different aspects of school life.

A bar and beer garden is scheduled for invited guests starting at 5:30 p.m. and a beef barbeque dinner at 6:15 p.m., followed by evening of film presentations, including the CBC documentary Portrait of a Private School which featured Shawnigan Lake. At 9:30 p.m. the school will become a stage for Son et Lumiere a dramatic school presentation of the school's 60-year history. Holy Communion will be offered Whit Sunday, June 6 for guests at 8:30 a.m.

McCLELLAND ORDERS PROBE OF ABORTIONS

The provincial health department is making a study of abortion procedures in provincial hospitals to determine whether any laws are being broken by surgeons performing abortions.

Health Minister Bob McClelland said he asked his staff for a study of the situation after a brief presented Wednesday by Pro-Life, a B.C. anti-abortion group.

Tory leader Dr. Scott Wallace said for every 100 births in Vancouver, there are 41 abortions and Vancouver has the highest abortion rate in the country.

He said he wanted the study to determine whether "the Criminal Code is being broken every day."

Wallace said abortions performed after 20 weeks of pregnancy can produce live babies and that a surgeon has every responsibility to make sure that a live baby is kept alive, even though it is the product of an abortion.

Under the Vital Statistics Act, surgeons must report every birth or death from an abortion performed later than 20 weeks of pregnancy, Wallace said.

He said he hoped the health department study would show whether the Vital Statistics Act is being followed.

McClelland said the study will be made public.

Crown Body Will Own Gov't Buildings

The B.C. government Wednesday introduced legislation to set up a Crown corporation which would eventually own every provincial building in the province.

Public Works Minister Alex Fraser said outside the house the new corporation will be responsible for construction of all government buildings and leasing space for government offices.

"Every government department will be charged for the space it uses," the minister said. "That way each department will be more responsible in its requests for space."

He said the act results from recommendations made by former B.C. Hydro co-chairman Gordon Shrum in his study of the $135 million office-courthouse development under construction in Vancouver.

Under the act, the corporation would provide land and buildings for government departments and be able to buy, lease, build and sell accommodation. It would also be permitted to expropriate.

Fraser was unable to say when the corporation would control all provincial buildings but that it was the eventual goal.

The corporation will have the authority to borrow up to $200 million for capital projects, and will be funded through general revenue "until the revenues of the corporation are sufficient to meet its current liabilities."

Fraser said there is provision in the legislation for the corporation to pay full municipal taxes once that becomes government policy.

Fraser also gave the go-ahead Wednesday to the Vancouver office-courthouse complex.

Plans for construction of an office tower and courthouse complex on blocks 51, 61 and 71 in Vancouver were approved in 1970. The government set aside $35 million at the time for this project.

But in 1972, the project was re-evaluated and redesigned at a loss of $5 million, and construction started.

Cost of the new project were estimated earlier this year at $120 million.

In his report, tabled in the legislature Wednesday, Shrum recommended the project "essentially in its present form be pushed to completion.

MacMinn Quitting House

E. George MacMinn, deputy clerk of the Legislature for the past 20 years, will begin an extended leave of absence Jan. 1, 1977.

Effective that date he will be concentrating his efforts on his private law practice with emphasis on criminal and civil court work.

MacMinn had originally intended to leave his postion as one of the Speaker's chief advisers in January of this year, but the change of government and the appointment of a new Speaker convinced him he should stay for at least another year.

Through the years MacMinn has maintained his private practice but increasing duration of legislative sessions, plus at least two sessions a year, have made the double-task increasingly difficult.

Clerk of the house is lawyer Ian Horne.

Fishing Safety Plan Announced

A program to improve safety for fishing fleets off the West Coast was announced Wednesday by Recreation and Travel Minister Grace McCarthy.

McCarthy made the announcement after a meeting between federal Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc and several cabinet ministers. McCarthy said LeBlanc has agreed to include B.C. fisheries staff on an inter-agency committee working on fishing fleet safety.

She said LeBlanc concurred that training in boat operation and seamanship needs to be improved and that safety regulations, together with vessel inspection, must be upgraded and applied to all fishing boats.

No further details were released.

McCarthy said she and LeBlanc also agreed that the federal-provincial fisheries enhancement program should be continued and that restrictions on the capturing of killer whales should be extended.

Also at the meeting were Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, Transport Minister Jack Davis, and Environment Minister Jim Nielson.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal was played in a recent rubber-bridge game, West found an interesting way to misdirect the South declarer.

	NORTH
	♠ Q 10 3
	♡ K 10 9 6
	◇ A Q 6
	♣ A K 3

	SOUTH
	♠ 9 8 6 2
	♡ A J 8 7 4
	♣ Q J

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

Dummy's ten was played on West's opening spade lead, and East captured the trick with his jack. East then cashed the spade king, after which he played the ace of spades. On the third spade lead West had a discard to make.

It is my guess that virtually every West defender in this world would have discarded either a club or a diamond. But not our West defender. He trumped his partner's winning ace of spades, and then led the three of diamonds. The trick was captured by dummy's queen.

Put yourself in our South declarer's seat. He had been wondering all along which high trump to lay down first, and whether or not he should finesse against the queen on the second round if both opponents followed suit to the first round. But when West "wasted" a trump on his partner's trick, South felt reasonably sure that West did not hold the queen of trumps, for if he did he surely would have guarded it.

So, after winning trick four with dummy's diamond queen, declarer laid down the board's king of hearts, probably intending to finesse on the next round against East's presumed queen. On this lead East discarded a diamond — and West's queen of trumps was now assured of taking the setting trick.

West really couldn't get up on the table and dance, partly because gloating is frowned upon in most circles, but partly also because South might have started trumps from the wrong hand in any case. Nevertheless, West felt — and properly so — that he had at least nudged declarer in the wrong direction, which was the best he could have done.

For those bridge players who might still believe that deception, chicanery, and the creation of illusions have no place at the bridge table, this deal is submitted in refutation.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Friday, May 14

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Accent on spiritual insights, writing, travel, unique studies and educational programs. Pisces, Virgo persons figure in picture. You look inward—you ask perennial question, "Why am I here?" The answers to many queries may be perceived.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Dig deep for source material — you could strike pay dirt. Reject the superficial. Build on solid base. Refuse to be intimidated by one who "huffs and puffs." Individual in charge of major operation could seek your counsel.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Finish rather than initiated projects. Spread influence through greater distribution, more efficient display. Aries, Libra could be featured prominently. Emphasis on partnership, public relations, joint efforts, marriage.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Highlight basic issues. Keep diet, health resolutions. Give more attention to nutrition. Welcome new contacts, concepts. You get chance to be more independent in thought, action. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Highlight creativity — welcome change, travel, variety. Relationship intensifies. You have more concern than usual in connection with family, home and hearth. You have what you need — now start "using" it!

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): More joy at home base indicated. You expand emotional horizons. You see beyond your nose. You correct past mistakes. You get on more solid footing. Those who might have been disdainful take serious, second looks.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Emphasis on movement, ideas, special messages involving relatives. Check fine print. Read between the lines. Be aware of details. Do your "homework." Review and revise. Stand tall for beliefs without being fanatical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Investigate — piece together bits of information. You can get complete picture —if persistent. Money is involved. You have right to ask questions. Don't be intimidated into silence. Check valuables. Guard against loss in transit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Lunar cycle is high — your judgement, timing, intuition are likely to be on target. Know it and act in confident manner. Take initiative. Exercise independence. Strive for originality. Family member makes major concession.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Much that happens is confidential, behind the scenes. Secrets are told and you're asked to keep confidences. Check sources. Visit club, group, hospital. Someone you care for is temporarily handicapped.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Emphasis on desire, friendship, fulfillment of wishes. Gain greater understanding of priorities. Money management now is more important than usual. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure prominently. Older person is willing to share experience — and give you benefit of doubt.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): Emphasis on career, enlargment of scope — you're able to better communicate, to get what you need and to rid yourself of someone else's burden. Message will be clarified. Aries, Libra figure in picture.

IF MAY 14th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you're a good detective, you sense when something of importance is to occur; you can express yourself in writing. You're attractive to opposite sex, sensual, energetic, restless and may change residence this year. September and November are significant months. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life.

NO INTEREST IN M-SCHOOL?

VANCOUVER (CP) — School Superintendent Dr. Dante Lupini says newspaper ads asking parents' response to proposals for a more structured, traditional type of elementary school have been largely ignored. Trustees voted to send information home with elementary school children soliciting their parents' interest in the school and advising that a public meeting will be held on the subject.

Weed Seeds Rise with Tilling

Home gardeners read many amazing things about plants, insects, and soil, and some are able to quote verbatim what they have read. But the acquired knowledge is useful only when converted to practical application.

We know that nature distributes seeds in a haphazard manner, leaving the results to the law of averages. To outwit this law, all seeds are not able to germinate the following year. Some may lie dormant for five years providing a reserve against adverse conditions.

Whether it is a wise procedure or not, the gardener turns the soil each year, either with a machine or a shovel. In doing so, weed seeds lying on the surface are buried, and it has been shown that some of these seeds can lie dormant for as long as 50 years, then germinate as soon as later cultivation brings them back to the surface.

This is the answer to where the beautiful crop of weeds come from every time we disturb the soil.

We can apply this knowledge to a piece of soil in which a lawn is to be sown. After tilling, raking and sowing, the first to germinate are the weed seeds brought to the surface during preparation.

The one thing we object to in a lawn is weeds, yet it is impossible to prevent their growth when the soil is loaded with weed seeds. Sure we can poison the soil and kill the seeds, but nothing else will grow there until all the poison vapors have gone which, ironically, is indicated by the renewed growth of weeds.

Considering the cost in time and labor to make a lawn, a more reasonable approach would be to till or dig the area, roughly level, dress lightly with fertilizer, and keep watered the same as the rest of the garden.

Under such ideal conditions the weeds will flourish and can be tilled under before reaching the flowering stage, and the tilling will bring more seeds to the surface. The quantity will decrease with each tilling, and by September when amateur gardeners normally sow their lawns, the plot will be relatively weed-free.

Deep rooted perennial weeds, the ones so useful for bringing up nutrients from the subsoil, will be cut off at the first tilling, but will appear again as the summer progresses. Whether they be curly-dock, thistles, or couchgrass, as soon as we spot their location we can lift them out with a shovel and make sure they are no further trouble.

Unfortunately, few home gardeners can tolerate a piece of vacant soil, even when such vacancy can save hours of work and unnecessary expense in later years, as well as giving the lawn of their dreams.

A common practice, therefore, is to grow a crop of potatoes or other vegetables for the season ahead of lawn seeding, on the premise that frequent cultivation will kill out the weeds.

It will do that in areas between the rows of plants if spaded or tilled every two weeks, but the soil in which the plants are growing is not turned over and the dormant weed seeds will remain until the final preparation for sowing.

Weed killers should not be applied until the fourth year after the lawn is sown. Tests have shown the hormones weaken the young grass and result in a poor sod. This means three years of hand weeding to get our dream lawn, or a lot of resowing and patching.

If we wish, we can avoid these undesirable chores by making the weed seeds germinate before the grass seed is sown, and we have just three months in which to do it prior to final preparation.

Personally, I think a bare patch of soil ridding itself of weeds indicates a home gardener applying the things he has read.

INVEST — DON'T SPEND

When you buy this legal up and down duplex situated close to all downtown amenities. There is a separate entrance leading to each of the 2 bedroom units. Other features are W-W throughout, very uniquely located fireplaces in the L.R., and also in the master bedroom upstairs, and large cheery kitchens. One upstairs is not yet occupied, but the combined monthly income could be $760.00, which would more than carry the payments on the existing assumable mortgage. This would definetely suit an owner-occupier. See it with me.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DAVIES—Ernest, who passed away May 13, 1962
What would I give to clasp his hand
His happy face to see,
To hear his voice and see his smile,
That meant so much to me.
—Your loving wife Trixie and Family.

STINSON—Helen, passed away May 12, 1973.
"Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The worlds weary troubles and trials are past.
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more."
—Earle and Jerry.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Off and again, a leaf blown
by the wind
Falls on the broad ocean

'Tis never lost: where'er it fate may blow,

The imprint of its settling's left behind.

And so with every life,
whate'er its kind,

It shapes itself a place,
'tis destined so,

It hence in peace or turmoil
it should go,

Its influence ever lives,
as 'twas designed.

Capital Region Asked To Build Rec Centre

Sidney and North Saanich councils asked the Capital Region Board Wednesday to take charge of planning, construction and operation of a recreation centre for them.

But ratepayers in both communities will make the decision on whether such a centre goes ahead when a referendum is held Sept. 11.

Both councils have stipulated that any centre must not cost more than $1.5 million nor add more than four mills to the 1976 assessments.

The regional board is being asked to serve the same coordinating role it did in construction of the Juan de Fuca recreation complex for Colwood and Langford and the building of the arena at Sooke.

A year ago Central Saanich was a partner with Sidney and North Saanich in recreation centre plans but recently withdrew over cost differences. A Central Saanich council committee is examining the feasibility of council building its own centre.

In other business, the regional board Wednesday rejected a planning committee recommendation and thus ended a move to convert the former Four-Mile House to a neighborhood pub.

The committee's recommendation made no mention of the pub proposal, simply recommending approval in principal to a land use proposed by Kamian Holdings providing traffic and parking problems could be solved.

But Mrs. Pat Massy, director for View Royal, told the board the intention of the development was a neighborhood pub and she opposed it because traffic problems on that section of the Island Highway were severe already and would only be made worse.

Victim Paralyzed

Richard Cory Small, wounded in a shooting in Esquimalt Sunday remains in poor condition in Victoria General Hospital today, paralyzed from his neck down.

Small, 32, of 519 Constance, and John Warren Ingham, 29, of 825 Admirals were both shot after an argument broke out in the Dockyard Recreation Association club, 763 Admirals.

Ingham is listed in satisfactory condition recovering from a bullet wound to his chest.

Joseph Hadasz, 43, of 819 Wollaston has been charged with two counts of attempted murder.

Many Battles In Lebanon

BEIRUT (UPI) — Country-wide fighting threatened to shatter Syria's peace initiative today and thrust Lebanon into open war before president-elect Elias Sarkis can assume office.

The Soviet Union reportedly put diplomatic pressure on Moslem leftists to drop their objections to Syrian intervention.

More than 90 persons were killed and 150 wounded Wednesday in battles that erupted in the capital and its suburbs, the northern city of Tripoli, and across the central Mount Lebanon region.

Leftist parties, which Tuesday issued a new rejection of Sarkis, held a long conference on the brushfire fighting with officers of the rebel Lebanese Arab Army.

But socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt, who had called the session, left unexpectedly to meet with Soviet ambassador Alexander Soldatov.

"There are important developments in the situation," Jumblatt said, but gave no further details.

Jumblatt said he would return to his coalition's meeting to report on his talks with the Russian but instead left for a hastily arranged visit to Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat.

Four Missing, Air Search On

A full-scale air search was mounted today for an aircraft with three adults and a baby aboard that has been missing since Tuesday while on a flight from Abbotsford to Calgary.

Missing are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hatch and their five-month-old son Donald, and Barry Fudger. All are from Calgary.

Their American Traveller aircraft, piloted by Hatch, left Abbotsford at 7:45 a.m. Tuesday and was due to land in Calgary at noon. The Hatches had been visiting Mrs. Hatch's mother and sister in Nanaimo and Abbotsford.

The search began Wednesday when relatives notified the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt.

Taking part in the search today were a Labrador helicopter and Buffalo aircraft from CFB Comox, as well as two Twin Otters, two helicopters and a Hercules aircraft from Edmonton.

A search-rescue headquarters was to be set up at Penticton tonight under the command of Capt. W. P. Olendy of CFB Comox.

The missing plan has a crash position beacon device aboard.

Beacon signals have been reported from four positions on the path the plane may have taken and are being checked out.

On Wednesday at 9 p.m. signals were reported in an area between Cranbrook and Prince George. Since then signals have also been reported west of Calgary, in the Penticton area and southwest of Calgary.

PENSION MONEY SUDDENLY SHOWS

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Hundreds of Canada Pension Plan cheques for April which disappeared en route to Sarnia two weeks ago have arrived at the post office here, 10 days after they were supposed to have been delivered to pensioners.

No explanation has been given as to why the cheques — nearly 1,000 of them — went astray.

Saul Ehman, district manager of the Canada Pension Plan office, said the cheques apparently went to Vancouver.

"How they got there is not known. The post office is investigating the mystery."

When the cheques failed to turn up, duplicates were issued by the department of supply and services in Ottawa and sent by special courier to Sarnia, where pensioners last week were instructed to pick them up from the local federal office.

Ehman said the original cheques will be sent to those who had not picked up their duplicates.

Air Cadet Parade Set for Sunday

Lt.-Col. J. V. Pierpoint will inspect the 89 (Pacific) Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets, 2:30 p.m. Sunday in the Bay Street Armory.

The squadron is the largest in western Canada and is commanded by Major Ken Cutler, a former cadet who graduated in 1951.

Sunday's ceremony is oepn to the public and will include special awards and displays of the squadron's activities and equipment. Ground survival, first aid, drill, air-oriented subjects and marksmanship will be featured.

Under the baton of Flt. Sgt. Judy Neave, the band will carry out a drill pattern, highlighted by a solo on the new Ludwig drums.

Flt. Sgt. Sheri Cutler will lead the precision drill team in a silent sequence of memorized movements.

A first aid team, headed by WO2 Dianne Kyffin, will treat two "crash victims".

The squadron's unbeaten floor hockey team will show its skill. The swimming pool will also be open for viewing.

SOCCER LOSS SPARKS CITY-WIDE RAMPAGE

ST. ETIENNE, France (UPI) — Angry French soccer fans went on a rampage to avenge the defeat of their soccer team by West Germans in the European Cup final, gripping this grimy industrial city with mass hysteria into the early hours today.

When the outbreak died down, police said one person died from a heart attack, dozens were injured and property damage was serious.

Eight Million S. African Blacks Losing Their Citizenship, Jobs

Washington Post

JOHANNESBURG — Eight million Africans—almost half of South Africa's population — are threatened with loss of their citizenship and jobs under new government regulations.

Members of the country's nine tribal groups, which South Africa has promised their own "homelands," will be forced to give up their rights as South African citizens in favor of citizenship in homeland.

First application of the measure came to light when the government announced this week that 1.3 million Xhosa tribesmen who live outside the Transkei—a homeland which is scheduled to become independent Oct. 26 — would be forced to take Transkei citizenship if they wished to continue working outside their homeland.

The new policy means that Samuel, a 43-year-old trader who was born and brought up in Cape Town, must become an alien to remain in the scenic coastal city. His ancestors settled in the area in the 1850's and four generations of si family have worked in the sunny Cape Province.

When Transkei leader, Chief Kaiser Matanzima, rejected what he called "forced citizenship," the government this week made a further "specification,"—no black professional or businessmen will be allowed to work in white areas—outside the homelands—unless they are Transkei citizens.

In other words, Samuel must become an alien to remain in Cape Town.

But even Transkei citizenship does not guarantee that he can stay, for he will then be subject to customs and immigration laws. Samuel has been outspoken against the South African govenrment's apartheid laws, and if the authorities feel he is politically undesirable, he could be refused "entry" into the country he considers home and forced to move to the Transkei, a place he has never even visited.

The outcry against the government directive was immediate. Wednesday's Rand Daily Mail, Johannesburg' morning paper, said the new measure "goes beyond political blackmail. It is coercion of the most blatant kind and is dangerous."

Traders and doctors in Soweto, Johannesburg's black township, reacted angrily, claiming it is an attempt by the government to "bluff" itself and the world into thinking that there are no blacks in South Africa—that the Africans belong to some distant homeland.

Dr. Harrison Motlana said the government was determined to have its way in forcing people to accept the apartheid policy.

Chief Matazima also denounced the new measure, and said that his government would reject outright any move by the government to force the Transkei to accept Xhosa who did not want to betome citizens.

Many Xhosa are rightful citizetns of South Africa, he declared, "and are the responsibility of the South African government. There is no reason why South Africa should not accommodate blacks who are not citizens of the Transkei or other homelands. Look how much land South Africa has."

(Under the homeland plan, 18 million blacks—70 per cent of the population—will have about 13 per cent of the land.)

But the minister of Bantu (black) affairs, M. C. Botha, quickly threw the ball back at Matanzima. "If Transkei refuses to grant citizenship to people outside the territory, they will become stateless by an act of the Transkei government, not by South Africa."

However, the issue goes beyond simple citizenship, for the directive has other, more subtle, implications.

The United Nations and the Organization of African Unity have already indicated that they will not recognize Transkei as an independent state in October because it is a product of South Africa's apartheid policy.

Wothout eligibility for a South African passport, Transkeians will be unable to travel abroad because their homeland passport will not be recognized. They will thus be restricted to the tribal areas of South Africa.

As one Johannesburg black commented, South Africa will become the only country in the world where the labor force is made up of more foreigners than residents.

Several political observers here claim the government announced the measure to ensure black co-operation in the homelands scheme. The Rand Daily Mail summarized:

"The simple truth is that if Africans really wanted to return to their alleged homelands, there would be no need of coercive action. But coercing them proves that even the government believes they do not want to go."

Samuel put it even more directly: "I was born in South Africa and I will always consider it my home, no matter what the government says.

"I can assure you that they have done the only thing that would get me to associate with the Transkei — by making it a prerequisite for keeping my business in Cape Town."

MENU DELIGHTS are enhanced by good waitresses and Victoria High students Louise Wowchuk (left) and Joan Tyre, taking a spring crash course from instructor Anne Britt, are practising their best behavior. Part of a work experience program this week for Vic High and Esquimalt High, 20 students are spending two hours on the job daily at a variety of restaurants in town and most have obtained part-time work after school closes. Course is one of many in the different employment fields being offered at high school level. Students sitting in for dinner are Magdolna Soos, Keith Kirk, Daryl Bedard and Brenda Bradley. Arabs in Israel May Soon Be Taking the Road to Mecca

By THOMAS W. LIPPMAN

JERUSALEM (WP) — For the first time since Israel was created around them in 1943, some Arab citizens of the Jewish state may be permitted to make pilgrimages to Mecca this year, according to government sources.

As Moslems, the 450,000 Israeli Arabs are required by their faith to visit Mecca, the birthplace of the Prophet Mohammed, at least once in their lives, if it is possible. As bearers of Israeli passports, they have been unable to do so since neither Saudi Arabia nor the other Arab countries through which they would have to pass to get there recognize the existence of Israel.

Shmuel Toledano, adviser on Arab affairs to Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, said in an interview that Israel had received no specific assurances or written declarations that Israeli Arabs would be allowed into Saudi Arabia. He added that the government "would not be surprised" if approval were to be given.

The Israeli ministry of religious affairs has already announced that his country's ban on travel by its citizens to the hostile Arab countries would be lifted for any Israeli Arabs going to Saudi Arabia for the pilgrimage.

Israeli analysts say that permission from the Arab countries for Israeli Arabs to go there would not represent a softening of Arab hostility to this country. On the contrary, they say, they expect it to happen because the Arab countries are encouraging the Arabs of Israel to join and support the Arabs' anti-Zionist cause. After years of turning their backs on the Arabs who stayed here when Israel was created, the Arab countries have switched to a policy of cultivating links with the Israeli Arabs.

According to Toledano, the recent surge of nationalist activity among the Israeli Arabs, which led to the bloody riots of March 30, is expected to intensify the efforts of the Arab countries and the Palestine Liberation Organization to make common cause with the Arabs of Israel. They cannot succeed, Toledano said, if they continue to make it impossible for the Israeli Arabs to practice their religion.

Sources in the foreign ministry say they believe Jordan is prepared to allow some Israeli Arabs to pass through Amman en route to Saudi Arabia. Whether the Saudis are prepared to receive them is another matter, they said.

(Saudi diplomatic sources in Cairo said that there have been discussions through intermediaries about the possibility of Israeli Arabs' going to Saudi Arabia and that arrangements may be worked out soon. Israeli passports will not be recognized, they said, but some kind of UN travel document probably would be acceptable for this limited purpose.)

Until 1967, the Arabs of Israel were linked to the rest of the Arab world only through radio and television broadcasts from Beirut, Damascus and Amman. They had no direct contact. Since Israel seized the West Bank of Jordan, however, Israeli Arabs have regular contact with the Arabs of the occupied territory and through them with the rest of the Arab world. In addition, more than 200,000 residents of other Arab countries visited Israel last year, entering across the Jordan River bridges, according to government figures.

So far as is known, only a few Israeli Arabs have gone the other way. Three families who sought exemption from the ban on travel to the Arab countries to visit ailing relatives in Lebanon were allowed to go and were received in Lebanon, according to the Israelis. Two other families were denied admission to Jordan.

Watch Set Up On Coast Trail

A federal park warden has taken up residence at Port Renfrew to oversee the eastern section of the 45-mile west coast trail.

Frank Camp, superintendent of Pacific Rim National Park at Long Beach, said warden Bob Bach is equipped with radio, a vehicle and first aid equipment in the event of accidents.

Apart from providing campers with information when available, Bach this summer will investigate what structures have to built to improve that section of the trail, and locate for future development winter and a summer camp sites.

He will also make a complete wildlife survey betweeen Port Renfrew and Nitinat narrows.

Camp said more and more people are using Port Renfrew as the starting point to hike or camp along the west coast.

Bachena Bay, near Bamfield, has been the popular starting point in the past.

Camp expects the trial to be heavily used this year.

"The first heavy influx of campers and hikers took place on the Easter weekend," he said.

PM to Visit Charlottes, Open Habitat

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will travel to British Columbia at the end of this month for the opening of the UN conference on human settlements in Vancouver.

A spokesman for his office said Tuesday that Trudeau will leave Ottawa May 27 and will spend three days on the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The prime minister will then travel to Vancouver May 30 for the opening of the conference — Habitat — and return to Ottawa June 1. Details of the trip are expected later.

CO-STAR of The Mary Tyler Moore Show, Ted Knight, will appear at the Jaycee Fair at Memorial Arena Wednesday, May 19, through Saturday, May 22, with two shows nightly at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Also appearing with him will be the Allen Sisters from the Tommy Hunter Show.

$52,000 Posting

VANCOUVER (CP) — Assistant City Engineer Ken Dobell has been appointed city co-ordinator at a salary of $52,000 a year, Mayor Art Phillips said Tuesday. The newly-created job will comprise overhauling the administration of the planning, social planning and housing departments.

FINGERPRINTING CASE TO COURT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Resources Board Wednesday decided to challenge in B.C. Supreme Court the police policy of fingerprinting juveniles.

The board, a provincially-funded organization that administers some community services, made the decision after receiving legal opinions that suggest police have no right to fingerprint juveniles unless they are taken to adult court.

Police superintendent Tom Herdman told the board that the Vancouver Police Department was advised by the provincial attorney general's department that the fingerprinting of juveniles was permissible if there is evidence indicating a criminal offence has been committed.

He said since March 19, police have been following this policy. Previously, they sought the permission of the juvenile's parents.

Superintendent Herdman said the police department believes it is acting for the good and welfare of the juvenile and the community when it fingerprints children. He said fingerprints have linked the same child to as many as 80 other reported offences.

Fraser Rising

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The Fraser River was above flood warning level here and still rising Wednesday.

Emery Wilson, provincial water resources branch district engineer, said the Fraser was less than four feet below record flood levels set in 1972 and had risen three inches overnight.

A few houses in the city had flooded basements and residents were setting furniture up on stilts to prevent damage.

In some low-lying areas, the water was inching into yards and moving up city streets. City crews were pumping out low-lying areas of the city.

Big Oil Spill Smears Spain

Times News Services

LA CORUNA, Spain — An "ecological disaster of unforeseeable consequence," is feared in the wake of an oil spill Wednesday.

When the tanker Urquiola exploded after it ran aground at the mouth of La Coruna harbor, it dumped a capacity load of 110,000 tons of Persian Gulf crude oil into the sea.

Nine years ago, when the supertanker Torrey Canyon sank and the resultant spill fouled French and British beaches for several years, only 30,000 tons of oil was responsible.

Fears here are not only for the picturesque beaches of northwestern Spain but also for the important shellfish industry.

The Urquiola, owned by the Bilbao-based Naviera Artola, hit the rocks at the harbor mounth around noon. For an hour, several tugs tried to refloat the tanker, but it listed more and more and the crew was ordered into lifeboats.

"The ship was practically stationary when we felt it touch botton very gently," said third engineer Miguel Angel Gromez Pena.

"When it was listing 15 degrees, the captain gave orders to abandon ship. Later we heard an explosion, followed by several more. I don't understand what caused them, but it must have had something to do with fumes and pressures."

The ferocity of the blast shattered windows several miles away on the La Coruna waterfront and thick black smoke could be seen from 80 miles distant.

"It looked like a volcano," said one witness.

The only fatality, however, was the captain, Francisco Rodriguez.

MAYOR'S NUDE SQUAD ON SURREY PROWL

SURREY (CP) — Mayor Ed McKitka has established a three-member watchdog committee to search out nude and other "inappropriate" art works in this municipality's public places.

McKitka Wednesday refused to name committee members. Their identities are not even known to each other, he said.

If two of the three report to the mayor that certain art work is not acceptable for Surrey, that work will be removed, McKitka said.

"It's time we got that junk out," he added.

Although the mayor would not name his secret committee, he said one is a minister, one an artist and one "just an ordinary person."

McKitka ordered a mural with a 10-inch drawing of a nude woman removed from municipal hall last month and later sharply criticized an art exhibit in the Surrey Centennial Art Gallery.

'Don't Trust' Gov't

Opposition parties Wednesday flayed the government's Anti-Inflation Act, saying the legislation contains "astonishing, frightening" powers with no system of checks and balances.

Bill 16, the Anti-Inflation Measures Act, brings the province under the umbrella of federal wage and price guidelines and commits British Columbia to the controls until probably April, 1977.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson, speaking during debate on second reading, said the bill contains the power to intervene in existing contracts and freeze and rollback wages and prices, all by cabinet regulation.

"The government should not have that kind of power except in times of emergency," Gibson said.

"The government is saying 'trust us' but Mr. Speaker, I don't trust any government."

Gibson said the bill intrudes more deeply into the economy of the province than any legislation brought in by the former NDP government.

"This is blank cheque legislation that gives the government unnecessary power."

The legislation contains no right of appeal, right of redress or right to be heard, Gibson said, calling it the "Arbitrary Measures Act."

A more effective checks and balance system must surround any such legislation, he said.

The bill sets out that a regulation made by the cabinet terminates 60 days after it comes into force if the legislature is in session, or if the legislature is not in session, 60 days after the start of the next sitting.

Tory leader Dr. Scott Wallace said under that section it is possible a regulation could be in effect for almost a year, without any sort of legislative review.

"This contains a tremendous amount of authority . . . without the kind of safeguards the individual citizen would expect."

Wallace said he would be much happier with the bill if he had some assurance the government "would not trample in a very serious way over any of the groups of people affected by the bill."

Opposition leader Bill King said it was unfair to concentrate such measures only on organized workers who represent 43 per cent of the work force in B.C.

King said there is nothing in the legislation but "a vague power to do something."

LIVELY LOOK has been given traditional bleak government office corridor with this art work in main post office building at Government and Yates. Could it be that artist has mischievously portrayed bureaucratic red tape, always wending its way around another corner? Design is in hallway where federal government's services branch is located. Slowdown In Prices 'A Fluke'

OTTAWA (CP) — Inflation officially slacked in April to the slowest annual rate in 30 months, but prices are still climbing and the slowdown may only be a statistical fluke.

Statistics Canada reported Wednesday that some food prices fell for the fourth consecutive month, holding the April rise in the consumer price index to four-tenths of one per cent.

But the federal Anti-Inflation Board says later information shows food prices really rose in April, indicating that the slight respite recorded by Statistics Canada is misleading.

Statistics Canada attributes the slowdown in the price index to a slippage in prices for beef, pork and fresh vegetables in early April.

But Beryl Plumptre, vice chairman of the Anti-Inflation Board, said Wednesday that later data shows food prices began climbing again in April and further increases are expected.

The Anti-Inflation Board's survey of food prices is based on later information than that of Statistics Canada.

Strike at Any Time At Victoria General

The B.C. Labor Relations Board has designated 47 of Victoria General Hospital's 604 non-medical workers as essential in preparation for a strike which had been expected to start today.

However, no pickets appeared this morning although strike action could start any time, a union spokesman said.

The labor relations board, after two days of meetings, also ruled that Victoria General must maintain 345 of its 422 beds in the event of a strike, the hospital's executive director, Jim Fair, said today.

The hospital tried to persuade the LRB that Victoria General was in a uinque situation because Royal Jubilee, the only other major hospitaal in the city, has been struck by the Hospital Employees Union since Tuesday, Fair said.

The hospital used that argument to try to get the board to rule that all of Victoria General's workers were essential, he said.

The hospital also tried to convince the board of the need for a four-day strike-free period to assess the patient flow coming from Jubilee, but failed to persuade the board of either idea, Fair said.

Victoria General has cancelled all elective surgery since last Sunday and Fair said the hospital will weigh sending more patients home "by the hour." The hospital currently has beeween 365 and 370 beds occupied.

An HEU spokesman said today Victoria radio stations were broacasting Wednesday and early today that Victoria General workers would be on strike at 6 a.m. The union has to post an official outside the hospital entrance this morning to assure members that they should go to work, he said.

The labor relations board is meeting in Vancouver today to designate essential workers at Lions Gate hospital in North Vancouver.

Jubilee executive director Dr. A. C. Pickles said today the hospital is maintaining a safe standard of medical care, despite the strike.

Vancouver General has been on strike since May 4.

Meanwhile Labor Minister Allan Williams hopes to get both sides in the dispute back to the bargaining table before the end of this week.

Williams said he should know by Thursday afternoon whether the HEU and the Health Labor Relations Association will agree to resume collective bargaining.

The minister, after a lengthy meeting with union officials Wednesday, said he has suggested some techniques which would allow the two sides to bargain "productively."

Williams met Tuesday with management representatives, but little came out of the meeting.

The Capital Regional Board Wednesday joined Oak Bay and Victoria councils in condemning strikes and lockouts in essential services, especially hospitals.

The board passed a resolution asking the provincial government to enact legislation which would control strikes and lockouts in essential services such as hospitals, fire and police protection.

Grade Eight Smokers Walk Out

DELTA (CP) — More than 100 students at Burnsview Junior Secondary School walked out Wednesday to protest cancellation of smoking privileges for grade eight students, conditions in the washrooms and the schools quarter system of grading.

Principal Ed Lorenz said about 125 students failed to return from lunch break.

Lorenz said grade eight students were barred from entering the smoking area on the school grounds because a number of non-smokers had taken up smoking after fraternizing with grade nine smokers in the smoking area.

He said complaints about dirty conditions in the washrooms stemmed from the desire of some students to smoke there. As for complaints about the quarter system, he said some students didn't like being graded four times a year, instead of two.

FERRY HOPE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some progress was reported Wendesday following a second day of talks between ferry workers, members of the British Columbia Government Employees Union, and B.C. Ferries, under mediator Fred Geddes.

A union spokesman said both sides have agreed to meet again today.

TIMES TENNIS

Everything's set to roll in the third annual Victoria Times Public Parks Tennis Tournament.

Entries for the summer-long competition, which for the first time this year features a mixed doubles event as well as singles, close June 3 and matches start June 11.

(For story and entry form see page 17).

Sidney Granny, 82, $250,000 Winner

An 82-year-old great-grandmother from Sidney and a 55-year-old Delta man are $250,000 richer today, winners of the top two prizes in the Western Canada Lottery.

It is the second time in a row the top prize has gone to a Greater Victoria ticket-holder.

Mary Briggs was in Saskatoon for the final draw Wednesday night and said she plans to leave this weekend on a vacation in California where she has a daughter.

Lottery officials said the Delta man would not allow his name to be published.

Three other Vancouver Island residents were among the major winners including a 57-year-old Victoria woman, Helen Craig of 323 Windemere who won $10,000.

I can't believe it," Mrs. Craig said this morning. She said she had been employed with a community action group but had been laid off since March.

"All I've received since then is $87," she said.

Robert Gaskins, a 47-year-old cleaning plant employee in Port Alberni, picked up $50,000 on his ticket which he won as a prize at a Credit Union annual meeting.

BRIGGS

And Campbell River resident John Phillips, a 54-year-old loan officer, collected $25,000.

Altogether, B.C. ticket-holders won a total of $660,000. Bert Grindle of Powell River and Bruce Still of Penticton each won $25,000. Two other B.C. residents, one holding ticket number 2488927, the other ticket number 1228210, won $25,000 and $10,000, respectively.

Mrs. Briggs, a widow with 11 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren, was one of eight persons whose tickets were pulled in a preliminary draw in Winnipeg on May 1. All eight were guaranteed a minimum of $25,000.

Mrs. Briggs, who had bought her ticket at the Canadian Legion Branch in Saanich, said the time the good fortune was too much, too late.

There had been a mixup when the ticket numbers were first announced and for a brief time William Tiffany, a 57-year-old pensioner living in Sidney, thought he held one of the lucky tickets drawn.

Second prize of $100,000 went to a 13-year-old Stettler, Alta. youth. Darcy Hittel's windfall will be held in trust until he is 18.

Gaskins said he would use a portion of his winnings to rebuild his mother-in-law's home, which was destroyed in a fire last October.

Ottawa 'Losing RCMP Control'

MONTREAL — The federal government has lost control of the RCMP, according to Tory MP Elmer Mackay.

He has been recently visited by senior officers who spoke of serious problems relating to political interference, lack of supervision and slumping morale, MacKay claims.

"They authorized me to use their names," he said. "They put their jobs on the line."

Mackay said he wrote to Solicitor-General Warren Allmand a month ago to ask for protection for the officers so they could make their case public.

"Aside from an acknowledgment that the letter had been received I haven't got a reply yet," he said.

On the question of leaks from the RCMP, MacKay said he has "high regard for the RCMP."

"I don't believe that senior RCMP officers want to discredit the government or play partisan politics," he said. "Those responsible shouldn't engage in such activities."

The Gazette, meanwhile, says the progressive Conservative party hired a multinational security firm directed by former United States government intelligence experts to investigate allegations of Liberal corruption in the Sky Shops affair.

Investigators from the Canadian subsidiary of Intertel Inc., of Washington, D.C., gathered the information later revealed in the Commons by MacKay, the paper adds.

MacKay told the Gazette: "I won't comment on who we are using or how many detectives are in use at the moment. If these people have international connections and international experience, so much the better."

Wheelchair Girl Corrine Aims at College

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Corrine Lissell, the 19-year-old Comox girl paralyzed in a traffic accident four years ago, hopes to go to university this fall.

She has been accepted by Simon Fraser University in Burnaby and now is trying to arrange accommodation.

"I'm a bit bored with doing nothing," said Corrine, who went back to high school and finished Grade 12 last year.

"It's very nice to be a lady of leisure but I'd like to do something."

Corrine was awarded $1.1 million in damages by a B.C. Supreme Court jury in Victoria last year for injuries she received when the motorcycle, on which he was a passenger, collided with a left-turning car June 13, 1972, on the road between Courtenay and Comos. She was 15 at the time.

But the award turned out to be largely an empty one. The driver of the motorcycle and the driver of the car were found to be at fault but they only carried the minimum $50,000 public liability insurance.

She received $100,000 from the insurance companies and both she and her father, Robert, have said it isn't worth pursuing the two drivers for more money.

Her father once commented: "They are just working men, the same as you and I." Corrine said: "If they were a couple of people rolling in dough — maybe you would consider it."

The accident left her paralyzed from the waist down and in her left arm. she is confined to a wheelchair.

The damage award was the highest traffic accident award in the British Commonwealth. It prompted calls for the provincial government to raise the minimum $50,000 public liability insurance but neither the former New Democratic government nor the present Social Credit government acted to raise the minimum.

Corrine said Wednesday it is hard to find living accommodation to attend university because she is confined to a wheelchair.

While there is some wheelchair accommodation on the SFU campus, "I have not received any confirmation."

She said if on-campus accommodation doesn't work out, she will look for something off-campus.

"I will take a very general course to begin with, I'm not sure what field I will go into," she said. She will begin with languages and psychology.

CORRINE

Colwood Freeze Studied

The Capital Region Board launched a second effort Wednesday to freeze land development over 1,500 acres in Colwood and Langford until a community plan is in operation later this year.

At the moment approval of subdivisions in the area lies in the hands of the provincial highways department and the board's fear is that it has little sympathy with regional plans.

The 1,500 acres involved lies north and south of Latoria Road and roughly between Happy Valley and Metchosin Roads and the board gave three readings to a bylaw which would temporarily make the minimum parcel in any subdivision 45 acres.

At the centre of the proposed freeze is the 850 acres in the so-called Colwood Development Project, a plan unveiled by Dunhill Development Corpoartion earlier this year to eventually provide mixed housing for up to 22,000 people.

The project calls for clusters of housing with generous open space between and the board fears that large land owners in the area will hurry housing plans through the highways department which will destroy the balance in the Dunhill-regional plan.

Whether or not the land controls the region wants will be established in time appears to lie with Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis.

The bylaw must now be approved by his department before it can be finally adopted by the board and in the past approval of bylaws by the province has taken months.

'Primary' Heritage Rubble?

Glazier Quits Heritage Group

Victoria Ald. Murray Glazier has resigned from the city's Heritage Advisory Committee, but won't explain why.

His appointment as one of two council representatives on the committee was rescinded by city council today, the motion stating that the action was "on the recommendation of His Worship the Mayor."

Asked Wednesday to comment on the circumstances, Glazier offered little more beside the statement that he had tendered his resignation to Mayor Mike Young.

"I have been agonizing over this for some time and I asked him yesterday to take me off the committee," he said.

It was also on Tuesday, while council was discussing difficulties in communication with the Heritage Advisory Committee, that Glazier criticized the planning department's liaison role with the advisory group.

He inferred that planning department representatives had "lost" pieces of correspondence emanating from the committee.

Did that incident have anything to do with his decison? No, said the alderman, "we've had lots of those before."

His closing comment: "I came to the conclusion it would be better if I was not in the middle of this thing . . . I have been the whipping boy in the whole piece."

He didn't elaborate.

Ald. John Hayes will replace Glazier on the committee.

An industrial designer has asked the city of Victoria to confirm through its own engineering staff his claim that two heritage-designated buildings on Wharf Street are crumbling, unsafe and virtually impossible to renovate.

Ted Bowers says if the city engineer's findings agree with his own, the owners of 1302 and 1304 Wharf — Oakland Industries Ltd. — would like permission to demolish the old buildings and replace them with a new commercial-residential development.

Along with several others on Wharf, the two buildings are officially designated under a city bylaw as heritage structures, which means they cannot be demolished or externally altered in any way without the specific approval of city council.

They appear on the city's "primary" list of outstanding heritage builddings.

The Heritage Conservation Report, published by the city a little over a year ago, gives their construction date as around 1870.

"In scale and texture, these two buildings enhance and support the vintage flavor of Wharf Street," says the report.

"Traces of the original classical mouldings are still visible on 1302. Within the four-bay arched opening of 1304, one can still see the iron shutters which were once a common feature of Wharf Street."

Both structures, the report adds, "require renovation."

In Bowers' letter to the city, however, he points out that both his consulting engineer and architect agree that the buildings are "structurally unsound and not suited to practical rehabilitation."

Besides, he says, "they are of doubtful architectural merit and would hinder optimum site development."

Bowers told the Times today he has been working for the past two or three months on a design approach attempting to rehabilitate the buildings and incorporate them in the over-all site development.

"But our structural engineer points out it is impossible to bring these old buildings up to the standard demanded by the National Building Code — the only solution seems to be to tear them down and start all over again," he said.

He asked who would accept liability if, after renovation, the buildings collapsed and killed someone.

Parts of them, including arches which are not tied to the main structure, are in danger of immediate collapse, he claimed. Mortar in the stone foundations has deteriorated to the point where "basically it can be considered almost a pile of stones."

Bowers said the proposed new development could include commercial space and subsidized senior citizens' apartments.

Whether the city allows demolition or not, the owner has offered to dedicate a waterfront strip at the rear of the property for continuation of the city's harbor promenade concept.

Architectural historian Martin Segger, who is chairman of the city's Heritage Advisory Committee, said today the committee will not make any recommendation until it has seen the city engineer's report of the buildings.

SAANICH AIMING AT RAT CONTROL

Saanich residents with rat problems should phone municipal hall, 386-2241.

The council's public works committee decided Tuesday that Saanich should not distribute rodent poisons because of the legal implications, but municipal staff would inform callers where the poison can be purchased.

Municipal engineer Cliff Warren said he knew of four places where the poison can be bought.

Until the Capital Regional District took over health services Saanich's health department supplied the rat-killer, which was purchased by Saanich.

The regional district will not accept the responsibility for rodent control.

Saanich's parks department will handle rodent control on public rights-of-way, ditches and public parks.

Robber Ordered To Scoot

An attempted robbery of the Canterbury Inn, 310 Gorge early today was foiled by a desk clerk who told a would-be robber to "get out of here."

Stewart Richardson said he was alone in the office at 2:15 a.m. when a youth wearing a silk stocking over his face walked in, pulled a gun and said "Freeze."

Richardson said he could see a second youth peeking around a pillar outside the front door.

The desk clerk, by pre-arranged signal, alerted the Coachman Motor Inn across the road and then waited for the gunman to make his next move.

But the gunman just stood there, holding the gun in both hands and looking nervously about him, Richardson said.

Finally Richardson ducked behind the counter and as he did shouted "Get out of here."

When he looked up the gunman and his accomplice were gone. He ran to the door and saw them fleeing east on Gorge.

FIRST EXAMPLES of the long-promised 'street furniture" for the Government Street Mall have made their appearance kitty-corner from Eaton's. This week's cool, cloudy weather offers pedestrians little incentive to try out the new curly-back benches set amid cedar planters, but street minstrel Jane Edwards seems to have staked it out as a likely pitch for when the sun returns.

Pass Back U.S. Buck Tourist Traders Told

Victoria merchants can solve the exchange rate problem by accepting U.S. dollars at par but giving change in American bills, Visitors Information Centre president Al Frame said today.

He was commenting on a statement by Mayor Mike Young who said the U.S. dollar should be accepted at par this summer as a courtesy to tourists.

Frame said this would mean a 3 per cent loss which some stores could afford and others could not.

"Whether they wish to absorb this loss is up to them but we feel it would be better to give U.S. change to American visitors. That way merchants can accept American money at par with no loss."

The U.S. dollar is worth only 97.37 cents Canadian at the present time and the trend is downward.

Frame said his association, which runs the Causeway tourist bureau, has discussed the problem at length and decided that it could not ask all merchants to accept a 3 per cent loss in revenue.

He said VIC will urge merchants to put in a large supply of U.S. cash, as well as Canadian, so money can be accepted at par on that basis.

Companies that prefer to give change in Canadian money would have to make their own decision about whether to accept U.S. funds at par.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Jack Butchins said his association agrees with this stand.

"We can not ask merchants to take a financial loss on the exchange rate but they can avoid the problem by giving change in U.S. funds," he said.

Hutchins, manager for Simpson-Sears, said his store accumulates U.S. cash in the late spring and retains it to build up the supply of change. By the time the peak season begins, the store has enough U.S. cash on most days to give American change for U.S. bills.

The store also does a large amount of business on American Sears credit cards. The store charges at par and is paid eventually by its Canadian headquarters in Canadian funds.

Hutchins said that in situations where his store must give Canadian change for a U.S. bill, it charges the precise exchange rate in effect that day. The new rate is obtained from local banks each morning.

$25,000 Stakes For Second Riggs Match

Aging tennis hustler Bobby Riggs has challenged a Victoria club player to a $25,000 match, here this summer — but will the local guy accept?

"Certainly!" Tony Simnett of the Oak Bay Tennis Club said today.

"We haven't ironed out all the details yet, but I have a sponsor — someone who is prominent in the public eye here in the city — who is prepared to put up the $25,000."

Last June, when Riggs was here to perform during a lacrose game at Memorial Arena, he included an exhibition tennis match with challenger Simnett.

The American won that 9-5 but collected only $500 for his effort.

When Simnett asked for a rematch, the veteran hustler said he'd agree if the stakes were raised to $25,000.

The Victoria player agreed to that amount at the time and Riggs telephoned Wednesday and asked promoter Edgar Rhomberg to "tell Simnett to put his money where his mouth was" or chicken out.

Riggs, now 58, is a former Wimbledon champion who shot back into the spotlight a few years ago when he went on his anti-Women's Lib campaign by announcing that "any old man could beat the world's best tennis players."

Vancouver Builders Eye Mattick Farm

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

A large Vancouver development company wants to build on about 375 acres in Saanich's Cordova Bay area which include the former Turner and Mattick farms.

The firm is Daon Development Corporation, which was responsible for many of the highrise developments in North Vancouver and West Vancouver.

It has also built single-family subdivisions in Richmond, Langley and Port Moody.

Company spokesman George Flannagan was in Victoria this week to confer with officials of Ker, Priestman and Associates Ltd. and Willis-Cunliffe, Tait and Co. Ltd.

The developer's initial approach to Saanich council was made in March, the Times has learned.

Flannagan said Saanich's reaction had been "most polite and co-operative."

"We tried to convince council that rather than have a bunch of small developers it would be better to have a controlled plan and do a better job of it," Flannagan said.

He said the development would concentrate on "ground - oriented housing." With such housing, Flannagan said there would probably be a maximum height of three storeys.

Asked if a shopping centre was being considered as part of the project, Flannagan conceded this is a possibility.

Flannagan said it will be at least eight or nine years before the project could be completed.

"We have to solve many problems," he said, "we may have to use a mechanical form of waste water disposal. Then there is Saanich's community plan (still being developed), we will have to integrate our thoughts with that. We will also have to receive co-operation from the Cordova Bay Association."

Ken Fairburn, spokesman for the recently-organized CBA, says his group want imput into the project but is realistic enough to know a development of single-family homes only is not good use of the land.

"It's a big enough site to give them scope," Fairburn said. "We can't hide our heads in the sand but we want decent design and some effect on what is developed."

If the Daon Development goes through, it will have to get provincial government approval as well because only 100 acres is available under the present zoning.

Sheriff's Officers Seize Seven C & C Taxicabs

Seven taxicabs belonging to C & C Taxi Service Ltd. of Victoria were seized Wednesday by sheriff's officers in connection with a civil action in B.C. Supreme Court.

Regional sheriff W. A. Lee today declined to name the plaintiff or the sum involved in the judgment, but said the vehicles removed represented only a "small portion" of the firm's total fleet.

"They (C & C) have indicated to us that they will be paying it off today," Lee said, and in that case the taxis will be released and no further action taken by his office.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Is there any record of a mayor of Victoria who subsequently became lieutenant-governor of British Columbia? J.K.M.

A. No, there isn't. But city archivist Ainslie Helmcken, fount of knowledge on Victoria's past, says the closest we came to that situation was in the Barnard brothers. Frank Barnard was lieutenant-governor before and during the First World War, and his brother Harry some years earlier (1904-5) had been mayor of the city. The latter went on to become a senator.

Buses Offer Jouncing View

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Went on that special tour of Victoria attractions with the waitresses and motel employees Wednesday as directed by the city editor, but nobody warned me about double decker buses.

It was my first trip aboard one of 'em and the first thing I discovered is that they sway and bump and rumble something fierce. It is impossible to write anything while they are moving.

Sure I took notes as Don Nixon, the manager of the Visitors Information Centre, told us about the hotels, restaurants, docks and attractions, but I find it is impossible to read my writing.

It was also a bit difficult to concentrate on the subject at hand with branches banging against the window every half block and the uncertainty about whether it would be a power line or telephone cable that would snap first. (None did, but it was close.)

The other thing I discovered about being in the top of a double decker bus — the world doesn't look the same. It's odd looking a fellow Victorian in the eye when he's at the window of his second floor apartment.

So, I didn't get a story out of the trip unless you want to hear about:

— What goes on behind the stone walls in Rockland.

— How many tea parties and beer parties are held in an average afternoon in all parts of the city.

— How many ladies take showers in the middle of the day.

I think the highlight of the afternoon was the woman standing at the window on the second floor of her house in Esquimalt. She sort of did a double tabke (appropriately) as the double decker came by. And then she started to wave frantically. I got the impression we were the first human faces she had seen all day.

Further down the street there was another lady who also was surprised to see us come by her second-storey window, but I'll spare you the details.

One thing I noticed about being in a double decker bus is that people who normally wouldn't give you the time of day suddenly get an irresistible urge to wave at you. It's sort of a pleasant change and almost makes the bumps worthwhile.

Nixon was our tour guide and he has a good knowledge of the city. His advice to our group was to learn as much about Victoria so we can answer questions when tourists ask.

One thing he said that really made sense was to direct visitors to the nearest parking area so they can see Victoria on foot. They spend more when they are walking around and they are less of a traffic hazard when they are not driving at five miles an hour.

Amen to that.

FINGERPRINTING CASE TO COURT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Resources Board, Wednesday decided to challenge in B.C. Supreme Court the police policy of fingerprinting juveniles.

The board, a provincially-funded organization that administers some community services, made the decision after receiving legal opinions that suggest police have no right to fingerprint juveniles unless they are taken to adult court.

Police superintendent Tom Herdman told the board that the Vancouver Police Department was advised by the provincial attorney general's department that the fingerprinting of juveniles was permissible if there is evidence indicating a criminal offence has been committed.

He said since March 19, police have been following this policy. Previously, they sought the permission of the juvenile's parents.

Superintendent Herdman said the police department believes it is acting for the good and welfare of the juvenile and the community when it fingerprints children. He said fingerprints have linked the same child to as many as 80 other reported offences.

Plane Hits House

RICHMOND (CP)—One person was killed and another seriously injured today when a single-engine plane crashed into a house in this Vancouver suburb.

The light float plane, registered with British Columbia Packers, was taking off on a flight to Prince Rupert from Vancouver International Airport when it ran into difficulty and clipped the roof of a house on River Road.

An RCMP spokesman said the plane cartwheeled into another home and came to rest in the backyard before bursting into flames.

Two men were aboard the plane—a pilot and co-pilot.

Big Oil Spill Smears Spain

Times News Services

LA CORUNA, Spain — An "ecological disaster of unforeseeable consequence," is feared in the wake of an oil spill Wednesday.

When the tanker Urquiola exploded after it ran aground at the mouth of La Coruna harbor, it dumped a capacity load of 110,000 tons of Persian Gulf crude oil into the sea.

Nine years ago, when the supertanker Torrey Canyon sank and the resultant spill fouled French and British beaches for several years, only 30,000 tons of oil was responsible.

Fears here are not only for the picturesque beaches of northwestern Spain but also for the important shellfish industry.

The Urquiola, owned by the Bilbao-based Naviera Artola, hit the rocks at the harbor month around noon. For an hour, several tugs tried to refloat the tanker, but it listed more and more and the crew was ordered into lifeboats.

"The ship was practically stationary when we felt it touch botton very gently," said third engineer Miguel Angel Gromez Pena.

"When it was listing 15 degrees, the captain gave orders to abandon ship. Later we heard an explosion, followed by several more. I don't understand what caused them, but it must have had something to do with fumes and pressures."

The ferocity of the blast shattered windows several miles away on the La Coruna waterfront and thick black smoke could be seen from 80 miles distant.

"It looked like a volcano," said one witness.

The only fatality, however, was the captain, Francisco Rodriguez.

'Don't Trust' Gov't

Opposition parties Wednesday flayed the government's Anti-Inflation Act, saying the legislation contains "astonishing, frightening" powers with no system of checks and balances.

Bill 16, the Anti-Inflation Measures Act, brings the province under the umbrella of federal wage and price guidelines and commits British Columbia to the controls until probably April, 1977.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson, speaking during debate on second reading, said the bill contains the power to intervene in existing contracts and freeze and rollback wages and prices, all by cabinet regulation.

"The government should not have that kind of power except in times of emergency," Gibson said.

"The government is saying 'trust us' but Mr. Speaker, I don't trust any government."

Gibson said the bill intrudes more deeply into the economy of the province than any legislation brought in by the former NDP government.

"This is blank cheque legislation that gives the government unnecessary power."

The legislation contains no right of appeal, right of redress or right to be heard, Gibson said, calling it the "Arbitrary Measures Act."

A more effective checks and balance system must surround any such legislation, he said.

The bill sets out that a regulation made by the cabinet terminates 60 days after it comes into force if the legislature is in session, or if the legislature is not in session, 60 days after the start of the next sitting.

Tory leader Dr. Scott Wallace said under that section it is possible a regulation could be in effect for almost a year, without any sort of legislative review.

"This contains a tremendous amount of authority ... without the kind of safeguards the individual citizen would expect."

Wallace said he would be much happier with the bill if he had some assurance the government "would not trample in a very serious way over any of the grouns of people affected by the bill."

Opposition leader Bill King said it was unfair to concentrate such measures only on organized workers who represent 43 per cent of the work force in B.C.

King said there is nothing in the legislation but "a vague power to do something."

MAYOR'S NUDE SQUAD ON SURREY PROWL

SURREY (CP) — Mayor Ed McKitka has established a three-member watchdog committee to search out nude and other "inappropriate" art works in this municipality's public places.

McKitka Wednesday refused to name committee members. Their identities are not even known to each other, he said.

If two of the three report to the mayor that certain art work is not acceptable for Surrey, that work will be removed, McKitka said.

"It's time we got that junk out," he added.

Although the mayor would not name his secret committee, he said one is a minister, one an artist and one "just an ordinary person."

McKitka ordered a mural with a 10-inch drawing of a nude woman removed from municipal hall last month and later sharply criticized an art exhibit in the Surrey Centennial Art Gallery.

LIVELY LOOK has been given traditional bleak government office corridor with this art work in main post office building at Government and Yates. Could it be that artist has mischievously portrayed bureaucratic red tape, always wending its way around another corner? Design is in hallway where federal government's services branch is located. Slowdown In Prices 'A Fluke'

OTTAWA (CP) — Inflation officially slacked in April to the slowest annual rate in 30 months, but prices are still climbing and the slowdown may only be a statistical fluke.

Statistics Canada reported Wednesday that some food prices fell for the fourth consecutive month, holding the April rise in the consumer price index to four-tenths of one per cent.

But the federal Anti-Inflation Board says later information shows food prices really rose in April, indicating that the slight respite recorded by Statistics Canada is misleading.

Statistics Canada attributes the slowdown in the price index to a slippage in prices for beef, pork and fresh vegetables in early April.

But Beryl Plumptre, vice chairman of the Anti-Inflation Board, said Wednesday that later data shows food prices began climbing again in April and further increases are expected.

The Anti-Inflation Board's survey of food prices is based on later information than that of Statistics Canada.

Strike at Any Time At Victoria General

The B.C. Labor Relations Board has designated 47 of Victoria General Hospital's 604 non-medical workers as essential, in preparation for a strike which had been expected to start today.

However, no pickets appeared this morning although strike action could start any time, a union spokesman said.

The labor relations board, after two days of meetings, also ruled that Victoria General must maintain 345 of its 422 beds in the event of a strike, the hospital's executive director, Jim Fair, said today.

The hospital tried to persuade the LRB that Victoria General was in a uinque situation because Royal Jubilee, the only other major hospital in the city, has been struck by the Hospital Employees Union since Tuesday, Fair said.

The hospital used that argument to try to get the board to rule that all of Victoria General's beds were essential, he said.

The hospital also tried to convince the board of the need for a four-day strike-free period to assess the patient flow coming from Jubilee, but failed to persuade the board of either idea, Fair said.

Victoria General has cancelled all elective surgery since last Sunday and Fair said the hospital will weigh sending more patients home "by the hour." The hospital currently has beeween 365 and 370 beds occupied.

An HEU spokesman said today Victoria radio stations were broacasting Wednesday and early today that Victoria General workers would be on strike at 6 a.m. The union had to post an official outside the hospital entrance this morning to assure members that they should go to work, he said.

The labor relations board is meeting in Vancouver today to designate essential workers at Lions Gate hospital in North Vancouver.

Jubilee executive director Dr. A. C. Pickles said today the hospital is maintaining a safe standard of medical care, despite the strike.

Vancouver General has been on strike since May 4.

Meanwhile Labor Minister Allan Williams hopes to get both sides in the dispute back to the bargaining table before the end of this week.

Williams said he should know by Thursday afternoon whether the HEU and the Health Labor Relations Association will agree to resume collective bargaining.

The minister, after a lengthy meeting with union officials Wednesday, said he has suggested some techniques which would allow the two sides to bargain "productively."

Williams met Tuesday with management representatives, but little came out of the meeting.

The Capital Regional Board Wednesday joined Oak Bay and Victoria councils in condemning strikes and lockouts in essential services, especially hospitals.

The board passed a resolution asking the provincial government to enact legislation which would control strikes and lockouts in essential services such as hospitals, fire and police protection.

Sidney Granny, 82, $250,000 Winner

It is the second time in a row the top prize has gone to a Greater Victoria ticket-holder.

Mary Briggs was in Saskatoon for the final draw Wednesday night and said she plans to leave this weekend on a vacation in California where she has a daughter.

Lottery officials said the Delta man would not allow his name to be published.

Three other Vancouver Island residents were among the major winners including a 57-year-old Victoria woman, Helen Craig of 323 Windemere who won $10,000.

I can't believe it," Mrs. Craig said this morning. She said she had been employed with a community action group but had been laid off since March.

"All I've received since then is $87," she said.

Robert Gaskins, a 47-year-old cleaning plant employee in Port Alberni, picked up $50,000 on his ticket which he won as a prize at a Credit Union annual meeting.

BRIGGS

And Campbell River resident John Phillips, a 54-year-old loan officer, collected $25,000.

Altogether, B.C. ticket-holders won a total of $660,000. Bert Grindle of Powell River and Bruce Still of Penticton each won $25,000. Two other B.C. residents, one holding ticket number 2488927, the other ticket number 1228210, won $25,000 and $10,000, respectively.

Mrs. Briggs, a widow with 11 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren, was one of eight persons whose tickets were pulled in a preliminary draw in Winnipeg on May 1. All eight were guaranteed a minimum of $25,000.

Mrs. Briggs, who had bought her ticket at the Canadian Legion Branch in Saanich, said at the time the good fortune was too much, too late.

There had been a mixup when the ticket numbers were first announced and for a brief time William Tiffany, a 57-year-old pensioner living in Sidney, thought he held one of the lucky tickets drawn.

Second prize of $100,000 went to a 13-year-old Stettler, Alta. youth. Darcy Hittel's windfall will be held in trust until he is 18.

Gaskins said he would use a portion of his winnings to rebuild his mother-in-law's home, which was destroyed in a fire last October.

Grade Eight Smokers Walk Out

DELTA (CP) — More than 100 students at Burnsview Junior Secondary School walked out Wednesday to protest cancellation of smoking privileges for grade eight students, conditions in the washrooms and the schools quarter system of grading.

Principal Ed Lorenz said about 125 students failed to return from lunch break.

Lorenz said grade eight students were barred from entering the smoking area on the school grounds because a number of non-smokers had taken up smoking after fraternizing with grade nine smokers in the smoking area.

He said complaints about dirty conditions in the washrooms stemmed from the desire of some students to smoke there. As for complaints about the quarter system, he said some students didn't like being graded four times a year, instead of two.

FERRY HOPE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some progress was reported Wednesday following a second day of talks between ferry workers, members of the British Columbia Government Employees Union, and B.C. Ferries, under mediator Fred Geddes.

A union spokesman said both sides have agreed to meet again today.

TIMES TENNIS

Everything's set to roll in the third annual Victoria Times Public Parks Tennis Tournament.

Entries for the summer-long competition, which for the first time this year features a mixed doubles event as well as singles, close June 3 and matches start June 11.

(For story and entry form see page 17).

Ottawa 'Losing RCMP Control'

MONTREAL — The federal government has lost control of the RCMP, according to Tory MP Elmer Mackay.

He has been recently visited by senior officers who spoke of serious problems relating to political interference, lack of supervision and slumping morale, MacKay claims.

"They authorized me to use their names," he said. "They put their jobs on the line."

Mackay said he wrote to Solicitor-General Warren Allmand a month ago to ask for protection for the officers so they could make their case public.

"Aside from an acknowledgment that the letter had been received I haven't got a reply yet," he said.

On the question of leaks from the RCMP, MacKay said he has "high regard for the RCMP."

"I don't believe that senior RCMP officers want to discredit the government or play partisan politics," he said. "Those responsible shouldn't engage in such activities."

The Gazette, meanwhile, says the Progressive Conservative party hired a multinational security firm directed by former United States government intelligence experts to investigate allegations of Liberal corruption in the Sky Shops affair.

Investigators from the Canadian subsidiary of Intertel Inc., of Washington, D.C., gathered the information later revealed in the Commons by MacKay, the paper adds.

MacKay told the Gazette: "I won't comment on who we are using or how many detectives are in use at the moment. If these people have international connections and international experience, so much the better."

Wheelchair Girl Corrine Aims at College

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

Corrine Lissell, the 19-year-old Comox girl paralyzed in a traffic accident four years ago, hopes to go to university this fall.

She has been accepted by Simon Fraser University in Burnaby and now is trying to arrange accommodation.

"I'm a bit bored with doing nothing," said Corrine, who went back to high school and finished Grade 12 last year.

"It's very nice to be a lady of leisure but I'd like to do something."

Corrine was awarded $1.1 million in damages by a B.C. Supreme Court jury in Victoria last year for injuries she received when the motorcycle, on which she was a passenger, collided with a left-turning car June 13, 1972, on the road between Courtenay and Comox. She was 15 at the time.

But the award turned out to be largely an empty one. The driver of the motorcycle and the driver of the car were found to be at fault but they only carried the minimum $50,000 public liability insurance.

She received $100,000 from the insurance companies and both she and her father, Robert, have said it isn't worth pursuing the two drivers for more money.

Her father once commented: "They are just working men, the same as you and I." Corrine said: "If they were a couple of people rolling in dough — maybe you would consider it."

The damage award was the highest traffic accident award in the British Commonwealth. It prompted calls for the provincial government to raise the minimum $50,000 public liability insurance but neither the former New Democratic government nor the present Social Credit government acted to raise the minimum.

Corrine said Wednesday it is hard to find living accommodation to attend university because she is confined to a wheelchair.

While there is some wheelchair accommodation on the SFU campus, "I have not received any confirmation."

She said if on-campus accommodation doesn't work out, she will look for something off-campus.

"I will take a very general course to begin with, I'm not sure what field I will go into," she said. She will begin with languages and psychology.
